Airline Announces 1st Flight

The inaugural flight for Sun Airlines Corp. will leave from Sikeston Airport at 7:20 a.m. Aug. 14, enroute to St. Louis, George Caleshu, president, announced today.

A return flight will come from St. Louis to Sikeston at about 5 or 5:30 p.m. daily, Wendell Caskey, airport manager said.

Flights to and from Memphis, Tenn., are not scheduled initially, but are expected to be set up a little later, Caskey said.

Caleshu announced that additional equipment has been received by Sun and schedules should be available at the airport and at the Chamber of Commerce office next Tuesday.

Sun is the Mid-West's newest scheduled airline and makes daily flights of multi-engine planes to Springfield, Columbia, Kansas City, St. Louis and other major points.

Twin-engine, nine-passenger Beech aircraft are flown by Sun pilots. Flights are being planned to enable passengers from Sikeston to catch connecting flights in St. Louis.

Tickets will be available at Harper's Travel Service or at the airport.

Woman Dies In Car Crash

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) Mrs. Juanitia E. Shamlin, 42, of Poplar Bluff was killed early today when her car veered off a city street and crashed into the brick home of Frank Tinsley.

Tinsley's 12-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, was asleep in the corner bedroom when the car struck but she was not hurt.

Queen Mary Disneyland Rival

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - The Queen Mary, venerable lady of the Atlantic, will find a permanent home on the waterfront of Long Beach and rival Disneyland as a lure for tourists.

The ocean liner, now too old for travel as a luxury ship, is being sold by Cunard Lines to the city of Long Beach for $3,444,000.

The city, whose bid topped 17 others, plans to spend $3 million to $5 million to make the Queen Mary into a maritime museum, hotel and convention center.

The news Wednesday from London, where the sale was announced, created excitement among Long Beach citizens.

"She'll rival Disneyland," said Mayor Edwin Wade.

He predicted that the luxury liner will attract two million persons a year. She will rival Disneyland, Marineland and other Southern California facilities as a tourist attraction," he said.

Wade, discounting comment in London that the proud old ship would become "an affair spectacle," said it would retain its dignity in Long Beach harbor.

The oil-rich California city of 380,000 beat our New York City, an Atlanta, Ga., group and scrap dealers all over the world for the ship that carried millions of persons across the Atlantic with a stint as transporter of 765,000 allied troops during World War II.

Beer Prices May Increase in Area

Beer quaffers are expected to pay a higher price per sip, swallow or guzzle.

"Since we're in the St. Louis market, I expect the price of beer to rise here before the end of the week," Bob Ralph, manager of Bob Ralph's Distribution Co., said today.

The distributor's price per case to the retailer has been increased 30 to 40 cents in the St. Louis and eastern Illinois markets, Ralph said.

The increase also applies to Cairo.

Ralph said if the price is increased her it will be passed on to retailers.

This probably will result in an increase of five cents per bottle, and 10 cents per six pack to the consumer, he said.

Mrs. Farrell Wasson, bookkeeper and wife of the manager of Locke Distributing Co., commented today that no word of price change has been received.

The distributor's cost was lower in the St. Louis market than here, and the price rise may not be reflected here, she said.

"But we can't say for sure yet if the increase will or will not hit here," she said.

Other wholesale beer distributors here, Puckett Distributing Co. and Bess Distributing Co. also said that they had heard nothing definite about a price increase.

Appoint Groups To Explore Housing

Five committees were appointed to explore avenues of improving substandard housing in Sikeston at a 9 a.m. meeting today at the Mid-Towner Restaurant.

The meeting was called at the urging of Mayor Kendall Sikes and the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist church. About 10 church representatives and interested laymen attended.

Another meeting of the appointed committeemen was set for 5 p.m. Tuesday at the city administration building. A name for the group will be chosen at the next meeting and a by-laws committee is expected to be formed.

The organization is growing from a concerted effort to do something to improve poor housing, by the church leaders in Sikeston at a meeting July 19 at the Holiday Inn.

Loose definition of the goals and means of obtaining them were outlined at the previous meeting. The goals and means of obtaining them are expected to be more clearly defined in the next meeting, Sikes said.

Msgr. Walter J. McGrane was appointed chairman and the Rev. Mr. Wagner was appointed vice chairman of the organization today.

A steering committee for the group will consist of the Rev. Mr. Wagner, Mr. McGrane and the chairmen and vice chairmen of the five committees.

Appointed to committees today were:

Community Betterment Committee, Dr. Robert Lively, chairman, Louis Wiggins, vice chairman, Howard Grant, Shad Old, the Rev. J.W. Gwinn.

Loan Committee, Lee Shell, chairman, the Rev. Robert Jones, vice chairman, Jack Hogan, Pat Lea and Richard James.

Real Estate Committee, Arthur Ziegenhorn, chairman, Donald Fulton, vice chairman, Ross Murray, the Rev. James Hackney, and Charles Mitchell.

Rodeo Musician To Appear Here

George Runquist, renowned rodeo music man, will appear at the 15th annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo on Aug. 10-13.

Runquist has performed at all major rodeos throughout the country. He is famous for the song he donated to the rodeo cowboys, called "The Rodeo Cowboy."

He also will supply the sound for the rodeo.

New Quake Hits Ankara

ANKARA (AP)— Another violent earthquake struck Turkey Wednesday night in an area where 23,000 persons were killed in 1939 in one of history's most disastrous quakes. The government radio said that up to early afternoon today the known death toll had reached 86, with many villages unheard from.

The quake occurred in eastern Turkey, south of the city of Erzincan. Erzincan was the site of the disastrous quake of Dec. 27, 1939.

The quake Wednesday night was Turkey's second such disaster in six days. On Saturday in western Turkey nearly 100 persons were killed at Adapazari.

The Pulumur region was reported hardest hit by the latest quake, with only 7 out of the 70 villages able to communicate with the provincial authorities.

Authorities feared the death toll would go higher since most of the villages are built of mud.

The seismological observatory at Kandili said the quake was recorded at 8:50 p.m., an hour and a half after Pope Paul VI left western Turkey to return to Italy. The center of the quake was some 500 miles northeast of Izmir and Ephesus, which the Pope visited Wednesday.

Viet Shells Kill Eleven Americans

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners unleashed a heavy rocket and mortar attack on an American infantry camp and adjoining airfield north of Saigon today, killing 11 U.S. soldiers and wounding 43.

At the same time two nearby South Vietnamese installations came under similar attack. South Vietnamese headquarters did not announce military casualties but said three civilians were killed and 13 wounded in one of the barrages.

Ground action continued light, as it has been for almost a month, and the scarcity of major action was reflected by a slight decline in the weekly casualty figures. The U.S. Command said 164 Americans were killed last week and 1,442 wounded, compared with 175 killed and 1,443 wounded the week before. South Vietnamese losses were put at 183 dead and 523 wounded compared to 202 killed and 543 wounded the previous week, while 1,702 Communists were reported killed, a drop from 1,995 a week earlier.

On the political front, the South Vietnamese government announced it has asked the United Nations to send observers for the presidential and senatorial elections Sept. 3 to "testify to our determination to hold free and honest elections."

The Communist mortar and rocket assault hit the headquarters of the 1st Infantry Division's 1st Brigade at the airfield at Phuoc Vin, 35 miles north of Saigon, about four hours before dawn.

U.S. Command said there was light damage to installations and equipment at the airfield — a relatively small field used by spotter planes, helicopters and troop transports.

The Red gunners used mostly light mortars but some of the rounds were from Russian-made 122mm rockets, one of the heaviest weapons in the Viet Cong arsenal.

The shells rained on the headquarters and the field for 25 minutes, sending sleeping GI's scurrying for sandbagged bunkers and reaction patrols fanning about the barbed-wire camp perimeters.

Flareships lit the area and American guns under radar control opened up on Communist firing positions. They were located later in the day by ground patrols, abandoned and battered by shellfire but with no Viet Cong bodies left behind.

Heavy thunderstorms over the Hanoi-Haiphong area limited air attacks on North Vietnam Wednesday to supply lines between the industrial area and the southern border.

Military headquarters reported that despite the heavy weather 135 missions — an average day — were flown against the North with extensive damage to trucks, railroad rolling stock, barges and supply sites.

U.S. B52 bombers, sweeping five miles up in the sky along the Laotian and Cambodian frontiers, poured tons of bombs on Communist camp and infiltration areas in two raids early today.

Medium-size bombs in saturation patterns blasted an enemy camp area in the central highlands near Pleiku and another jungle gathering point near the hard-hit A Shau valley farther north.

In Saigon, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced South Vietnam's armed forces would be increased by 65,000 men to a total of 700,000 and said the United States has agreed to equip them.

Ryan to Build School

MOREHOUSE - The Ryan Construction Company of Sikeston, low bidder, was awarded the contract for construction of the new elementary school building. Bids were opened last night.

Ryan's bid of $158,970 was the lowest of the five contractors submitting bids.

Other bidders were Jackson Excavating Company of Jackson, $161,996; Woods Lumber Company of Portageville, $167,445; Crites and Sailor Construction Company of Cape Girardeau, $171,732, and Huffman Brothers Lumber Company of Steele, $183,481.

The contract calls for completion of the building by July 1, 1968. Work is expected to begin within a week.

On April 4 patrons of the C-12 district approved a $190,000 bond issue for construction of the plant.

Long No Longer Has St. Joseph Paper's Support

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— The St. Joseph News-Press in an editorial today called for the defeat of Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., for re-election next year. The News-Press and the Gazette have supported Long in the past.

The editorial, in part, said:

"Sen. Edward V. Long of Missouri has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election in 1968. He already has filed. He should be denied the nomination. And if by mischance he does get the nomination he should be defeated in the November general election.

"The News-Press and Gazette have supported Ed Long. We say, now without too much bragging, that we were perhaps the first newspapers to announce for Ed Long when he ran after being named by then Gov. James Blair to take the seat of deceased Sen. Thomas Hennings. He was elected in November 1960 for the 2-year unexpired term and then for a full 6-year term in 1962.

The editorial then pointed out that many weeks had gone by since Life magazine printed a story that Long had received $48,000 in monthly installments from Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer, attorney for James Hoffa, Teamsters union leader, now in prison.

"Time after time Senator Long has been asked, and given chances without number, to explain these money transfers which he calls referrals. He has refused. He has tried, not too successfully, to insinuate that Internal Revenue Service is after him for his campaign against wire tapping. Hogwash!

"His 17 page 'defense' on the Senate floor Monday leaves us cold."

The editorial also said: "Without knowing who will be his next opponent in the primary next August we are against Ed Long."

If you're looking for a gasoline tax bargain on an auto trip, try Texas - where much of the gasoline comes from.

The immediacy of the supply may have nothing to do with it, but Texas does have one of the nation's lowest state gas taxes - 5 cents on the gallon. The same rate prevails in Kansas, Missouri, and most of Hawaii.

The tax-conscious driver might well steer clear of the state of Washington, which recently raised its motor fuel tax to 9 cents - the highest in the nation. The federal 4-cent gas excise ups the total Washington tax to 13 cents on every gallon - over one-third of the average U.S. gas price, 33 cents.

In addition there are local gasoline taxes, but only 254 towns and cities charge them. Of these, 237 are located in Alabama, where federal, state and local authorities share revenues of 14 cents on every gallon.

State gasoline taxes originated in 1919 when Oregon initiated a good-old-days charge of one cent a gallon. Recognizing a money-raiser when they saw it, other states soon slapped their own taxes on motor fuel; within 10 years, all 48 states then in the union had gas taxes.

In 1965, 14 states cleared over $100 million each in motor fuel taxes, according to the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. Drivers in California, who used almost 7 billion gallons of gas that year, poured almost $600 million into the state's coffers - the highest amount in the country.

Every hour, over $900,000 in motor fuel taxes is collected by state and federal authorities, says the American Petroleum Institute.

The federal government, seeking to overcome the Great Depression, first levied a tax on gasoline in 1932. Ironically, this "temporary emergency measure" is now 35 years old and brings in about $3 billion annually.

Federal gasoline taxes have produced revenues of nearly $33 billion since their inception.

The first state fuel tax was channeled into road construction- "to help the early motorists get out of the mud" as Ed Mulligan of the American Petroleum Institute puts it. Highway construction and maintenace is still the aim of most state and federal gasoline levies.

Rising gas taxes trace to the mushrooming American road system. During the 15-year period beginning in 1950, expenditures on highway rose 262 per cent - increasing ten times as fast as the population, which registered a 26 per cent increase.

Motor fuel revenues are the principal source of funds for the Interstate Highway System, a group of federally backed, limited-access interstate highways scheduled for 1973 completion. Federal gas taxes pay 3/4 to 4/5 of Washington's 90 per cent share in that program and also help foot another federal-state project, development of primary and secondary roads.

But while federal gas revenues are used exclusively for highway repair and construction, motor fuel taxes, in a limited number of states, finance anything from school to welfare agencies. Although state taxes were initially directed at highway costs, the financial dilemma of the 1930's forced some states to divert gas funds for purposes of little concern to the motorist.

Funds are still being funneled away to non-highway projects - to the tune of $655 million a year, according to the Petroleum Institute.

For example, New Jersey charged neither an income nor a sales tax for many years; it relied on gas and registration taxes to cover many general expenditures.

Local allocation of funds from gas taxes - usually a 1 to 3 cent charge per gallon - is even more random than state practice.

Only 26 of the 237 tax-levying towns in Alabama use fuel money exclusively for roads. In most of the areas, gas dollars pay for any municipal cost - bonds, schools and the fire department.

In Mississippi says The Petroleum Institute, three counties "levy for the levee" - using motor fuel funds to shore up the river wall.

Injured Viet Children Offered U.S. Passage

NEW YORK (AP) - The U.S. government has offered free air transportation to this country for war-injured South Vietnamese children needing specialized medical treatment available in the United States.

Two members of the Committee of Responsibility, an organization of American physicians, told the Associated Press that William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for the Far East, made the offer in a letter to the group earlier this month.

"We approached him earlier this year on the matter," said Dr. Herbert Needleman, a Philadelphia physician. "In early July we got a letter that said the State Department was 'prepared to offer air evacuation' for the children if the South Vietnamese government approves."

Needleman and Dr. Frank Ervin of Boston, left New York for Saigon Wednesday afternoon to get that approval.

"We're going with an open mind about the problem," Needleman said. "We expect that the children will be released to us. You might say we're cautiously optimistic."

Pope Ends Trip at Summer Home

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Back from what he depicted as a wearying but satisfying journey to Turkey, Pope Paul VI settled today into his summer vacation routine of rest and study.

The Pope was driven directly to his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome, after debarking from the jetliner that brought him home from Turkey Wednesday night.

"We are a little tired," the 69-year-old pontiff told a crowd of greeters at Castel Gandolfo only a few hours after he trudged around the ancient Christian ruins of Ephesus, Turkey, in wilting 100-degree heat.

The Pope said he would take "a few moments of rest," then "turn to the much, much, much work" still ahead of him.

He is expected to remain at his cool retreat five or six weeks. During that period he will finish preparation of a forthcoming document on reorganization of the Curia and of plans for the historic worldwide synod of Roman Catholic bishops to be held in Rome starting Sept. 29.

Also still before the Pope is the issue of birth control, the principal topic of study during his summer vacation last year. He has long postponed any declaration on whether the church will lift its anticontraception rule.

It was not excluded that the Pope might spend some of his vacation time contemplating a possible new trip.

Returning on the Pope's jet from Turkey, Vatican aides commented on the pontiff's fifth journey abroad and said that he could be expected in the future to travel "just as often as he has in the past."

Looking back on the two-day Turkish trip, the Pope told the Castel Gandolfo crowd that God had blessed his meetings with officials of that Moslem nation and with Orthodox religious leaders, including Patriarch Athenagoras.

Predicting greater Christian unity advances, the Pope said the Orthodox leaders "showed themselves truly to be of such goodness and greatness of spirit as to let us foresee many other good things."

The Pope and Athenagoras both vowed to make personal sacrifices in setting an example for the flocks of their "sister churches," separated nine centuries ago by the great schism.

The sources said Turkish government officials at least listened sympathetically to Pope Paul's plea that they mediate between Israelis and Arabs in the Middle East crisis.

Pope Paul ended his Turkish stay with the visit to the coastal city of Ephesus, site of the Ecumenical Council which in 431 sanctioned the dogma of the Virgin Mary as mother of God.

Canada Squabble May Put De Gaulle on Spot at Home

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle's abortive Canadian venture will put to a trying test the loyalties of his Cabinet and his tissue-thin majority in the French National Assembly.

An accident of the calendar — it is vacation time in France — may save the 76-year-old president from an immediate political confrontation.

But it appears certain to come, not only as a result of his conduct in Canada but also because of other actions which have aroused public opinion.

De Gaulle was elected to a second seven-year term in 1965 and assembly elections which come every five years were held last March. Thus the Gaullists face no major test at the polls in the immediate future.

But when the assembly goes back to work in early October, the sparks may begin to fly.

The Canadian crisis, which grew out of what appeared to be a deliberately charted effort by De Gaulle to boost French Canadian separatism, stunned opinion in France. But so far there has been no concerted riposte by De Gaulle's political opposition.

Newspapers remain one of the few sounding boards at this time of the year. Almost unanimously — with the marked exception of the Communist party's Humanite — they have sharply rebuked De Gaulle for his behavior in Canada.

Ordinary Frenchmen, including many firmly in De Gaulle's camp, can make no sense out of his trumpeting the French Canadian separatist rallying cry of "Long live free Quebec." Frenchmen couldn't care less about French Canadian separatism. The president's espousal of the separatist cause was widely interpreted as a violation of an often-voiced Gaullist tenet — no interference in the affairs of another country.

Lesser French officials left behind when De Gaulle went to Canada would make no effort to explain away what happened there. "You can understand our position," one told a reporter.

There is some speculation that De Gaulle was trying to take a cut at both Britain and the United States by encouraging the French Canadians to go their own way. This would, it was suggested, swing a segment of the North American contenent toward Paris and away from Britain, Ottawa and the United States.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
AFTER 30 YEARS - RELIEF A FAILURE?

For those who can remember, it was in the depression of the 1930s that the government launched a "temporary" relief program to help people until they could get back to work.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a message to Congress, declared: "The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief. . .Continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration, fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, subtle destroyer of the human spirit."

Today, more than 30 years later - despite a huge Social Security program, boom times and widespread labor shortages - relief is flourishing as never before.

Furthermore, U.S. News & World Report points out that welfare "clients" are making protest marches to demand higher monthly allowances. The number of people on relief has passed 8.25 million.

That is 1 million more people than were on relief in the depression year of 1936. It is almost as many people as live in the entire State of Michigan; around twice as many as live in such states as Louisiana, Wisconsin or Virginia.

Also, U.S. News & World Report states that "antipoverty" projects enroll 1.1 million persons, and 1.1 million draw unemployment pay.

Taxpayers support relief "clients" with nearly 7 billion dollars a year in Federal, State and local funds. Much of the money goes to pay an expanding and increasingly militant relief bureaucracy. The relief empire continues to grow. In the past 10 years, despite record prosperity, people on relief have increased by 50 per cent and costs have risen twice as fast, by 119 per cent.

To many members of Congress and some officials of State and local governments, according to USN&WR, it seems obvious that relief is a giant failure.

Instead of temporary aid, relief has become a permanent way of life for millions. Second and third generations of families now live on relief. Children of relief families get married, then apply to the welfare office for aid as a new family unit. There are known situations that parallel this right here in Atchison.

Special aid for children is only one of the ways the original relief concept has been expanded until it how stretches from the cradle to grave. Here is what has happened:

Among the 8,250,000 persons in America receiving some form of public aid in February, 1967, latest month for which figures were available, 7,558,000 were under these four federal-aid programs - dependent children, 4,817,000; disabled persons, 592,000; needy blind, 83,300; needy aged, 2,066,000.

"What it amounts to," said a congressional critic, "is that the 75 million working people of America are supporting their own families as well as those of 9 or 10 million other Americans who either can't work or don't want to work."

Although numerous solutions are offered when taxpayers get their dander up, the real crux of the welfare situation gets down to one simple denominator - relief versus paycheck.

Congressional sources claim it is impossible for relief families with large broods of children to collect up to $6,000 or $7,000 a year in welfare. As one man said: "The mother gets an increase in her welfare check every time she has another child." So why should someone on relief take a job that will earn them less.

Further inequities are shown in this comparison: "A man and wife can work all their lives, paying the maximum in payroll withholding taxes into the Social Security Trust Fund, and upon retirement at age 65 collect $3,311 a year in Social Security benefits. If the man was the sole wage earner, the combined benefit for man and wife is $2,447 a year.

"A relief couple in New York, with six children - unemployed and contributing nothing to the productivity of the nation - can collect $4,713 a year in tax-free welfare benefits. If their rent is more than $91.50 a month, the welfare subsidy could go over $5,000 a year - double the retired couple's Social Security pension."

What bothers us is that we find numerous employers who say they cannot get men and women for the jobs that are available - and the bigges demand is for people in clerical and sales work, service trades, semiskilled and unskilled labor. Admittedly, the pay isn't the highest in some categories but there should be incentives for people to break away from the relief pattern, acquire work habits, and learn to become self-sufficient.

Within the welfare world, however, USN&WR reports pressure is building in the opposite direction. The National Welfare Rights Movement - an organization of welfare "clients" with headquarters in Washington - is demanding minimum relief payments of at least $3,150 a year per family, nationwide.

One thing for sure, the American taxpayers need to realize that relief is mostly a failure and force Congress to make the changes necessary to induce people on relief to seek some work or lose their welfare check. And, frankly, the welfare program stinks with politics even on the local level. - Atchison, Kansas Globe.

ACCIDENTS CAN BE PREVENTED

A decent harvest was anything but certain for the old time farmer. He was at the mercy of not only the weather but also pests, disease and soil erosion. Though he did his best, he could only wait and hope.

Times have changed. The modern American farmer employs good management, horsepower, fertilizer, chemicals, "can do" crop and livestock varieties, efficient drainage and irrigation systems. Little is left to chance or luck.

When it comes to safety, however, many farmers are still back in the dark ages. They trust to luck and don't plan ahead to prevent accidents. Each year, as a consequence, 8,000 farm people die, an additional 750,000 are injured and more than $2 billion is lost.

Farm accidents can be prevented - by farmers themselves. The same concepts you use to assure a successful harvest will work in accident prevention: Good planning, good practices and leaving as little as possible to luck.

PREDICTABLE LONG VOTE

The junior U.S. Senator from Missouri, Edward V. Long, had once again demonstrated where his interests are by voting against the public interest on the railroad back-to-work bill. Sen. Long voted four-square against the public by casting his ballot against the measure that would restore railroad service, thus ending the danger of crippling the national economy.

To his credit, Missouri' senior U.S. Senator, Stuart Symington, voted for the bill, as did the bootheel's U.S. Representative, Paul C. Jones.

After Sen. Long cast his vote this week against the public interest, Missourians have continued cause to question just which group the legislator-lawyer-cattleman from Bowling Green is really interested in representing.

Although it is unfair to second-guess his vote, at least some Missourians who have been shocked and displeased at recent disclosures on Sen. Long's activities could have safely predicted how he would vote on the railroad bill this week. - Daily Dunklin Democrat

EVER STAND AT ONE SIDE and watch a group of boys going away for induction or even a physical examination leading up to active military service? Maybe one of those boys was your son, your boy friend, or even your husband. We've done it many a time, beginning back in 1942 when we sent our sons away, and during the years of the war when we were on the draft board. It's not a happy moment for anyone, although there is a definite feeling of great pride that goes along with that deep depression. Monday afternoon we watched a group leave and when they were where they could not see, we saw tears that are shed every time a similar group goes away. We can go back almost fifty years when we boarded a train at Paris and all of our family, together with our girl friend, were at the depot to see us off. The only tears we saw were shed by our grandfather, a Civil War veteran. After we were out of sight, however, our mother and girl friend shed their tears just like the modern mothers and girl friends do. We have no doubt some of the men do, too, but they make strong efforts to keep anyone from seeing them. - Edgar Blanton in the Shelbina Democrat

NEW YORK (AP) — Every society has its rituals, and in the modern business office no ritual is more sacred than the staff conference.

Theoretically, a conference is held to solve problems or to consider new proposals to advance the firm. In fact, the conference at best is a way to pass the time between the morning coffee break and lunch; at its worst it serves as a torture session which enables the boss to torment his executives.

All conferences start in dramatic hopefulness. On the huge table before each seat is a shiny new memo pad and half a dozen freshly sharpened pencils.

The executives enter and greet each other as warily as professional boxers going into the ring. Who knows which will be carried hors de combat before the meeting is over?

If you have ever attended one of these office brain-drain sessions, you will find the following characters familiar:

The Eager Beaver— Inexperienced in office-jungle wiles, the junior executives leaps at the invitation of the boss to advance some new suggestions. He has half a dozen ready. But as he floats them up like toy balloons, the older executives sadistically shoot them down as if they were wielding elephant guns. In 15 minutes the junior executive ages 15 years.

The Treasurer — No matter what is suggested, he objects, "That'll cost too much." If he had his way, they'd throw out typewriters and go back to goose-quill pens because goose-quill pens are less expensive.

The doodler— He appears to be busy scribbling down notes on what the other executives say. What he is actually doing, however, is drawing pictures of glamorous girls— and adding long beards to their faces.

The Fugitive— By prearranged plan, he has his secretary enter and announce, "Detroit's on the phone, sir. It sounds important." He makes his escape and doesn't return until he is sure the conference is about ready to break up.

The Neanderthal Man— The senior vice president has been with the organization since the days when businessmen wore tall beaver hats. To each proposed change he has the same rebuttal? "We tried that in 1908, and it didn't work. We tried it also in 1917 and 1929 and 1935 and 1953, and it didn't work. So why try it again now?"

The Cheerleader— Never having had an idea of his own, he tries to lighten the mood by telling a few jokes all have heard before. The other executives have a feeling that before long this guy's white brick ranch house in the suburbs will have a "for sale" sign on it.

Mr. Big Himself— After a dreary hour of fruitless hemming, hawing and buck passing, the boss says, "Well, it doesn't look like we're getting very far today. Same place, same time tomorrow. Maybe by then one of you zipperheads will be able to come up with something more constructive than excuses."

That's the only sure thing about office staff conferences: As in drinking, one just leads to another. They're habit forming.

Can you imagine a person discovering that the vehicle he recently purchased is stolen and must be immediately returned to its rightful owner? Well, this dilemma has fallen on a great number of people and a good deal of money has been lost as a result.

There are, however, certain things that you can do to protect yourself against purchasing a stolen vehicle. The Missouri State Highway Patrol suggests the following: 1. Buy your vehicle from a reputable dealer or person. 2. Make sure there is a title issued for the vehicle you intend to purchase. Ask to see it. 3. Check to see if the title or assignment is in the name of the person or dealer who is offering the vehicle for sale. 4. Verify the serial numbers on the vehicle to be purchased with the serial numbers shown on the certificate of ownership.

It will pay you both in time and dollars to follow these suggestions on the Highway Patrol. At the same time you will be playing an invaluable role in combating auto theft by making it more difficult for the thieves to dispose of their stolen loot.

HOW ABOUT --"TOMORROW"?

And this "tomorrow" doesn't mean the day-after-today, but rather the far-off tomorrow -- those yet dim days when man will casually pop off to the moon or other far-flung planets. According to one men's wear authority, "There will be no more climate. The whole cvilized world will be temperature controlled. Therefore, cold weather clothes will disappear. The air will be dirt-filtered. And you will walk through an electronic room which will draw away the few remaining lint flecks which adhere to you. Paper money and coins will disappear and a worldwide credit number will be assigned to you, and attached or tattooed on you in some way. Pockets will disappear, as will handkerchiefs -- for the common cold will by then be cured."

COUP IN GREECE:
HISTORIC LESSON

The military take - over in Greece is a sobering reminder of a reality we tend to ignore in the heat of any East-West confrontation.

This is that the defeat of communism by arms in the field does not insure that an era of tranquility and progress will automatically descend upon the winner. The economic, political, and social problems that beset a nation, though they may be exploited by the Communists, exist independantly of that exploitation.

Greece was the scene of the first American challenge to the satellie-absorbing expansionism of the Soviet Union after World War II. Out of Greece's long travail against Communist guerrillas was born the Truman Doctrine and Marshall Plan and North Atlantic alliance. The successful outcome of the decision to aid Greece has inspired and guided U.S. foreign policy ever since.

Now, more than 20 years and $1.8 billion in military aid and $1.7 billion in economic aid later, the Greek army in a swift coup has instituted a dictatorship, arrested 5,000 potential opponents and banned the leading leftist party--all with the highest patriotic motives and in the belief that only such drastic steps would prevent the country from falling into the hands of the extreme left, if not of communism itself.

In Greece, an all-too-familiar story is being enacted. It is new proof that the struggle to arrive at a middle ground between a dictatorship of the left and one of the right can be as difficult and far longer lasting than a contest against armed aggression or subversion. Setback in that struggle can nullify everything gained by victory in a test of arms.

In Vietnam, we have not yet arrived at the second stage; the end to the first is nowhere in sight. East hopes that a military victory, or at least a cessation of hostilities, will thenceforth make South Vietnam safe for democracy have to be re-evaluated in the light of what has taken place in Greece, the ancient birthplace of democracy.

This is not cause for despair, however. South Korea, to name but one nation, shows that both wars -- the war of men's bodies and the other for their minds-- can be won.

Korea had its political troubles following the end of the war there. But it has now held its second free election since the upheaval which saw the ouster of Syngman Rhee. The country is soaring economically.

We often hear the complaint that we settled for less than "victory" in the shooting war in Korea. Yet the other war, the most important war of all, appears well on the way to success.

Unfortunately, just the opposite is the present situation in Greece. As for Vietnam, it will be a long time before we can even begin to talk about "victory" in either war.

Independent retailers who have sought space in shopping center complexes only to learn that their financial standing was not sufficient to meet the lease requirements should contact their nearest branch office of the Small Business Administration, the legislative staff of the National Federation of Independent Business advises.

Under a recent ruling by the SBA, a plan has been set up whereby certain qualified retailers can obtain SBA guarantees which would permit them to take advantage of locating in centers where adequate parking is provided plus other advantages.

Under the regulations, the SBA will under certain conditions guarantee such leases generally for not less than five years nor more than 20. The business must put in escrow with the agency a sum equal to one-fourth of a year's minimum rental. A service charge of not more than 2-1/2 per cent of the minimum yearly rent will also be required.

The SBA will either participate in guaranteeing such leases with surety companies, or will assume the entire guarantee.

Unavailability of space in shopping centers for smaller firms due to the insistence of developers and their financial backers that leases only be given to large corporate assets has been a constant source of continued complaints received by the Federation.

POPES' BIRTHPLACES

Concesio, in the Lombardy region of Northern Italy, was the birthplace of Pope Paul VI; it is only 40 miles from Sotto il Monte, where Pope John was born, the Catholic Digest states.

Doc. Duncan Says

Gramp, how long does you think it'l take Unk to go bankrupt policin the world and playin Santa Claws to it?

Si, that's sorter like the man on the plane. He woke up and ask his wife how long before ee gits to New York?

She sez we been her ten minits and I been trying to wake you up.

Bout all Unks got to do is wake up and he's there.

H. L. Hunt Says

STRETCHING ITS AUTHORITY

The U.S. Supreme Court is in recess now until fall, a fact which must cause many thoughtful Americans to breathe a sigh of relief. But the relief is premature. There is no evidence to indicate that when the Court resumes work there will be any chance in its policy of basing important decisions on vague implications read into the Federal Constitution by a majority of the Justices of the Court.

The list of such decisions by the Warren Court is long and disheartening. The Court, often by five-to-four decisions, has stretched its authority beyond what any objective observer would consider the breaking point.

Specifically, the Warren Court has denied to Congress powers long believed to be possessed by that body. It has reached out to rewrite statues in the way some Justices thought Congress should have written them in the first place. It has upset provisions of state constitutions approved by the voters of the states. It has based decisions upon sociological works instead of the law.

Our Constitution provides that this basic document can be amended only by the states. It provides also that all powers not specifically delegated to the Federal Government nor specifically prohibited to the states shall be "reserved to the states, or to the people."

The Supreme Court in the last dozen years has gone far toward drastically modifying this provision -- Article X -- of the Constitution. It seems set on destroying the provision. The Tenth Amendment can be saved only by action of Congress spurred on by the people. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- What the United States needs today is a giant Marshall Plan to rebuild the ghettos of our big cities and rehabilitate their people.

We spent several billion rebuilding the ruined cities of Europe after World War II and putting both our allies and our enemies back on their feet. It was a good investment. We still spend about three billion a year to battle Communism around the world.

Meanwhile, we have Negro insurrection in our major cities with effects worse than Communism, all because we refuse to remedy the basic causes -- poverty, slum housing, overcrowded schools, inadequate teachers, alcoholism, and crime. These are conditions which the Communist countries that we oppose abroad have remedied but which get progressively worse in America.

The chances of getting a Marshall Plan for America through Congress, however, are almost nil -- for two reasons:

1-The violence of the American Negro which has turned public sentiment against him. He is his own worst enemy. The more he wreaks vengeance on the white man, the more the white man, who is in a majority, turns against him.

2- The make-up of Congress which is elected by white, rural America, with the small towns holding control of the key committee chairmanships. Men like Rep. William Colmer of Mississippi, who heads the rules committee and can control which legislation reaches the House for a vote, is not going to help push a Marshall Plan for America. As a result of riots, more and more northern Congressmen are now living up with the south.

SLAPPING DOWN THE CITIES

Both points are illustrated by what happened in Congress last week. While Negro violence spread from Newark, to Plainfield, to Detroit, the House of Representatives laughed down a relatively small appropriation of $20,000,000 to fight slum rats, and earlier cut the model cities program in half while killing rent subsidies altogether.

In contrast, it voted $750,000 last week to study a canal between Pittsburgh and Lake Erie which almost no one except Rep. Mike Kirwan, D-Ohio, wants; earlier voted $10,000,000 to build a fancy fish aquarium for the District of Columbia which few people wanted; has voted many millions over the years to clean water hyacinths out of southern waterways because they clog the propellers of pleasure boats; allocated $20,000,000 to switch a food and drug laboratory from Beltsville, Md., to Madison, Wis., and earlier voted money for a cottonweed control station in the Mississippi district of Rep. Jamie Whitten and a peanut laboratory in Sen. Dick Russell's state of Georgia because these two powerful rural solons held up the farm bill appropriation until they got what they wanted.

Last week, in further contrast, the House voted an anti-riot bill which many Congressmen consider unconstitutional and which will do nothing to stop the basic cause of the race riots.

In view of the above, there is little chance of a Marshall Plan for America to bring better housing, new schools, better teachers and job training to the big cities. And probably there will be no chance as long as Negro demands are made at the point of the brick, the sniper's bullet, and the Molotov cocktail.

However, what the white rural Congress must realize is that people who have nothing to lose aren't scared of anything. So they'll continue fighting and rioting and brick-throwing until they've got something to lose.

AMBITION AND DIGNITY

Vice President Humphrey, who is LBJ's trouble-shooter on race relations, has been reminding Negro leaders that the Irish, the Jews, the Italians, and quite recently the Cubans migrated to this country and pulled themselves up to being leaders of the community without government grants; therefore, Negroes should do the same.

But history shows that when the Irish first invaded America there were race riots in New York and Philadelphia which made the Newark and Detroit riots look like Sunday school picnics. There were also serious Negro riots. Against 26 killed in Newark in 1967, there were 1,200 people killed in New York in 1862, because Negroes were blamed for the Civil War Draft Act.

History also shows that during 350 years of American slavery the Negro was kept in a state of bartered serfdom in which he lost the human qualities so necessary to taking an important place in modern society. He lost ambition and he lost dignity.

No human being could cherish ambition when he could look forward to nothing more than future years of slavery. And few men could keep their dignity when subject to the absolute order of other men who own them.

The Irish, the Italians, the other immigrants to this country threw off their smackles of serfdom several centuries before they came to this country. Pride and ambition drove them and their sons forward to becoming mayors of American cities, judges, Congressmen and presidents of the United States.

They had a long head start over the Negro. This is what some of our rural congressmen need to realize when they laughingly veto money to eradicate rats, or kill rent subsidies or ridicule the anti-poverty program, or hamstring the model cities project. These are just drops in the bucket toward a Marshall Plan for America so badly needed to remedy our most dangerous and depressing domestic problem.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

PETE (GO-TO-HELL) WEBER BACK AGAIN

Heavy Indictments of Congressional Kingmaker Sweats Some Solons on The Hill.

Washington, D.C.; - It's going to be a long, hot summer for some of the solons even in the cool air of The Hill - because of a heat wave the Justice Dept. has just unleashed in Newark, N.J. Some of the Congressmen from that State have been playing with a firebrand, otherwise known as Peter Weber, ex-pug, gay yachtsman, professional labor leader, promoter of camouflaging charities, Congressional kingmaker and, of course, the Local 825 Operating Engineers President and Business Manager who once told President Johnson's economic advisers to go to hell.

Just a few weeks ago, Peter Weber, always ready to throw money and manpower, trucks and caravans, loudspeakers and printed literature into campaigns of friendly Congressmen, stood with another labor leader, also under investigation, and chuckled at the futility and impotence of the government.

Now the "Federals" have hit Weber with a multi-count set of indictments for violating the Hobbs anti-terror, anti-extortion act and the Taft -Hartley Law.

Shaggy, 225-pound Weber is one of the most powerful figures in the Labor-managment arena of the $90-billion national heavy construction industry - and one of the most feared.

Grand Jury indictments charge him with threatening to provoke labor trouble, financial and economic disaster and other assorted pressure on major construction firms involved in building a petroleum products pipeline from Texas and Oklahoma to northern New Jersey. At the northern end, Weber hit a 90-mile strip. For the moment the details are not important except that they affected a $776,387 contract and allegedly considerable extortion rolling into many thousands. Also conspiracy with other co-defendants.

What is vital is that this man, friend and intimate companion of an aging mobster and extortionist, Joe Fay (imprisoned for extorting $238,000 from contractors) could remain in power for so long.

Vital is the fact that he could defy not only the White House in loud and brutal language but also his own International president Hunter Wharton - who supposedly outranks him. Wharton, an ice cream-eating, educated, 66-year-old "new breed" labor chief, comes from Carnegie Institute of Technology and last September was awarded an honorary law degree by Fordham University.

What is critical is that Weber could be sought out by Congressmen wanting support. Not too long ago he was part of a group which was set to run a banquet in honor of a U.S. Senator at which Gov. Romney was scheduled to speak. Weber and his colleagues vetoed Romney because they didn't like his politics. The dinner was postponed for reasons unrelated to the Romney incident.

What is strange is that this notorious man should not have been probed by his own movement. It was 15 months ago that this column - April 4, 1966 - reported a massive investigation of the pipeline construction. Many insiders knew that teams of FBI men, IRS accountants, Bureau of Labor-Management (Landrum - Griffin) compliance officers and lawyers of the Justice Dept. criminal division were ranging the land from Texas and Oklahoma to New Jersey investigating Weber. For over a year this column has been warning of the breaking scandal. Yet Weber ran high, took high office and a very handsome salary and expense account.

The new grand jury action is not the first. He is yet to be tried on a 1962 charge of violating the Taft-Hartley law for allegedly receiving payments from an employer with whom he negotiated for his men.

He had shares in two companies. Theoretically, therefore, he sat on both sides of the bargaining table. The charges then also included allegations that he had received almost $15,000 in profits, credit cards, services and five handsome automobiles.

Weber has had his local divided into an upper and lower class proletariat - A, B, etc. So are other Operating Engineers units. The men in the lower depths can vote but can't run for office.

Thus, the insiders say Weber and officials such as he elsewhere in the nation perpetuate themselves in office. There do not seem to be any standards to measure this Mr. Big. He is of the new and privileged class.

If the charges of the Newark Grand Jury are correct - and they are not lightly made for they are the result of a probe begun in January 1965 - the cost of Weber to the public is high, indeed.

The transmission of fuel is involved. In other areas public construction is involved. Federal men say that there have been times when one word from Weber tied up hundreds of millions of dollars of such construction.

Well, we'll soon see if the 225-pound Weber is bigger than the law and whether national lawmakers still believe he's a man for all political seasons.

Mrs. Michael Glenn Lee

Martin-Lee Vows Exchanged July 9 in Webster Groves

WEBSTER GROVES -- Candlelight illumined the setting July 9 in the First Methodist church when Miss Hallie Janice Martin became the bride of Michael Glenn Lee of Sikeston.

Miss Martin is the daughter of Mrs. George A. Martin and the late Mr. Martin. Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Lee, Sikeston.

The Rev. John W. Ward, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony. The couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with antique silver candelabra holding white cathedral tapers and two large baskets of white gladioli and mums.

Pre-nuptial music was provided by Mrs. J. Lawrence Jones, organist. She also accompanied Richard Mallette who sang "I Love Thee" and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee." As the couple knelt at the prieu dieu for the benediction, he also sang the "Lord's Prayer" by Malott.

To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," the bride approached the altar down the white carpeted aisle. She wore a floor - length gown of pure white crepe. The empress bodice featured a scalloped neckline and was lavishly trimmed with French re- embroidered Alencon lace. The long lace sleeves came to lily points over the hands and were closed with many self - covered buttons. A queen's wetteau train of Alecon lace, bordered by white crepe, floated from the shoulders into a full chapel train.

White sweetheart roses held her elbow - length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses. White peau de soie slippers and articles in keeping with the traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue completed the bridal attire.

Miss Marilyn Leuders served her friend as maid of honor. Miss Taffy Terwester and Miss Sandra Whitelock were bridesmaids. They wore floor - length gowns of maize silk organza over peau de soie. Featuring modified empire waistlines outlined with bands of embroidered roses and floor - length organza trains that fell gracefully from their shoulders.

They wore matching headpieces of stand - up tulle fastened to bandeaus of miniature pink roses. Each carried a cascade bouquet of roses matching those on their headpieces and completed their attire with matching shoes and lace gloves, a gift from the bride.

Attending Lee as best man was Michael Parker of Dexter. Groomsmen were Roger Rideout, Poplar Bluff, and Larry Smith of St. Louis, fraternity brothers of the groom.

Ushers were Glenn Alsup, Sikeston, cousin of the groom; Albert Baker, Cape Girardeau, and James Walling, St. Louis, brother - in - law of the groom and fraternity brother.

Men of the wedding party wore white formal tuxedoes and white carnation boutonnieres except the groom who wore a white butterfly rose.

They wore floor - length gowns of maize silk organza over peau de soie. Featuring modified empire waistlines outlined with bands of embroidered roses and floor - length organza trains that fell gracefully from their shoulders.

Danny Martin, nephew of the bride, served as candlelighter and Miss Kelly Martin, niece, passed the rice bags.

Mrs. Martin wore for her daughter's wedding a frock of rose - beige lace with a pink hat and accessories to match. Her corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Lee, mother of the groom, wore a two piece frock of mint green dacron crepe. A matching hat and bone accessories completed her ensemble. She wore a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship room where the bridal couple received their guests.

The bride's table held an all white five column wedding cake. The serving table was covered with a white damask cloth caught at intervals with small wedding bells. A crystal punch bowl graced one end of the table while the other held the silver coffee service. An arrangement of white Marguerite daisies centered the table. Serving were Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. Larry Martin, sisters-in-law of the bride. Serving at the guest register was Mrs. Albert Baker, sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee left following the reception for a honeymoon in Biloxi, Miss., and New Orleans. For traveling the new Mrs. Lee wore a white linen frock trimmed with re - embroidered roses, white accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live in Sikeston where the groom is on the staff of a radio station.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee were hosts at a rehearsal dinner Saturday evening at Perkins' Restaurant in Clayton, honoring their son and his fiancee, Miss Hallie Martin. Members of the wedding party were guests and were presented gifts from the bridal couple.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Among the out - of - town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Castor Alsup, Glenn Alsup, Miss Rosemary Alsup, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Carl Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chapman, all from Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baker, Cape Girardeau and Mr. and mrs. Clifton Jones, Greenville, Ill.

JUDY COTHERN will be presentation queen for class three, pony class for children, sponsored by Fabick Bros. Equipment Company, in the society horse show at 8 p.m. Saturday at the rodeo grounds. The show is sponsored by the Semo Mounted Patrol.

Animal Traps

There are three general types of animal traps. The enclosing trap catches the animal without hurting it; the arresting trap grips the animal and holds it, but does not kill it; and the killing trap is made to grip the animal, then kill it with a blow from an extra lever.

Mary McCoy To Marry Gordon McEntire

Miss Mary Inez McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melton McCoy, route one, will marry Gordon Lee McEntire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McEntire, Fresno, Calif., at 6 p.m. tonight at the First United Pentecostal church.

The Rev. Billie Butler will officiate.

Miss McCoy is employed at the Cream Castle.

McEntire is a graduate of Caruthers Union high school, Caruthers, Calif., and is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., for army basic training.

The couple will make their home in Fresno.

Trinity WMU Studies Communism

The Woman's Missionary Union of Trinity Baptist church met last Thursday night at the church with 17 members and two visitors, Mrs. Dan Jennings and Mrs. Frank Sisson, present.

Mrs. Milem Limbaugh presided and minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Each chairman gave a progress report. Committee reports on the new church building were given.

Events for the coming months are: Workers for camp will be needed Aug. 18. Woman's Missionary Society leadership course will be held at the First Baptist church Aug. 31. Season of Prayer for state missions will be observed Sept. 13-15 at the home of Mrs. Truman Bennett. The mission study book, "The Holy Spirit in Missions" by J. B. Lawrence will be given by Mrs. Jo Ann Lively. Six Baptist churches, Temple, Murray Lane, Miner, Fellowship, Morehouse and Trinity, will be represented in this mission study. The meeting was adjourned for the July WMS study.

Mrs. Sherman Grant, program chairman, introduced the study, "Facing the Communist Challenge in Cuba, Panama, and Indonesia." A world map, flash card, the Bible, and a flip chart were used by the following members. Mrs. Glen Peel, Mrs. A. M. Jackson, Mrs. R. H. Mackley, Mrs. A. J. Heuiser, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Marshall McGill. The group learned through the study that Communism seeks world domination, vows to eliminate religion, speaks untruthfully, breeds on hate, suspiciin, and chaos.

The study was dismissed by the reading of the prayer calendar.

Named Ginger Renee, the new daughter weighed seven pounds and is the couple's first child. Mrs. Wallace is the former Miss Gloria Jean Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Davis, Cape Girardeau. Wallace is assistant manager of Wallace IGA Foodliner in Oran, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy R. Wallace of Oran.

First Direct Cause

What is said to have been the first direct cause of the American Revolution was the Proclamation of 1763, which closed the territory west of the Allegheny Mountains to settlement and thus upset the hopes of settlers and land promoters.

ISC To Defend Tournament Title

12 Battle For Championship

Sikeston's 12th Annual Little League baseball tournament for nine and ten year olds opens Monday at Puckett field with Ilmo-Scott City the defending champ.

Two Sikeston teams, the Musial League All-Stars and Aces along with 10 other area teams will battle for the title.

Games are slated for every night next week with the championship game set for 8:30 p.m. Saturday. First games each night begin at 7 p.m.

Trophies will be awarded for the first four place winners. Two outstanding player awards will be presented. Last Year's winners were Randy Leiner of Ilmo-Scott City's All-Stars and Fred Copeland of New Madrid.

Ilmo-Scott City captured the championship contest last year, downing New Madrid 7-0. Sikeston placed third with an 8-6 win over Oran.

Ilmo-Scott City and New Madrid are in the same bracket this year. They will meet in the semi-final round of the tournament and have no chance of meeting in the finals. Sikeston's All-Stars and Oran meet in the opener on Tuesday night. One will be eliminated.

Bloomfield and the Sikeston Aces open the tournament Monday at 7 p.m., followed at 8:30 p.m. by the game between Chaffee and New Madrid.

HITTING - Joe Pepitone, Yankees, hit two home runs as New York won the opening game of a doubleheader from Minnesota 6-1.

PITCHING - Bill Monbouquette, Yankees, retired 21 batters in a row, pitching nine scoreless innings in New York's second game with the Twins, but Minnesota won 3-2 in 18 innings.

Cubs Fall 4-2

Cards Increase Lead; Javier Gets 3 RBI's

ST. LOUIS (AP) - "I was feeling lousy before the game," Julian Javier said after he hit a two-run homer and a double for three runs in the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night. The Cards now have a two-game lead over the Cubs at the top of the National League standings.

"I was feeling so bad Orlando Cepeda gave me one of those inhalers with ammonia or whatever it is to wake me up," the second baseman went on. "It just shows you, when you feel good you have a lousy day and when you feel lousy you have a good day."

Good day indeed. In the first inning Lou Brock singled off loser Rich Nye, then stole second. Javier doubled him home.

Brock again singled to lead off the fifth and stole his 35th base. Javier followed with a two-run blast to left center.

"When Brock is running," Javier said. "you have a better chance to hit because he opens up the infield."

Brock did some more running in the seventh when he opened up with a triple and scored on an infield out.

Nelson Briles chalked up his fifth victory as he kept the Cubs under control through the first five innings before they scored off him.

It was only his second start of the season but the righthander figures he's really been a starter all year long.

"The only difference between staring and relieving really is that when you relieve you have to get the first man you face out," Briles said. "But after that you're actually the starter because you start the next innings after that."

Bob Veale, weary from having struggled through a complete game just five days ago, discovered Wednesday night that he just couldn't turn the trick twice in succession.

With Juan Pizarro waiting in the wings, it couldn't have mattered less.

Veale, still relishing his first complete game in 16 starts on July 21, held Los Angeles at bay for 7 1-3 innings in the Pirates' 4-2 victory Wednesday. But then the familiar signs of non-completion set in and in came Pizarro to protect the big lefthander's 12th victory against fou defeats.

Pizarro should go into the protection business. He came in with one man on and two balls on Ron Fairly. After completing the walk, he got down to business. Al Ferrara and Jim Lefebvre went down swinging, ending that particular threat, mild as it was.

And in the ninth? First there was Bob Bailey. He took a third strike. Then there was Wes Parker. He swung at a third one. And last there was Jeff Torborg a swinger, but not a hitter.

In other National League action, Cincinnati bounced Atlanta 7-1 and rain washed out the second game of a scheduled doubleheader, Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2 and New York bombarded San Francisco 11-5.

Willie Stargell homered for the Pirates in the fourth inning, but the Dodgers came back to tie the score 2-2. Manny Mota singled in the run that broke the tie in the sixth and Maury Wills walked, stole second, went to third on an error and scored on a forceout for the final run.

Deron Johnson cracked a two-run homer, sparking the Reds' victory after Phil Niekro had held Cincinnati to one bunt single through the first six innings. Mel Queen, 10-5, was the winner.

Joe Morgan's single drove in the second run in a ninth inning rally that sent the Astros past the Phils. Jackie Brandt's single earlier had tied the game after singles by Dave Adlesh and Bob Aspromonte.

Cleon Jones, who has been having a terrible time hitting the ball all year, broke loose for a homer and five runs batted in against the Giants and Bud Harrelson had four hits and two RBIs for the Mets.

Case Of The Five Holdouts

By the Associated Press

The case of the five holdouts of the Cleveland Browns, which has stirred the interest of most everyone in pro football, may switch from an all-for-one and one-for-all to a one-for-me situation Friday.

The case pits Art Modell, owner of the Browns, against John Wooten, a guard from Colorado, Leroy Kelly, a running back from Mortan State, John Brown, a tackle from Syracuse, Mike Howell, a defensive back from Grambling and Sid Williams, a linebacker from Southern University.

Their attorney is scheduled to meet Friday with counsel for Modell in a second attempt to reach a settlement. The five were scheduled to report to training camp last Saturday, but didn't show. They face $100-a-day fines until they report.

The key issue appears to be the demand of the five that all of them must be traded if one is. Modell has said he would not agree to such a stipulation of vital concern to every front office.

In the meantime, halfback Donny Anderson, a bonus baby from Texas Tech, worked out with the champion Green Bay Packers for the first time since being released from Army reserve training. He is expected to challenge Elijah Pitts for the half-back post vacated by the departure of Paul Hornung.

71st Frontier Days At Cheyenne, Wyo.

DENVER -- More than 400 of the nation's top rodeo cowboys were on hand Tuesday for opening go-rounds of the 71st annual Frontier Days at Cheyenne, Wyo., where some $70,000 in prize money awaits winners this year. The rodeo runs through Sunday afternoon, July 30.

Many contestants pulled into Cheyenne from four other major rodeos over the weekend, where a total $105,038 was up for grabs. Running almost concurrently, contests in Nampa, Ida., Salinas, Calif., and Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, ended from 24 to 48 hours before the start of competition in Frontier Park.

The professional Rodeo Cowboys Association here said big money winners at the quartet of rodeos were Clyde Vamvoras, 25, Burkburnett, Tex., Junior Garrison, 29, Marlow, Okla., Richard Walker, 23, Tilden, Tex., and Olin Young, 30, Peralta, N.M.

Vamvoras, already leading for 1967's bareback bronc riding title, won $2,282 in his event at Salinas and Ogden, shoving his bid for the championship to $15,889.

Garrison, defending national calf roping champion, snared $2,329 during Ogden and Salt Lake City. he's running fourth for this year's roping crown, with a current $12,460.

Walker, national high school calf roping champ in 1961, won $2,636 competing at Salinas, Ogden and Salt Lake City. His new money moved him up into fifth place in the event's 1967 pro title picture.

Young, running third for the year's calf roping crown, earned $1,990 for second place finishes at Ogden and Salt Lake. He was the steer roping winner at Frontier Days last year.

In brief review of other rodeo title races prior to competition at Cheyenne, Larry Mahan, 23, Brooks, Ore., the 1966 all-around champion cowboy, came off the injured list to win $1,026 in bareback bronc riding at Salinas and Ogden.

Nursing a broken instep since July 1 when a bull stepped on him during a rodeo at St. Paul, Ore., Mahan competed with his foot in a cast and bounced his 1967 winnings to $30,427. The R.C.A. said it was an all-time money record for this time of year.

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) - Two regulars on the U.S. baseball team in the Japan-American Games here played in the College World Series last month. They are second baseman Mike Lisetski of Rider college and first baseman Mark Marquess of Stanford.

Red Sox Hold Down Second

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Andrews had an idea and also a solution in case it didn't work. Happily it worked.

There were men on first and third with two out in the Boston sixth inning Wednesday night with Andrews at the plate. He bunted.

By the time surprised California third baseman Woody Held fielded the ball Andrews was on first and Reggie Smith was home with the third run of the inning to tie the game 4-4.

The Red Sox went on to score three more times in the inning for a 7-4 lead en route to a 9-6 victory.

"It was my own idea," Andrews said. "If I would have popped it up, I would have just kept running."

While Andrews was outsmarting the Angels, Washington was beating Kansas City 6-3 and New York split with Minnesota, winning the first game 6-1 and losing the nightcap 3-2 in 18 innings.

The Cleveland at Chicago game was rained out. Detroit and Baltimore were not scheduled.

Asked if he was thinking about bunting with Andrews up, Boston Manager Dick Williams replied:

"No. He caught me just like he caught Woody Held."

The Red Sox, who stayed ahead of the Angels in second place with the victory which snapped California's seven-game winning streak, got their first run in the seventh on Tony Conigliaro's double and George Scott's triple.

Marcelino Lopez then relieved George Brunet and was greeted by Rico Petrocelli's sacrifice fly. Smith singled and pinch hitter Norm Siebern got aboard on an error before pinck hitter Dalton Jones flied out, setting up Andrews' bunt.

Joe Foy followed the bunt with an infield hit, loading the bases, and Carl Yastrzemski doubled in three runs.

Boston, which scored one run in the fourth, added insurance tallies in the eighth on consecutive homers by Conigliaro and Scott.

Jose Cardenal and Woody Held each drove in two runs for California-Cardenal with a homer and single and Held with a homer.

Joe Pepitone drove in three runs with two homers and Steve Whitaker two with a homer and single in New York's first game victory. Minnesota got its run on Bob Allison's leadoff homer in the first inning.

The nightcap threatened to go forever until Rod Carew walked in the 18th inning, stole second, went to third on Yankee catcher Jake Gibbs' bad throw and scored on Rich Rollins' infield hit.

Bill Monbouquette pitched nine innings in relief for the Yanks, retiring the first 21 batters he faced before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the 16th. Jim Merritt went the first 14 innings for the Twins.

Home runs by Frank Howard and Ken McMullen helped Joe Coleman, 8-6, with his fourth straight game for Washington. Howard's homer was his 26th.

RELOCATION NOTICE

Residents of Sikeston and Salcedo Area affected by the construction of Route Y, Scott County are eligible for relocation advisory assistance according to the Missouri State Highway Commission.

Purpose of this relocation assistance program, the Commission said, is to provide advisory help in relocating people who must move because of acquisition or clearance of rights - of - way for Federal-Aide Highways. The assistance does not include financial aid.

The assistance is available to eligible individuals, families (including tenants), business concerns (including operation of a farm), and nonprofit organizations.

To administer the program the Highway Commission has established a relocation advisory assistance staff in the Highway Department's state headquarters in Jefferson City and in each of the Department's ten district offices.

Department personnel in these offices maintain lists of properties for sale or rent. These lists are compiled from newspapers, real estate brokers, and other sources. Any follow-up is handled through the person who lists the property so the Highway Department does not infringe on real estate transactions.

Persons who are eligible for the assistance are offered the aid by the time the negotiations start on acquiring their property for the highway.

Area residents desiring further information may contact W. D. Carney, the Highway Department's District Engineer at Sikeston, or V. Allan Hubbard, right - of - way agent in charge of the district's relocation advisory assistance.

the restaurant menus.

Many of these delicacies cannot be recaptured in the Midwest for obvious reasons, but a featured dessert in the Florida Keys can be concocted to bring not only a delicious dessert from a city of charm but a spark of that charm into homes of the Midwest.

From a Key West restaurant comes this recipe for Key lime pie:

KEY LIME PIE

Make the pie shell with graham crackers.

1-1/2 cups of graham crackers
Dash of cinnamon
Level tablespoon of sugar
Pinch of salt
1/4 to 1/2 cup of butter

Use enough butter to moisten and shape the pie shell from this.

6 eggs
1 can sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup lime juice

Beat the yolk of six eggs and the white of one until thick. Add the condensed milk and beat again. Add the lime juice and beat until thick. Beat the five remaining egg whites until dry and fold in the mixture. Pour into a pie shell. Separate two eggs, beat the whites with two tablespoons of sugar until stiff and forms peaks, then spread on the top of the pie and brown in the oven at 350 degrees F. Makes two nine-inch pies.

WALTER RAYBURN, a member of Sikeston Order of Eastern Star, chapter 137, was honored at a meeting of the Elda chapter of OES of Illmo. He was presented a certificate of honorary membership by the worthy matron, Mrs. Rodney Waddle. This award was in appreciation of his services to the chapter.

Too Good to Be True

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - John Monroe Osborn says he was very puzzled when authorities at the state prison in Jefferson City released him.

He didn't ask questions and returned to his parents home in Springfield.

His attorney, Charles A. Moon, said the 21-year-old Osborn was told Tuesday that his two three-year sentences on burglary and stealing charges had been commuted by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

An investigation later revealed a snafu in the records at the penitentiary. Osborn should not have been released.

When he found out, Osborn decided to return voluntarily.

She hopes to be able to come home a week or 10 days after the surgery.

Key West World Apart of U.S.

By Carol Miller

"It's rich in old-world charm, steeped in the lore of island people, and endowed with an exciting history of rum runners, pirate ships and Cival War intrigue." That is the way a travel pamphlet describes Key West, Fla. . .to others it is simply fun, fabulous and fascinating.

Only 90 miles from Havana, Cuba, Key West is reached from Miami by 159 miles of the Overseas Highway, a section of U.S. 1 and one of the longest over-water roads in the world, through marshalands, islands and water. Forty-two bridges, one over seven miles long and another 75 feet above the Atlantic Ocean, connect Key West with the mainland.

The second oldest city in Florida (St. Augustine is older), Key West was Florida's largest city when Miami was an Indian village. In 1822 Commodore David Porter established a naval station there as a base against pirate operations. With the defeat of the pirates the keys were free to be settled.

Nineteen twelve brought the establishment of Henry Flagler's sea-going railroad which opened the keys to development and recreational uses. Hurricane damage in 1935 closed the railroad and then the right-of-way and bridges were taken over by the federal government. The road opened in 1938 at a cost of $5 million.

Once one of the poorest cities per capita in the United States (1933) and once the richest city per capita (1840's), Key West is the southermost city in the conTinental United States which affords it a semi-tropical climate. It has never had a frost - record temperatures registered 89 degrees (1956) and 41 degrees (1886).

The finest fishing, especially big-game fishing, in the country is to be found in the Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic waters off the shores of Key West and the other Florida keys. The waters yield tarpoon, barracuda, amberjack, dolphin, sailfish and others and the only living coral reef in North American waters is five miles off shore of the island that measures 1-1/4 miles wide by 4-1/2 miles long and houses 40,000 people.

Key West is the only southern city that has always flown the Union flag. It was a military and naval station during the Mexican War and has been a naval base in every succeeding war.

Sporting a rocky coastline and weathered homes, Key West resembles a New England town with Bahamian architecture. Ship carpenters, using wooden pegs instead of nails built many of the older homes of cedar, cypress and mahogany. Key West contrasts strongly with the steel and glass cities of the mainland.

The best way to see the sights of the city and capture its charm is to ride the conch train which covers 14 miles of old and new Key West including the Little White House, shrimp fleet, naval station, U.S. submarine beds, turtle kraals, gold coast, Audubon house, and the southernmost point in the continental United States.

One of the prize attractions of the tour is the Spanish-colonial mansion of Nobel Prize winner Ernest Hemingway. He purchased the house in 1931 and maintained it until his death in Ketchum, Idaho, July 2, 1961.

The house was built in 1851 and contains furniture, rugs and mementos collected from around the world, especially Spain, by the author.

In Key West Hemingway wrote For Whom the Bells Tolls, The Green Hills of Africa, and A Farewell to Arms.

Exotic, tropical trees and flowers, year-round water sports, excellent tourist facilities, and an extensive commercial fishing industry has made Key West the vacation land for kings and presidents and tourists and the inspiration for creative men like Hemingway.

One of the outstanding attractions is the unusual foods which, like the town, have a fresh, exciting charm. Turtle steaks, conch chowder, hot bollos and Key lime pie grace

Water Desalting Plant Dedicated

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A water desalting plant that will take city drinking water from the sea has been officially dedicated by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey but it still is not in full operation.

Preparations are under way for the 30-day test during which the plant will be required to operate at full capacity — 2.6 million gallons a day — for a month before it is accepted by the Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission.

"This plant demonstrates we are putting science and technology to work for man's living rather than for man's dying," Humphrey said Thursday before pushing a button that sent desalted water in a display 75 feet into the air over the Atlantic surf.

Humphrey said that by 1980 nuclear-powered plants capable of pumping a billion gallons of fresh water daily at 10 cents a thousand gallons will be operating.

Gentlemen:

Are you willing to stand by and watch your right to manage your business being taken away from you? What are you doing to help correct the abuses of an NLRB which is regularly favoring unions and taking away more and more management prerogatives? Or to call a halt to ever - increasing government regulations and restrictions on your business?

What can you do about it?

The Southern States Industrial Council has a positive program to stop this erosion of your management rights, and revitalize the free enterprise system. The Council is waging an aggressive educational campaign for responsible government and sound economy.

It is increasingly hard to find an organization that is able and willing to disagree with the Federal colossus and press for free enterprise solutions to social and economic problems. The Council has proven it is effective, has won respect for its work in the Congress. However, if the trend to usurp your right to manage your business is to be stopped, the Council must have your support, and that of every businessman who believes in private enterprise and responsible government. Individually we cannot do much, but by united action we can accomplish what is needed.

I would like to urge you to financially support the Southern States Industrial Council and its program for responsible government and a healthy economy.

Please send your check today. It will be acknowledged as membership dues and is tax deductible as a business expense.

Sincerely yours,
William Lowndes

WITH U. S. COMBAT AIR FORCES, Vietnam -- U. S. Air Force Staff Sergeant Bertis D. Blackburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertis D. Blackburn of 312 Heath St., Sikeston, Mo., was a winner in the 1966 Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge letter writing contest.

Sergeant Blackburn, who is assigned at Da Nang AB, Vietnam, received an honor certificate for his entry on the subject "Defending Freedom Safeguards America."

The sergeant wrote, in part, "If we do not stop the enemy as far from our shores as possible we will, in a few short years, no longer hear the question 'Why fight so far from home,' for the fighting will surely be upon our own shores."

A member of the Pacific Air Forces, Sergeant Blackburn is a computer maintenance technician at Da Nang.

The Freedoms Foundation contest was part of the organization's 18th annual awards program to recognize unusual understanding and appreciation of the American way of life.

Sergeant Blackburn has been serving in Vietnam since May. Previously he was assigned at Hamilton AFB, Calif.

A 1954 graduate of Sikeston High School, he also attended Southeast Missouri Teachers College and Southern Baptist College, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Facial Pits Identify Poisonous Vipers

COLUMBIA -- Outdoor activities may bring pleasure to many, but to almost 7,000 Americans a year they bring extreme pain and in instances death!

In an article titled "Pitfalls in Treating Pit Vipers," in the August issue of Medical Times Magazine, Dr. Henry M. Parrish, of the school of medicine, University of Missouri, sounds a clarion call to physicians with limited experience in treating poisonous snake bites.

Pit vipers inflicted almost 98 per cent of the poisonous bites suffered last year, with coral snakes and captive foreign venomous snakes accounting for the remaining 2 per cent.

With the exception of Alaska, Hawaii, and Maine, one or more pit vipers is found in every state in the Union. Native pit vipers include large copperheads, rattlesnakes, cottonmouths, pigmy rattlesnakes, and massasaugas.

The ability to distinguish a poisonous snake from a harmless one is most important.

To identify a pit viper, Dr. Parrish advises to look for "a pit located between the eye and nostril on each side of the head. Pit vipers also have ollipitical pupils and two well - developed fangs which protrude from their maxillac when their mouths are opened. Moreover, a pit viper has a single row of subcaudal plates just below the anal plate on the underside of its belly.

"By way of contrast, harmless snakes do not have facial pits; they have round rather than ellipitcal pupils; they have small teeth but not fangs; and they have a double row of subcaudal plates."

Jet Streams Credited for Cool Summer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been a comparatively cool and wet summer over much of the nation thus far, all because of those fickle jet streams, the weather experts say.

Despite some occasional hot and steamy days, more wet and relatively cool weather is anticipated at least through mid-August.

Why the jet streams act as they do is almost as much of a mystery to the Weather Bureau as it is to the man in the street buttoning up his raincoat against a late afternoon thundershower.

"They're never normal," one official says in describing them as a major study area. "We don't know the full answers."

The experts now are working on the theory the jet streams—the upper air wind patterns above 10,000 feet— are affected in some way by ocean water temperatures as well as ground temperatures. In turn, it is believed, they have some effect on surface temperatures.

Weather researchers believe feedback is involved and note that if the jet streams make it rain, it is likely to keep raining.

The Northeast drought is now a classic example. That lasted for five years but the Weather Bureau now is cautiously predicting an ample supply of water from Virginia to New England this year.

Basically, the country's weather now is affected by two jet streams.

One flows from Alaska and northwest Canada over the Great Lakes region and then toward the Northeast. Its lower limit is generally near the Chicago-northern Indiana area, more southerly than normal.

In the South another jet stream dances in from the Gulf of Mexico, and turns in through the Southwest and Texas before heading east from about Kansas.

In between, there is what the experts call a conference where storms are generated over a wide area.

THESE CHILDREN HAVE EVERYTHING

The King had been gone for many long months traveling in the farest reaches of his kingdom. Now he was coming home, home to the little prince, his only and dearly loved son, who had been left in the care of doctors, nurses and tutors. Every provision had been made for his comfort, happiness and well-being, and the king could hardly wait to see his dearly loved child.

A cloud of dust formed on the horizon. "He comes to meet me!" thought the king, but when the panting horses drew up, it was only one of the tutors.

"Sire, I bring you wonderful news of the prince's progress. See! Here are his copybooks - such a fair, round hand! Here are his essays - such comprehension, such a grasp of life at such an early age!"

"Yes, yes," said the king testily, "this is splendid. You have done well. But it is my son I wait to see, not his copybooks."

On they went until another cloud of dust resolved into his doctors. "How he has grown," they said, "what stature and nobility of bearing."

"Yes, yes, yes," said the king, "but where is my son?"

The last to arrive was the old nurse. "He was such a good boy, sire," she said. "So obedient, so loving, so . . ."

"Was? . . ." cried the king. "He was? Where is my son?"

"Alas, He is dead, sire."

This is not just a fairy tale. Its counterpart is found in thousands of American homes this Mother's Day.

The other day a mother sat in court where her 17-year-old son was being arraigned on charges of drug pushing and possession.

In utter bewilderment she said, "I canot understand it. We gave that boy everything."

And it was quite true, and is true for thousands of teen-agers. Parents strain their resources to provide education, dental care, medical care, money, a car, resort vacations, clothes, hi-fis, tape recorders, separate telephones, color TV and what they will, yet never in the history of this country have there been such shocking statistics to do with juvenile delinquency and youthful crime, including armec robbery, rape and murder - and this at all levels of society.

"We gave him everything," yet somewhere along the way, the child was lost, irretrievably. Could it be that we are giving them everything except what they really want and need?

Mental hospitals and psychiatric wards are full of desperately sick children. Doctors, clergymen, Salvation Army officers, teachers and social workers know of the deeply disturbed children, near to complete withdrawal or collapse through the flagrant acts of cruelty and hatred perpetrated in the home by parents toward each other or toward the children.

These pershaps are extreme cases. But the damage is no less when it is the result of giving the child everything except the stability of a warm loving family life and the security of a realistic and living faith in God, whatever one's faith or creed.

Could it be that the rebellion of youth is the expression of their resentment of the fact that they have been deprived of basic guidance for living, of example and precept in the home and a love greater than that which can only give toys as one generation's legacy to another? There is more to parenthood than that. There must be more for the sake of the children of tomorrow.

100 TO 1 -- THEY'RE IN THE BAG

The good old days when homemakers bought beans in 100-pound bags are long gone. Bags of beans are farc more likely to be of 1, 2 or 4-pound size today.

Even so, there are hundreds of pounds of dry beans to be found in food stores nowadays. Red kidney beans, Navy (pea) beans and pinto beans are quite abundant this summer, according to the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture -- and are expected to be wearing their usually low price tags.

One reason homemakers used to buy such large bagsful of beans was that they kept so well. They still do, of course. As long as dried beans are kept in air-tight and moisture-proof containers (film bags, glass jars, etc.) they will keep for months. Such containers are good protection from insects or other contamination, too.

These unbulky, lightweight modern film bags full of dry beans make an excellent staple item for campers and other vacationers. People on the move might find the time required to restore moisture a bit inconvenient. But beans have always been a favorite of folks who enjoy the great outdoors, so this can't really be a problem.

Economy is another strong point in dry beans' favor. A pound of these nutritious nuggets will make 6 to 8 servings -- quite a budget-stretcher, especially at the attractive prices expected this summer.

Police Assist In Break-in

WICHITA (AP)— Police were summoned to a Wichita hospital Monday night to participate in a break-in.

Officers said a patholigist was unable to locate the keys to medical instrument cases. He called police and asked them to break the glass out of the front of one of the cases.

The doctor then reached inside, selected a medical hammer, and methodically smashed the glass front of all of the other cases in the room.

"A fine thing," police quoted the doctor as saying: "I pay $800,000 in salaries around here and can't even find the keys to the place."

Many Waterways

Canada's 3,845,744 square miles contain a major portion of the world's fresh water, according to recent research. No other country has so many inland waterways.

Car Topics For Lady Pedal Pushers

PRE-VACATION CAR CHECK

One of the classic cases of car trouble is the story of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's limousine en caravan on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. The First Lady's car stopped, and so, therefore, did the entire entourage. According to reports, it was all due to a dirty gasoline filter.

Shame on someone! Fortunately, our First Lady was not, by the slightest stretch of the imagination, stranded. But others of us will be less fortunate this summer. Hauling trailers, boats and kids, we'll find ourselves stuck in the middle of Lincoln Tunnel, half way up a mountain and in the depths of the Everglades - all because somebody forgot to have something or other checked before we left home.

Fortunately, this is becoming less of a blight on happy vacations as our cars get better, our mechanics better trained and equipped, and we drivers become more conscious of preventive rather than corrective service on our cars.

Other than running out of gas, for which there has not yet been a plausible explanation, most vacation car troubles can be prevented with five basic ahead-of-time services.

1) Cooling system. . .have the radiator flushed and refilled with new coolant if you have not done so within the past 12 months.

2) Engine. . .have it tuned if this has not been done within the past 12 months. Or have it checked if it has passed the six month mark.

3) Brakes. . . have them adjusted if necessary, and if there is any doubt about the condition of the lining, have that checked too, and replaced if necessary.

4) Steering . . . be sure there is no excessive play in the linkage. It is a good idea to have wheel alignment and balance checked, too.

5) Chassis lube. . .this encompasses a lot more than the old fashioned "grease job". It gives your service man a chance to look at the battery, lights, wipers, tires, shock absorbers, belts, exhaust system and the general overall condition of the car. Also, this is the right time to change the oil and filter. Sound like a big job? Not so, because many of these are routine checks which should be done periodically anyway. And if you find you are about to need a new tire, windshield wiper or radiator hose, where better to have the work done than in your own home town?

Sew Leaves Together

Tailor ants make nests of leaves bound together. Worker ants draw the foliage together for sewing by lining the edge of one leaf and gripping an adjoining one with their manibles. Then other workers rush forward, each with an ant larva in its jaws and these grubs exude threads of sticky silk that bind the leaves together.

Now there is a vitamin B lipstick for girls with anemic boyfriends.

The Warren Report

No Evidence That Lonely Oswald Had Any Help

Lee Harvey Oswald: The lone, withdrawn child . . .The lone reader of Marxist thunder in hushed libraries . . .The lone rejecter of his homeland . . The lone prodigal returned to friendless frustration . . .But, hunched in the depository window, still alone?

The Warren Commission never said: Lee Harvey Oswald, alone, murdered John F. Kennedy, period.

It actually said: "The commission has found no evidence that Oswald was involved with any person or group in a conspiracy . . If there is any such evidence, it has been beyond the reach of all the investigative agencies and resources of the United States and has not come to the attention of the commission."

There the matter has not rested.

In New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has claimed to have found what the commission did not: conspiracy. On the bookshelves of the nation are volumes that claim the same: that Oswald is innocent, that he was a fall guy, that he was involved with Jack Ruby or Bernard Weissman or the FBI or Communists or Texas oil interests or racists.

A court of law will decide in New Orleans. But the other versions of conspiracy are not and quite possibly never will be before a judge and jury. But they are before the jury of public opinion. They will be for some time.

The Warren Commission, unfortunately, did not answer all the questions. Some, however, are probably unanswerable. But some are not questions at all. They are innuendoes - false scents that confuse the hunt for truth.

What other construction can put, for instance, on Mark Lane's innuendo that there might have been a connection between Ruby and the right wing of Dallas?

The commission made an hour-by-hour probe of Ruby's actions from Nov. 21 to Nov. 24, 1963 to determine if he was involved in a plot.

"The commission found that Ruby's activities and associations were innocent," Lane writes in "Rush to Judgment".

"An objective analysis of the record might yield a somewhat different evaluation of Ruby's conduct."

Lane mentions an instance on Nov. 21 when the commission had said Ruby "visited with a young lady who was job hunting in Dallas."

"Contrary to the commission's unassuming summation," says Lane, "Ruby did not merely visit with a young lady who was job hunting. Commission Exhitit 2270, an FBI report of an interview with Connie Trammel, the young lady in question, divulges the fact that Ruby drove with her to the office of Lamar Hunt, the son of H. L. Hunt."

Lane drops the matter at that point. Ruby is left at the office of Lamar Hunt, whose Texas-rich father is a strong supporter of ultraright causes. The reader of "Rush to Judgement" is left to make what he may of this suggested link between Ruby and the Dallas right wing. For clarification, however, he might turn to a commission exhibit. Not 2270. Try 2291.

It also is a statement by Miss Trammel, now Mrs. Penny, to the FBI. In it she says she once had a long talk with Ruby when she and some classmates from the University of Texas visited his Dallas strip club. Ruby asked if she wanted to work for him. She didn't. But Ruby kept asking. The last time was Nov. 21, 1963.

During the phone conversation, Miss Trammel mentioned she was seeking a public relations job at a bowling alley she had read Lamar Hunt owned.

She had an appointment to see him that very day. She said she didn't have a car. Ruby offered to drive her to the bank building where Hunt had his office, since he had business to transact at the bank.

"During the trip . . .to the bank, Ruby seemed impressed with the amount of money that Lamar Hunt had made," Miss Trammel told the FBI, " and had mentioned that he knew most of the prominent people in Dallas . . .but did not know Lamar Hunt."

Ruby left her at the ground floor elevator. He never did get to go up and meet Hunt. Miss Trammel didn't get the job. But the reader might get a clearer picture of the Ruby-Hunt "association" from Commission Exhibit 2291 than from "Rush to Judgement."

Such handling of commission evidence by the critics happens too often to be mere oversight.

Consider the alleged meeting in Ruby's Carousel Club Nov. 14, 1963 between Ruby, J.D. Tippitt, the officer the commission said was shot by Oswald, and Bernard Weissman. Weissman was the young Easterner who had helped place an ad critical of Kennedy in the Dallas Morning News the day of the assassination.

Weissman had arrived in Dallas Nov. 4 to try and set up a new conservative party by infiltrating right-wing groups - one of which he said never accomplished more than "running around burning baskets from Yugoslavia."

Lane, himself, had told the commission about the meeting. He declined to reveal his source for the story because the source had not given him permission to do so.

"But," he wrote in his book, "if the commission had wanted his name, it need only have asked one of its witnesses, Thayer Waldo, a reputable journalist. Counsel, however, did not ask Waldo about the meeting."

Not in so many words. For how was counsel to know what Thayer Waldo knew since Lane had refused to tell the commission, much less counsel, about Waldo or any other source?

But at the end of Waldo's interrogation, which covered other matters, counsel did ask if he could add any information about anything else. Waldo said no, he couldn't.

If not with Waldo, the commission did inquire into the Carousel meeting with other witnesses. One was Larry Crafard, a carnival worker hired by Ruby to do odd jobs around the club. The commission volumes have a statement by Crafard in which he told the FBI he recognized a picture of Weissman as a man he had seen at the club "on a number of occasions."

Lane has this quote. He does not mention that Crafard also told the FBI he had a "very vague recollection" of having heard Ruby mention the name Weissman, that he believed Weissman was a Dallas detective whose first name may have been Johnny and that he "could have my recollection of a Mr. Weissman mixed up with some one else."

Lane does not mention that Crafard thought Weissman was a "white male American" 38 to 43 years of age. Bernard Weissman was a white, male American who was 26 in 1963 and who, if he had been at the Carousel "a number of occasions", had nonetheless been in Dallas only 10 days.

Lane reports that several witnesses said Ruby knew Tippitt. One that he cites was Dallas police Lt. George C. Arnett. What Arnett actually told the FBI was that he did not recall to what extent Ruby MAY have known police officer J.D. Tippitt but added that "he does not believe he was more friendly with Tippitt than the average officer."

Arnett, in other words, did not say positively whether Ruby did or did not know Tippitt.

Lane says Crafard and Andrew Armstrong, Ruby's bartender and handyman, both heard Ruby say he knew Tippitt when he learned the officer had been shot. Lane does not say that Armstrong also told the FBI: "From what I gather later on, Mrs. Grant (Ruby's sister) told me it was a different Tippitt that he knew. In other words, there were two officers that had the name of Tippitt.

Actually, there were three. And Ruby did know one of them. He said he knew a detective Gayle Tippitt who worked in special services. Lane's book has this. It mentions that Gayle Tippitt said his "contacts in recent years with Ruby have been infrequent."

That is taken from Committee Exhibit 1620 in which Gayle Tippitt also said that in the 1950s he "became very well acquainted with Jack Ruby." Lane does not quote that part of Exhibit 1620.

Lane writes that the commission might also have interrogated Harold Richard Williams. Williams told Lane he had seen Ruby and an officer he identified as J.D. Tippitt in a patrol car when he was arrested in November 1963. Lane warns his readers that Williams' testimony "should be assessed with a degree of caution" since he was not a witness and under oath. He might also have notified his readers, but didn't, that Tippitt was stationed in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas all the way across town from where Williams said he was arrested.

Two witnesses said that on Nov. 14, the night of the meeting, Weissman was in their home trying to sell them carpeting until 9:30 or 10 p.m. Mrs. Tipitt said her husband was a homebody devoted to his family. Lane, nonetheless, says the commission should have asked her what Tippitt was doing the night of Nov. 14 and asked Weissman what he did after 10 p.m. that same evening.

Lane says the question to Weissman was "never even posed." It may not have been posed to his liking, but Weissman was asked by commission counsel: "Did you at any time while you were in Dallas ever have a meeting with or sit in the Carousel Club with officer Tippitt?"

"No," he answered. He said he had never been in Ruby's club and didn't know him.

Mrs. Tippitt was less exact. She said she had never heard her husband mention being in Ruby's club.

The point is not so much whether such a meeting could or could not have taken place. The point here is that Lane, who presented the rumor to the commission, did not present all the evidence to his readers. For instance, neighter Mrs. Tippitt's nor Weissman's denial and-or lack of knowledge of the meeting is presented in his book.

But what if, evidence to the contrary, such a meeting did take place? What was its purpose? Lane doesn't suggest one. Neither does any evidence in the Warren volumes.

Nor is there evidence in the volumes to indicates a conspiracy in New Orleans. The commission and the FBI investigated several of the people that have figures in Garrison's case. They found no conspiracy.

This is not to deny the possibility of one. It should be mentioned, however, that the indictment against Clay Shaw, a New Orleans businessman, says he conspired with Oswald to assassinate Kennedy. But it does NOT say the assassination was the one that took place Nov. 22, 1963 in Dallas. Nor doe it say it wasn't. Garrison has said he doesn't want to get involved in "semantics" over wording.

It should be mentioned that the chief witness against Shaw so far is a man who first contacted Garrison two days AFTER the district attorney said the case was solved. The witness testified after being given "truth serum" and undergoing hypnosis.

It should be mentioned another witness reportedly said he was offered a bribe by the district attorney's office to give favorable testimony. The witness' lawyer said a lie detector test verified the bribe attempt.

Garrison has said he has evidence that Oswald was working for the Central Intelligece Agency. Others have said Oswald was working for the FBI after his return from the Soviet Union for a fee of $200 a month.

That rumor apparently came from a Houston reporter, Alonzo Hudkins. Hudkins has since told Charles Roberts of Newsweek that he believes J. Edgar Hoover's denials that Oswald was an FBI informant. But Epstein takes the commission to task for relying solely on the word of an agency investigating itself.

Why, he asks in "inquest", didn't the commission on its own interrogate Hudkins and his reported source for the story, Dallas Deputy Sheriff Allan Sweatt? It is a legitimate question.

But it is also legitimate to ask how Epstein can state "no efforts were made by the commission or its staff to investigate the rumor itself." That simply isn't true.

The commission, itself, DID investigate in some detail reports of money orders Oswald reportedly had received while in Dallas. (It turned out to be baseless). The commission, itself, DID inquire why FBI agent James Hosty's name was in Oswald's address book. Oswald told his wife to take it down after Hosty had visited her at Ruth Paine's where she was living. The commission DID investigate through the Internal Revenue Service Oswald's finances after his return from the Soviet Union. (His known and assumed outgo remarkably approximated his income down to the cash balance he had when arrested).

The commission did NOT take at face value the denials of the FBI. And Epstein did NOT mention the foregoing in claiming the commission "relied entirely on the FBI to disprove the rumor" of Oswald's FBI connection.

Another conspiracy rumor: Ruby entered the Dallas police headquarters to shoot Oswald not by accident but by design. In accord with some superplot, the assassin had to be assassinated. One incontestable fact of time, however, must be considered.

The exact time of Oswald's transfer depended on when police were done questioning him. At the time that was decided, Ruby was driving downtown to send a money order to one of his strippers. The time he handed the money order across the Western Union counter was punched by a time clock: 11:17 a.m. Oswald was shot at 11:21 a.m. It takes several minutes to walk from Western Union to the police basement where Oswald was slain.

A commuter catching a train would scarcely cut his corners so finely. Would a man engaged in a superplot do so? Particularly if he knew in some unexplained way his only chance would come at 11:21?

The superplot elsewhere was running a very tight schedule. When Oswald dashed in and out of his rooming house a half-hour after the assassination, Lane says a "rather mysterious" incident occurred. A Dallas police car stopped and honked twice and drove off, said Earlene Roberts, the housekeeper.

Dallas police said there was no patrol car in the vicinity at the time. Lane says the "investigation" consisted of nothing more than the statements of police regarding car and officer assignments. (One might ask who would know better than police the whereabouts of a police car).

Lane notes commission evidence that a patrolman had driven Car 207 to the depository rooming house several miles away. Valentine turned the keys over to a sergeant.

"just after 12:45 p.m.", gave the keys to a sergeant and remained in the building several hours.

This does not mean, Lane argues, that the car itself couldn't have been driven by some other officers. (Mrs. Roberts saw two in the car). But the men would have had to get the keys from the sergeant (who said he didn't release them until 3:30 p.m.), drive through heavy traffic around the depository to the rooming house in suburban Oak Cliff, honk twice and drive away again.

A log of the travels of Car 207 should, however, have this information which the report provides— and Lane does not.

1— Police Car 170, driven by acquaintances of hers, often honked outside the house, Mrs. Roberts said. When she saw the car was 207, she told the FBI she went back to looking at television.

2— Patrolman Jimmy Valentine had Car 207 that afternoon. He had been at headquarters when he heard of the assassination at about 12:45 p.m. He drove to the depository al! the way across town through heavy traffic. This would put him at the building close to the moments Oswald dashed into the PRESIDENT KENNEDY'S route from Love Field to downtown Dallas is indicated by heavy line. Dashed line shows intended route to Trade Mart, where he was to speak. After the President was shot, however, he was taken to Parkland Hospital where he died. Enlarged map in inset shows exact area where the President was felled. Proceeding west along Main Street, the presidential cavalcade turned right onto Houston Street in order to enter one-way westbound traffic on Elm Street leading to triple underpass and Stemmons Freeway. Sniper in Texas School Book Depository at corner of Elm and Houston shot the President and Texas Gov. John Connally after their car turned left onto Elm. In lower lefthand corner of newsmap are spotted: Rented room where Lee Harvey Oswald went to change his clothes, where patrolman J.D. Tippitt was slain and the Texas Theater where Oswald was captured.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT of the Warren commission and books written by critics of the report. Several have been best sellers.

sitory and get into a light colored Rambler station wagon driven by a Negro. Later that afternoon Craig said he recognized Oswald in the office of homicide Capt. Will Fritz.

Craig said Oswald stood up and said: "That station wagon belongs to Mrs. Paine, don't try to tie her into this. . .Everybody will know who I am now."

The commission, as Lane notes, decided it "could not accept important elements of Craig's testimony." Lane does not note the reasons why.

One is an affidavit from Fritz. He recalled a man telling a story similar to Craig's. This, however, occurred in his outer office. Oswald was in his inner office.

"Had I brought this man into my inner office I feel sure I would have remembered it," Fritz said. He didn't remember Oswald jumping up and saying what Craig said he said. Neither did any one else there.

Furthermore, Mrs. Paine owned a two-tone Chevrolet station wagon, not a light colored Rambler.

Another conspiracy: Ruby was somehow involved in Castroite activity. At length Lane quotes the testimony of Nancy Perrin Rich. She said in 1962 she and her late husband had met several times in Dallas with others including an Army colonel whose name she did not recall and some one named Dave C.— "I think it was Cole, but I couldn't be sure."

Mrs. Rich's husband had asked $25,000 to shuttle a boat carrying guns into Cuba and refugees out. Negotiations stalled.

"A knock comes on the door and who walks in but my little friend, Jack Ruby," said Mrs. Rich who had been a bartender at the Carousel Club. "Ruby had a bulge in his pocket. He went into another room and returned minus the bulge," Mrs. Rich said. She assumed the bulge was payoff money, although she never saw nor heard that money had changed hands.

Negotiations improved. But Mrs. Rich finally "grabbed my old man and cleared out" when she later thought she recognized a new participant as Vito Genovese's son. She based this on his resemblance to a photograph she had seen of the Mafia chieftan.

Commission counsel Leon Hubert then asked Mrs. Rich if Dave C., who she said had been a bartender at the Dallas University Club, could be one Dave Cherry. "That's it," she replied.

Lane wonders why this potentially corroborating witness was not called to testify. "The FBI's summary of an interview with Cherry was in the commission's possession, but Cherry was not called as a witness."

Indeed, he was not. But the FBI "summary," which Lane does not quote, might explain why. In it Cherry denies knowing any colonel "who was supposed to have been running guns into Cuba." He did know Nancy Perrin Rich whom he said had been barred from the club and who he though was "mentally deranged".

Also in the commission record is a statement by Dallas detective Paul Rayburn who knew Mrs. Rich and though her "a psychopathic liar who got great delight out of telling wild tales."

And there is a report of an interview with attorney Cy Victorson who represented Mrs. Rich on a vagrancy charge. He said she told stories "so ridiculous that no one could possibly believe them."

Lane does not ask why Paul Rayburn or Cy Victorson were not called by the commission. He did not use their statements, either. After all, they did not discuss Ruby or gun-running. They only mentioned the one witness who said she saw it all happen.

Says Lane: "About so clandestine an operation as smuggling weapons to Cuba and evacuating exiles, however, one would expect to find corroboration only with the greatest difficulty, if at all." He indicates he found it in Robert McKeown. McKeown had been arrested in 1958 for conspiracy to smuggle guns to Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

McKeown told the FBI that in 1959 a man who identified himself as Rubenstein (Ruby's original name) had phoned him offering $15,000 to get Castro to release three of his prisoners. Three weeks later McKeown said a man asked him to write a letter of introduction to Castro because he had some Jeeps to sell Cuba. The deals never came to pass.

McKeown told the FBI he "feels strongly that this individual was in fact Jack Ruby. . ." Lane quotes this. He does not quote another part of the statement in which McKeown "remarked he is not certain that the above-described telephone caller from Dallas or the man who personally appeared. . .was identical with the Jack Ruby who killed Lee Harvey Oswald."

Lane takes a partial quote to show strong identification of Ruby by McKeown rather than a whole one which shows something less. He need not have. Ruby said he once was interested in a Jeep deal. He thought, though, the intermediary's name was Davis. His sister, Eva Grant, told the FBI she believed her brother had an option on eight war surplus Jeeps some time around 1960.

This could be corroboration of McKeown. But is it of Nancy Rich? And if one interprets it as such, where does it all tie Ruby into an assassination superplot? Do surplus Jeeps in 1959, an unverified meeting in 1962 add up to assassination in 1963?

Lane doesn't answer the question. He merely asks it.

Another conspiracy: Oswald, the admitted Marxist who wanted fair play for Cuba, was actually in the anti-Castro underground.

The source of this was Sylvia Odio, an anti-Castro Cuban. On Sept. 26 or 27, 1963 two Cubans or Mexicans called at her apartment in Dallas with a third person introduced as Leon Oswald, she said. The men told her they had recently come from New Orleans and were friends of her father, a prisoner of Castro.

The next day one of the men, who said his name was Leopoldo, phoned Mrs. Odio and said he wanted to introduce Oswald into the Cuban underground. Leopoldo said Oswald had been in the Marines, was an excellent shot and felt "the Cubans didn't have any guts. . .because President Kennedy should have been assassinated after the Bay of Pigs and some Cubans should have done that. . . ."

After the assassination a stunned Mrs. Odio recognized pictures of Lee Harvey Oswald as the man who came to her home. So did her sister.

The commission maintained that Oswald could not have been in Dallas Sept. 26 or 27. He was in Mexico.

". . .The issue was never resolved," wrote Epstein. That is debatable.

Records show that Oswald crossed into Nuevo Laredo, Mexico between 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sept. 26. Two passengers on a Houston-Laredo bus said they saw Oswald on board shortly after they awoke at 6 a.m., Sept. 26.

The commission said there was strong evidence that Oswald had left Houston on a bus for Laredo at 2:35 a.m. that morning. It noted a bus had left New Orleans, where Oswald had been living, at 12:30 p.m. Sept. 25 arriving at Houston at 10:50 p.m. that evening. Oswald made a phone call to a woman in Houston that same evening. It can't be determined whether the call was local or not.

Epstein says the visit to Mrs. Odio occurred "the day before he (Oswald) left on his trip to Mexico." This disregards Mrs. Odio's testimony. She said the visit occurred Sept. 26—when Oswald had already crossed the border—or the 27th—when he had reached Mexico City and registered at a hotel. Were some one's dates wrong? Epstein doesn't even mention there is a conflict between him and the testimony.

He does not mention a commission statement from E. P. Hammett, a Houston bus ticket agent. Hammett told the FBI that in late September a man "strongly resembling" a photograph of Oswald asked him about bus travel to Laredo and Mexico City. Epstein does NOT mention the man eventually bought a ticket to Laredo. Epstein does NOT mention that it was the only such ticket sold that night to Laredo or that it was the only one of its kind sold from Sept. 24 through Sept. 26.

If Oswald had been in Dallas on the 25th, he could have caught a bus from there to Alice, Tex., in time to be on the Houston-Laredo bus on which he was seen. But no tickets were sold by the bus line connecting Dallas and Alice for Laredo between Sept. 23 and 26.

He could, the commission concedes, possibly have driven New Orleans-Dallas-Alice route although the Warren report says it "would have been difficult." Tight scheduling again for the superplot.

Ultimately, the FBI located a Californian, Loran Eugene Hall, who said he had called on Mrs. Odio in Dallas in September with two other men. The two denied it. Hall later altered his story.

In its report, the commission stated that the FBI had not completed its investigation of Hall at the time the report went to press. Yet it concluded in the report that Oswald had not been at Mrs. Odio's that September.

"Is it too fastidious to insist that conclusions logically follow, not precede, an analysis of all evidence?" Lane asks. The point is well taken.

Despite the vast scope of the Warren investigation, the Odio matter has given the critics ammunition to charge the commission with haste, with lack of thoroughness.

Haste? Quite possibly, although the commission denies it. But thoroughness? Who was thorough in detailing the Odio investigation? The commission? Or Epstein?

The Hall evidence neither proves nor disproves the commission conclusion about Mrs. Odio. Epstein says the matter was never resolved. But, in effect, it was. As much as it ever can be. The commission was faced with a choice: the testimony of Mrs. Odio and her sister against the evidence they were mistaken. It chose the evidence.

Yet, it was the commission that presented all the evidence pro and con about Mrs. Odio. The critics did not. It was the commission that presented all the evidence about Lamar Hunt and Ruby, about Nancy Perrin Rich, about Jeeps, about McKeown, about Oswald's finances. The critics did not.

One may interpret what the commission found, and the critics have, abundantly. But while, as of this date, there may be doubters, books and speculation, the critics have yet to produce that one essential of proof—evidence.

While working on our church lawn party, I noticed that one of the items for sale was a net cocktail apron with a sequined cocktail glass apliqued on the pocket. I asked one of my coworkers, an elderly woman, which of our many aprons she liked best. "Oh," she replied, "I like the one with the chalice."

Ann Landers

Post Office Employe's Bark Ruffles Patron

Dear Ann Landers: I am 30, have three children and am making plans to separate from my husband. He has agreed to pay support money but it will not be enough so I must find employment.

I have not worked for eight years and my shorthand and typing are somewhat rusty. I am also more than a little frightened. Yesterday I filled out a Civil Service form and noted that part of the form was missing. When I inquired as to where I could get the missing pages, I was told to telephone the Post Office Department.

The man with whom I spoke was so rude and impatient that I was in tears by the time he finished screaming at me. Perhaps he had problems greater than mine, but is that justification for taking it out on a person he is supposed to help, as part of his job? I felt like saying, "Thank you and God bless you, Sir, for the kindness in your voice."

Wouldn't this be a better world if everyone spoke to everyone else in the same tone of voice he would use if he were speaking to God? Myself included. --- HOUSTON READER

Dear Houston: Of course it would, but how many mortals behave in a civilized, completely balanced manner at all times? I am sorry you did not follow your inclination and thank the man for the "kindness in his voice." It would have made him realize his thoughtlessness in a way that a sharp retort never could.

Dear Ann Landers: I've had numerous operations and have had to take a lot of medication to relieve the pain. Light doses of medication are ineffective so I take twice as much as normally prescribed. I obtain the medicine through my doctor, of course.

The problem is that I am a poor sleeper and nothing knocks me out like whisky. So every once in a while I take several stiff drinks and go straight to bed. Notice I said "straight to bed" ----I don't go out and raise Cain, nor do I abuse anybody. I just get pleasantly plastered and go to sleep. Isn't it O.K. to use whisky as a sedative? Please say so, because it's the only sure way I know to get a full night's sleep. --- DUFF

Dear Duff: Cut out either the medication or the booze or you could put yourself to sleep permanently. People who combine the two take a big chance. Discuss this with your physician at once.

Dear Ann Lnaders: I am engaged to a wonderful girl. I have become very close to her family and I think the world of them. Her parents are divorced, and I seem to be the man of the house already.

The problem is an 11-year-old boy. This kid has a terrible chip on his shoulder. Hal sasses his mother and gets into fights with his teachers and neighbors. He has no friends. His father remarried and now has two sons by that marriage. This has hurt Hal a lot.

Last week I bought him some popcorn. He refused to share it with his sisters so I told him I wanted the popcorn back. He got mad and threw the popcorn in my face. I spanked him. He hasn't spoken to me since. Hal can be very nice, but it only lasts a few days and then he gets mean again. Please tell me how to get along with him. ---LOST

Dear Lost: Hal needs more help than you can give him. Please urge his mother to see that the lad gets counseling. His anti-social behavior is a symptom of a deeper problem.

Who calls the signals on how far petting should go -- the boy or the girl? What are the ground rules for a safe session of romance? Read Ann Landers booklet, "Necking And Petting --What Are The Limits? Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Too Little Money for Education

COLUMBIA, Mo. - In an earlier era, a handful of prestigious private universities along the Eastern seaboard were generally considered the most outstanding educational institutions in the United States. In the last half century, however, state universities in such states as Michigan, Wisconsin, and California, have earned academic ratings higher than most of the private universities.

It is generally conceded that to achieve such excellence in higher education, a sustained high level of financial and moral support on the part of a state's citizens is required.

In Missouri, the Commission on Higher Education, state university and college officials, and the governor all have called for sizable increases in financial support for higher education. While not responding in every detail, the 1967 Missouri legislature did appropriate considerably more funds for the university system than had previous sessions of the legislature. University officials were generally reported to be pleased.

But how popular is such an action with the citizens of Missouri? What portion of the state's dollars do they think the University should receive? For what purposes should the money be spent?

In an effort to answer these questions, the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the University of Missouri asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians about their attitudes toward higher education. The survey conducted in the summer of 1966, was designed by professors Rondal Downing and David Leege of the University. Several articles in the Missouri Poll series will be based on findings from the study.

Most Missourians, in the summer of 1966, appeared to favor maintaining the present level of increasing appropriations for higher education rather than decreasing them. POSU asked its sample the following questions: "As you know, the state universities depend to a large extent upon funds appropriated by the state legislature. Do you think the State of Missouri provides too little, too much, or about the right amount of money for its universities and colleges?" The results were as follows:

SUPPORT FOR HIGHER EDUCATION

State Provides:	Per Cent
Too little money	31
Right amount	33
Too much money	3
(No opinion)	(33)

If those with "no opinion" are excluded from the findings, 47 per cent said too little money is appropriated, 49 per cent said the present level is adequate, and only four per cent said that too much money is provided for higher education in Missouri.

Political officials often times claim privately that they are less interested in the opinions of the general public than they are concerned with the viewpoints of politically-active segments of the public. Therefore, it is interesting to look at the political, social, and economic profiles of those with differing viewpoints on this issue.

The POSU findings indicate that those who complain that Missouri appropriates too little money for its universities and colleges are more likely to be urban or suburban residents, in the age groups from 21 through 50, have minor children at home, received a longer formal education, earn incomes close to the state average or above it, and hold professional, business or managerial, white collar, and to some extent, blue collar occupations. They are the most active political segments of the population, having mentioned several forms of participation including efforts to contact state and federal officials. Their other political viewpoints seem unrelated to the issue of support for higher education, since nearly equal numbers of liberals and conservatives, Democrats, Republicans, and Independents are included in this group.

Those who are satisfied with the present level of appropriations or feel that the university campuses receive too much money appear to be less potent politically. They have engaged in fewer political activities and have seldom made an effort to contact public officials, with the exception of some at the town and county level. They are less likely to vote in elections. Generally, they are people from rural areas, in the post-50 age group, receive less formal education, earn lower incomes, and are farmers, retired or unskilled workers.

If You Were the Judge

Nude Draped in Flag No State Law Violation

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Charley published a rather unusual magazine that sometimes contained rather unusual material. For example, in one edition, he published a picture of a beautiful nude model with more curves than a road map. What made the picture unusual was the model was draped in "Old Glory."

Considering the picture a flagrant abuse of the American flag, the authorities had Charley arrested for violating a state law that made it a crime to treat the flag of the United States with disrespect.

"When dealing with our flag," the prosecuting attorney argued, "The thigh's not the limit. Such pictures damage its prestige."

"Nonsense," was Charley's answer. "Being photographed with a good looking girl never hurt anybody's prestige, so it can't hurt the prestige of a flag. Besides, a state has no right to pass a law relating to the United States flag. That's the business of the federal state law?

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail Charley for violating the state law?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that while federal law governs the display of the U.S. flag, states may pass laws that are intended to keep peace and order.

Since a picture of a nude girl draped in "Old Glory" is not apt to disturb the peace and order, concluded the judge, Charley could not be deemed to have violated the state law.

DID NYLON STOCKINGS COST LESS WHEN MOM WAS A GIRL

Any woman knows better. A generation ago Nylon hose hadn't been invented. You couldn't buy them at any price.

The same is ture of today's medicines. It isn't logical to say, "Prescirptions cost more than they used to." Most of today's drugs weren't available at any price 10 or 20 years ago. In fact, three quarters of the prescriptions written today, are for drugs that didn't exist ten years ago.

Today, Americans spend only one cent from every disposable dollar on drugs. This share is no more than we spent in 1939! Also, today's drugs work faster. They are more efficient. They do much to reduce your total cost of illness. That's why we say: "Today's prescription is the biggest bargain in history."

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, July 27, the 208th day of 1967. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1953, an armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending the Korean War after three years and 32 days of fighting.

On this date:

In 1789, the U.S. Congress established the Department of Foreign Affairs — the forerunner of the State Department.

In 1909, Orville Wright set a record by staying aloft in an airplane for more than one hour and 12 minutes, over Ft. Myer, Va.

In 1922, The United States recognized the governments of Albania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

In 1954, Britain and Egypt agreed on terms ending 72 years of British control of the Suez Canal.

In 1955, Austria regained sovereignty after 17 years of occupation by foreign troops.

Ten years ago — The Soviet Union agreed to discuss a U.S. proposal for an exchange of uncensored radio and television broadcasts.

Five years ago — The chance of civil war in newly independent Algeria eased with negotiations between the provisional government and a dissident faction.

One year ago — South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said patience to carry on a long war was the only alternative to invading North Vietnam.

RESOLUTION

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of blade mix asphaltic surfacing on the surface of Watson Street from Lillian Drive east to existing pavement, in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $0.50 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be incompliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 17th day of July, 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

POPLAR BLUFF - The trial of two men accused of a pistol point robbery, at the Northwold motel was pronounced a mistrial Wednesday in circuit court.

Jerold B. Hays and Charles L. Pittman appeared on a charge of stealing $229.53, from B. K. Ramsey, Jerome Bradley and Lawrence Vincent, by means of a dangerous and deadly weapon May 24.

Judge Rex A. Henson pronounced the trial a mistrial this morning after the defense objected to a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney William Batson Jr., during his opening statement.

Judge Henson stated that Batson made a prejudicial statement and the defense requested a mistrial.

The case was set for trial in October term of court.

The two men's bonds have been set at $10,000 each.

A third man, Billy Charles Nix, 34, Milstead, Ga., who was stopped in a car with Pittman and Hays, was shot and killed by State Trooper William B. Darnell of Sikeston after Nix drew a gun and fired at the officer.

Batson made reference to the Nix death which was judged prejudicial to the jury.

$218,872 for State Library

JEFFERSON CITY, -- The Missouri State Legislature has appropriated $218,872 for operation of the Missouri State Library for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1967.

This represents an increase of 15.4 per cent over fiscal year 1966 and 5.35 per cent over the fiscal year ended June 1967.

Federal funds will still be needed to supplement the state appropriation.

State aid allocated to public libraries amounted to $473,027. This represents an increase of 78 per cent since 1962 in state support of public libraries. The appropriation represents an increase of 27.69 per cent over fiscal 1966 and 5.92 per cent over fiscal 1967.

The state library said that on the basis of present information this fund will provide for establishment grants to Cole, Miller, Maries, Osage and Hickory counties, since these library districts have all joined regional libraries.

In addition, the funds will provide grants of approximately 12 cents per capita to all eligible library districts.

The general assembly also appropriated $55,675 to reimburse the Wolfner Branch of St. Louis public library, which provides service to the blind in Missouri.

Federal funds allocated to Missouri under the library services and construction act, totaling $805,469 for services and $625,016 for construction, will be financed, according to the U.S. Office of Education, under a containuing resolution of Congress until further notice. The funds are within President Johnson's recommendations and it is anticipated the final appropriations will be in these amounts.

Wrench and Car Injure Two

$538,062 Grant to Aid Migrants

JEFFERSON CITY -- Michael D. Garrett, state director of the Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunity Services corporation reported today that word had been received from Washington, D.C., announcing a new grant of $538,062 to MAMOS for the continuation and expansion of the corporation's program through Sept. 30. 1968.

Official word came in a telegram from Theodore M. Berry community action program director for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The MAMOS corporation is a private, non - profit organization to provide a three - phase program of adult basic education, pre - employment training and social services to migrant and seasonal farm workers and their families within the state of Missouri.

Garrett indicated that the initial efforts of MAMOS have been concentrated in the Missouri "Bootheel" counties of Dunklin and Pemiscot. Here, with the assistance and cooperation of state and local agencies, three training centers have been established since March of 1967, and serve 200 trainees and their families. Mrs. Tom Prentice of Malden is the project director for the Bootheel program.

The new grant, Garrett stated, will enable MAMOS to continue and expand its present program in southeast Missouri, and will also make possible the extension of the MAMOS program to other areas within Missouri where concentrations of migrant and seasonal farm workers exist. It is projected that the new grant will enable MAMOS to provide its services to 345 trainees.

Jurors Have New Excuse From Duty

SEATTLE (AP) - An economy move on the part of county commissioners may have provided Seattleites with a reason for being excused from jury duty - claustrophobia.

The commissioners have approved a plan to brick up the windows in the courthouse to save $7,200 a year in maintenance costs.

Superior Court Judge Lloyd Shorett said Wednesday: "Icertainly would feel that a juror's being subject to claustrophobia would be grounds for excusing him from service in a walled-up courtroom."

Adjutant Official To Change Jobs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Col. Walter C. Wilson of Jefferson City, state air defense officer in the office of the adjutant general, was appointed today to the Army National Guard Technician Advisory Committee in Washington.

The announcement of his appointment was made by Maj. Gen. L. B. Adams Jr., Missouri adjutant general.

The advisory committee studies problems of employment of 40,000 full time technicians working for the Army National Guard.

Search for Faulty TV Sets Proceeds

KANSAS CITY (AP) - The hunt for color television sets which could emit dangerous x-rays is all but over in Kansas, western Missouri and parts of Nebraska and Iowa.

A spokesman for the Kansas City division office of General Electric Co. said more than 98 percent of the sets can be traced. He said some still are in stock and the company has the names of the persons who purchased most of the others.

The harmful sets were made between September of 1966 and April 18, 1967. A division official said the fault is easily corrected by exchanging tubes.

More than 90 per cent of the sets in the Kansas City area have been corrected at no extra cost to the owners, the official said.

Airline Announces 1st Flight

The inaugural flight for Sun Airlines Corp. will leave from Sikeston Airport at 7:20 a.m. Aug. 14, enroute to St. Louis, George Caleshu, president, announced today.

A return flight will come from St. Louis to Sikeston at about 5 or 5:30 p.m. daily, Wendell Caskey, airport manager said.

Flights to and from Memphis, Tenn., are not scheduled initially, but are expected to be set up a little later, Caskey said.

Caleshu announced that additional equipment has been received by Sun and schedules should be available at the airport and at the Chamber of Commerce office next Tuesday.

Sun is the Mid-West's newest scheduled airline and makes daily flights of multi-engine planes to Springfield, Columbia, Kansas City, St. Louis and other major points.

Twin-engine, nine-passenger Beech aircraft are flown by Sun pilots. Flights are being planned to enable passengers from Sikeston to catch connecting flights in St. Louis.

Tickets will be available at Harper's Travel Service or at the airport.

Woman Dies In Car Crash

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) Mrs. Juanitia E. Shamlin, 42, of Poplar Bluff was killed early today when her car veered off a city street and crashed into the brick home of Frank Tinsley.

Tinsley's 12-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, was asleep in the corner bedroom when the car struck but she was not hurt.

Queen Mary Disneyland Rival

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - The Queen Mary, venerable lady of the Atlantic, will find a permanent home on the waterfront of Long Beach and rival Disneyland as a lure for tourists.

The ocean liner, now too old for travel as a luxury ship, is being sold by Cunard Lines to the city of Long Beach for $3,444,000.

The city, whose bid topped 17 others, plans to spend $3 million to $5 million to make the Queen Mary into a maritime museum, hotel and convention center.

The news Wednesday from London, where the sale was announced, created excitement among Long Beach citizens.

"She'll rival Disneyland," said Mayor Edwin Wade.

He predicted that the luxury liner will attract two million persons a year. She will rival Disneyland, Marineland and other Southern California facilities as a tourist attraction," he said.

Wade, discounting comment in London that the proud old ship would become "an affair spectacle," said it would retain its dignity in Long Beach harbor.

The oil-rich California city of 380,000 beat our New York City, an Atlanta, Ga., group and scrap dealers all over the world for the ship that carried millions of persons across the Atlantic with a stint as transporter of 765,000 allied troops during World War II.

Beer Prices May Increase in Area

Beer quaffers are expected to pay a higher price per sip, swallow or guzzle.

"Since we're in the St. Louis market, I expect the price of beer to rise here before the end of the week," Bob Ralph, manager of Bob Ralph's Distribution Co., said today.

The distributor's price per case to the retailer has been increased 30 to 40 cents in the St. Louis and eastern Illinois markets, Ralph said.

The increase also applies to Cairo.

Ralph said if the price is increased her it will be passed on to retailers.

This probably will result in an increase of five cents per bottle, and 10 cents per six pack to the consumer, he said.

Mrs. Farrell Wasson, bookkeeper and wife of the manager of Locke Distributing Co., commented today that no word of price change has been received.

The distributor's cost was lower in the St. Louis market than here, and the price rise may not be reflected here, she said.

"But we can't say for sure yet if the increase will or will not hit here," she said.

Other wholesale beer distributors here, Puckett Distributing Co. and Bess Distributing Co. also said that they had heard nothing definite about a price increase.

Appoint Groups To Explore Housing

Five committees were appointed to explore avenues of improving substandard housing in Sikeston at a 9 a.m. meeting today at the Mid-Towner Restaurant.

The meeting was called at the urging of Mayor Kendall Sikes and the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist church. About 10 church representatives and interested laymen attended.

Another meeting of the appointed committeemen was set for 5 p.m. Tuesday at the city administration building. A name for the group will be chosen at the next meeting and a by-laws committee is expected to be formed.

The organization is growing from a concerted effort to do something to improve poor housing, by the church leaders in Sikeston at a meeting July 19 at the Holiday Inn.

Loose definition of the goals and means of obtaining them were outlined at the previous meeting. The goals and means of obtaining them are expected to be more clearly defined in the next meeting, Sikes said.

Msgr. Walter J. McGrane was appointed chairman and the Rev. Mr. Wagner was appointed vice chairman of the organization today.

A steering committee for the group will consist of the Rev. Mr. Wagner, Mr. McGrane and the chairmen and vice chairmen of the five committees.

Appointed to committees today were:

Community Betterment Committee, Dr. Robert Lively, chairman, Louis Wiggins, vice chairman, Howard Grant, Shad Old, the Rev. J.W. Gwinn.

Loan Committee, Lee Shell, chairman, the Rev. Robert Jones, vice chairman, Jack Hogan, Pat Lea and Richard James.

Real Estate Committee, Arthur Ziegenhorn, chairman, Donald Fulton, vice chairman, Ross Murray, the Rev. James Hackney, and Charles Mitchell.

New Quake Hits Ankara

ANKARA (AP)— Another violent earthquake struck Turkey Wednesday night in an area where 23,000 persons were killed in 1939 in one of history's most disastrous quakes. The government radio said that up to early afternoon today the known death toll had reached 86, with many villages unheard from.

The quake occurred in eastern Turkey, south of the city of Erzincan. Erzincan was the site of the disastrous quake of Dec. 27, 1939.

The quake Wednesday night was Turkey's second such disaster in six days. On Saturday in western Turkey nearly 100 persons were killed at Adapazari.

The Pulumur region was reported hardest hit by the latest quake, with only 7 out of the 70 villages able to communicate with the provincial authorities.

Authorities feared the death toll would go higher since most of the villages are built of mud.

The seismological observatory at Kandili said the quake was recorded at 8:50 p.m., an hour and a half after Pope Paul VI left western Turkey to return to Italy. The center of the quake was some 500 miles northeast of Izmir and Ephesus, which the Pope visited Wednesday.

Viet Shells Kill Eleven Americans

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners unleashed a heavy rocket and mortar attack on an American infantry camp and adjoining airfield north of Saigon today, killing 11 U.S. soldiers and wounding 43.

At the same time two nearby South Vietnamese installations came under similar attack. South Vietnamese headquarters did not announce military casualties but said three civilians were killed and 13 wounded in one of the barrages.

Ground action continued light, as it has been for almost a month, and the scarcity of major action was reflected by a slight decline in the weekly casualty figures. The U.S. Command said 164 Americans were killed last week and 1,442 wounded, compared with 175 killed and 1,443 wounded the week before. South Vietnamese losses were put at 183 dead and 523 wounded compared to 202 killed and 543 wounded the previous week, while 1,702 Communists were reported killed, a drop from 1,995 a week earlier.

On the political front, the South Vietnamese government announced it has asked the United Nations to send observers for the presidential and senatorial elections Sept. 3 to "testify to our determination to hold free and honest elections."

The Communist mortar and rocket assault hit the headquarters of the 1st Infantry Division's 1st Brigade at the airfield at Phuoc Vin, 35 miles north of Saigon, about four hours before dawn.

U.S. Command said there was light damage to installations and equipment at the airfield — a relatively small field used by spotter planes, helicopters and troop transports.

The Red gunners used mostly light mortars but some of the rounds were from Russian-made 122mm rockets, one of the heaviest weapons in the Viet Cong arsenal.

The shells rained on the headquarters and the field for 25 minutes, sending sleeping GI's scurrying for sandbagged bunkers and reaction patrols fanning about the barbed-wire camp perimeters.

Flareships lit the area and American guns under radar control opened up on Communist firing positions. They were located later in the day by ground patrols, abandoned and battered by shellfire but with no Viet Cong bodies left behind.

Heavy thunderstorms over the Hanoi-Haiphong area limited air attacks on North Vietnam Wednesday to supply lines between the industrial area and the southern border.

Military headquarters reported that despite the heavy weather 135 missions — an average day — were flown against the North with extensive damage to trucks, railroad rolling stock, barges and supply sites.

U.S. B52 bombers, sweeping five miles up in the sky along the Laotian and Cambodian frontiers, poured tons of bombs on Communist camp and infiltration areas in two raids early today.

Medium-size bombs in saturation patterns blasted an enemy camp area in the central highlands near Pleiku and another jungle gathering point near the hard-hit A Shau valley farther north.

In Saigon, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced South Vietnam's armed forces would be increased by 65,000 men to a total of 700,000 and said the United States has agreed to equip them.

Ryan to Build School

MOREHOUSE - The Ryan Construction Company of Sikeston, low bidder, was awarded the contract for construction of the new elementary school building. Bids were opened last night.

Ryan's bid of $158,970 was the lowest of the five contractors submitting bids.

Other bidders were Jackson Excavating Company of Jackson, $161,996; Woods Lumber Company of Portageville, $167,445; Crites and Sailor Construction Company of Cape Girardeau, $171,732, and Huffman Brothers Lumber Company of Steele, $183,481.

The contract calls for completion of the building by July 1, 1968. Work is expected to begin within a week.

On April 4 patrons of the C-12 district approved a $190,000 bond issue for construction of the plant.

Long No Longer Has St. Joseph Paper's Support

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— The St. Joseph News-Press in an editorial today called for the defeat of Sen. Edward V. Long, D.Mo., for re-election next year. The News-Press and the Gazette have supported Long in the past.

The editorial, in part, said:

"Sen. Edward V. Long of Missouri has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election in 1968. He already has filed. He should be denied the nomination. And if by mischance he does get the nomination he should be defeated in the November general election.

"The News-Press and Gazette have supported Ed Long. We say, now without too much bragging, that we were perhaps the first newspapers to announce for Ed Long when he ran after being named by then Gov. James Blair to take the seat of deceased Sen. Thomas Hennings. He was elected in November 1960 for the 2-year unexpired term and then for a full 6-year term in 1962.

The editorial then pointed out that many weeks had gone by since Life magazine printed a story that Long had received $48,000 in monthly installments from Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer, attorney for James Hoffa, Teamsters union leader, now in prison.

"Time after time Senator Long has been asked, and given chances without number, to explain these money transfers which he calls referrals. He has refused. He has tried, not too successfully, to insinuate that Internal Revenue Service is after him for his campaign against wire tapping. Hogwash!

The editorial also said: "Without knowing who will be his next opponent in the primary next August we are against Ed Long."

If you're looking for a gasoline tax bargain on an auto trip, try Texas - where much of the gasoline comes from.

The immediacy of the supply may have nothing to do with it, but Texas does have one of the nation's lowest state gas taxes - 5 cents on the gallon. The same rate prevails in Kansas, Missouri, and most of Hawaii.

The tax-conscious driver might well steer clear of the state of Washington, which recently raised its motor fuel tax to 9 cents - the highest in the nation. The federal 4-cent gas excise ups the total Washington tax to 13 cents on every gallon - over one-third of the average U.S. gas price, 33 cents.

In addition there are local gasoline taxes, but only 254 towns and cities charge them. Of these, 237 are located in Alabama, where federal, state and local authorities share revenues of 14 cents on every gallon.

State gasoline taxes originated in 1919 when Oregon initiated a good-old-days charge of one cent a gallon. Recognizing a money-raiser when they saw it, other states soon slapped their own taxes on motor fuel; within 10 years, all 48 states then in the union had gas taxes.

In 1965, 14 states cleared over $100 million each in motor fuel taxes, according to the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. Drivers in California, who used almost 7 billion gallons of gas that year, poured almost $600 million into the state's coffers - the highest amount in the country.

Every hour, over $900,000 in motor fuel taxes is collected by state and federal authorities, says the American Petroleum Institute.

The federal government, seeking to overcome the Great Depression, first levied a tax on gasoline in 1932. Ironically, this "temporary emergency measure" is now 35 years old and brings in about $3 billion annually.

Federal gasoline taxes have produced revenues of nearly $33 billion since their inception.

The first state fuel tax was channeled into road construction- "to help the early motorists get out of the mud" as Ed Mulligan of the American Petroleum Institute puts it. Highway construction and maintenace is still the aim of most state and federal gasoline levies.

Rising gas taxes trace to the mushrooming American road system. During the 15-year period beginning in 1950, expenditures on highway rose 262 per cent - increasing ten times as fast as the population, which registered a 26 per cent increase.

Motor fuel revenues are the principal source of funds for the Interstate Highway System, a group of federally backed, limited-access interstate highways scheduled for 1973 completion. Federal gas taxes pay 3/4 to 4/5 of Washington's 90 per cent share in that program and also help foot another federal-state project, development of primary and secondary roads. But while federal gas revenues are used exclusively for highway repair and construction, motor fuel taxes, in a limited number of states, finance anything from school to welfare agencies. Although state taxes were initially directed at highway costs, the financial dilemma of the 1930's forced some states to divert gas funds for purposes of little concern to the motorist.

Funds are still being funneled away to non-highway projects - to the tune of $655 million a year, according to the Petroleum Institute.

For example, New Jersey charged neither an income nor a sales tax for many years; it relied on gas and registration taxes to cover many general expenditures.

Local allocation of funds from gas taxes - usually a 1 to 3 cent charge per gallon - is even more random than state practice.

Only 26 of the 237 tax-levying towns in Alabama use fuel money exclusively for roads. In most of the areas, gas dollars pay for any municipal cost - bonds, schools and the fire department. In Mississippi says The Petroleum Institute, three counties "levy for the levee" - using motor fuel funds to shore up the river wall.

$55 Suit Stolen

The theft of a $55 blue suit from the racks of Graber's Store, 106 East Front, was reported to police at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Leroy Parmenter, assistant manager of Graber's, reported the theft to police.

In other police activity, Edward Lee, 631 Branum, was charged with careless and imprudent driving. The car he was driving was involved in an accident with a vehicle driven by Agnes McGee, Matthews. She was taken to the hospital and is reported in satisfactory condi-

Injured Viet Children Offered U.S. Passage

NEW YORK (AP) - The U.S. government has offered free air transportation to this country for war-injured South Vietnamese children needing specialized medical treatment available in the United States.

Two members of the Committee of Responsibility, an organization of American physicians, told the Associated Press that William Bundy, assistant secretary of state for the Far East, made the offer in a letter to the group earlier this month.

"We approached him earlier this year on the matter," said Dr. Herbert Needleman, a Philadelphia physician. "In early July we got a letter that said the State Department was 'prepared to offer air evacuation' for the children if the South Vietnamese government approves."

Needleman and Dr. Frank Ervin of Boston, left New York for Saigon Wednesday afternoon to get that approval.

"We're going with an open mind about the problem," Needleman said. "We expect that the children will be released to us. You might say we're cautiously optimistic."

Pope Ends Trip at Summer Home

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Back from what he depicted as a wearying but satisfying journey to Turkey, Pope Paul VI settled today into his summer vacation routine of rest and study.

The Pope was driven directly to his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome, after debarking from the jetliner that brought him home from Turkey Wednesday night.

"We are a little tired," the 69-year-old pontiff told a crowd of greeters at Castel Gandolfo only a few hours after he trudged around the ancient Christian ruins of Ephesus, Turkey, in wilting 100-degree heat.

The Pope said he would take "a few moments of rest," then "turn to the much, much, much work" still ahead of him.

He is expected to remain at his cool retreat five or six weeks. During that period he will finish preparation of a forthcoming document on reorganization of the Curia and of plans for the historic worldwide synod of Roman Catholic bishops to be held in Rome starting Sept. 29.

Also still before the Pope is the issue of birth control, the principal topic of study during his summer vacation last year. He has long postponed any declaration on whether the church will lift its anticontraception rule.

It was not excluded that the Pope might spend some of his vacation time contemplating a possible new trip.

Returning on the Pope's jet from Turkey, Vatican aides commented on the pontiff's fifth journey abroad and said that he could be expected in the future to travel "just as often as he has in the past."

Looking back on the two-day Turkish trip, the Pope told the Castel Gandolfo crowd that God had blessed his meetings with officials of that Moslem nation and with Orthodox religious leaders, including Patriarch Athenagoras.

Predicting greater Christian unity advances, the Pope said the Orthodox leaders "showed themselves truly to be of such goodness and greatness of spirit as to let us foresee many other good things."

The Pope and Athenagoras both vowed to make personal sacrifices in setting an example for the flocks of their "sister churches," separated nine centuries ago by the great schism.

The sources said Turkish government officials at least listened sympathetically to Pope Paul's plea that they mediate between Israelis and Arabs in the Middle East crisis.

Pope Paul ended his Turkish stay with the visit to the coastal city of Ephesus, site of the Ecumenical Council which in 431 sanctioned the dogma of the Virgin Mary as mother of God.

Canada Squabble May Put De Gaulle on Spot at Home

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle's abortive Canadian venture will put to a trying test the loyalties of his Cabinet and his tissue-thin majority in the French National Assembly.

An accident of the calendar — it is vacation time in France — may save the 76-year-old president from an immediate political confrontation.

But it appears certain to come, not only as a result of his conduct in Canada but also because of other actions which have aroused public opinion.

De Gaulle was elected to a second seven-year term in 1965 and assembly elections which come every five years were held last March. Thus the Gaullists face no major test at the polls in the immediate future.

But when the assembly goes back to work in early October, the sparks may begin to fly.

The Canadian crisis, which grew out of what appeared to be a deliberately charted effort by De Gaulle to boost French Canadian separatism, stunned opinion in France. But so far there has been no concerted riposte by De Gaulle's political opposition.

Newspapers remain one of the few sounding boards at this time of the year. Almost unanimously — with the marked exception of the Communist party's Humanite — they have sharply rebuked De Gaulle for his behavior in Canada.

Ordinary Frenchmen, including many firmly in De Gaulle's camp, can make no sense out of his trumpeting the French Canadian separatist rallying cry of "Long live free Quebec." Frenchmen couldn't care less about French Canadian separatism. The president's espousal of the separatist cause was widely interpreted as a violation of an often-voiced Gaullist tenet — no interference in the affairs of another country.

Lesser French officials left behind when De Gaulle went to Canada would make no effort to explain away what happened there. "You can understand our position," one told a reporter.

There is some speculation that De Gaulle was trying to take a cut at both Britain and the United States by encouraging the French Canadians to go their own way. This would, it was suggested, swing a segment of the North American continent toward Paris and away from Britain, Ottawa and the United States.

Airline Announces 1st Flight

The inaugural flight for Sun Airlines Corp. will leave from Sikeston Airport at 7:20 a.m. Aug. 14, enroute to St. Louis, George Caleshu, president, announced today.

A return flight will come from St. Louis to Sikeston at about 5 or 5:30 p.m. daily, Wendell Caskey, airport manager said.

Flights to and from Memphis, Tenn., are not scheduled initially, but are expected to be set up a little later, Caskey said.

Caleshu announced that additional equipment has been received by Sun and schedules should be available at the airport and at the Chamber of Commerce office next Tuesday.

Sun is the Mid-West's newest scheduled airline and makes daily flights of multi-engine planes to Springfield, Columbia, Kansas City, St. Louis and other major points.

Twin-engine, nine-passenger Beech aircraft are flown by Sun pilots. Flights are being planned to enable passengers from Sikeston to catch connecting flights in St. Louis.

Tickets will be available at Harper's Travel Service or at the airport.

Woman Dies In Car Crash

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) Mrs. Juanitia E. Shamlin, 42, of Poplar Bluff was killed early today when her car veered off a city street and crashed into the brick home of Frank Tinsley.

Tinsley's 12-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, was asleep in the corner bedroom when the car struck but she was not hurt.

Queen Mary Disneyland Rival

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - The Queen Mary, venerable lady of the Atlantic, will find a permanent home on the waterfront of Long Beach and rival Disneyland as a lure for tourists.

The ocean liner, now too old for travel as a luxury ship, is being sold by Cunard Lines to the city of Long Beach for $3,444,000.

The city, whose bid topped 17 others, plans to spend $3 million to $5 million to make the Queen Mary into a maritime museum, hotel and convention center.

The news Wednesday from London, where the sale was announced, created excitement among Long Beach citizens.

"She'll rival Disneyland," said Mayor Edwin Wade.

He predicted that the luxury liner will attract two million persons a year. She will rival Disneyland, Marineland and other Southern California facilities as a tourist attraction," he said.

Wade, discounting comment in London that the proud old ship would become "an affair spectacle," said it would retain its dignity in Long Beach harbor.

The oil-rich California city of 380,000 beat our New York City, an Atlanta, Ga., group and scrap dealers all over the world for the ship that carried millions of persons across the Atlantic with a stint as transporter of 765,000 allied troops during World War II.

Beer Prices May Increase in Area

Beer quaffers are expected to pay a higher price per sip, swallow or guzzle.

"Since we're in the St. Louis market, I expect the price of beer to rise here before the end of the week," Bob Ralph, manager of Bob Ralph's Distribution Co., said today.

The distributor's price per case to the retailer has been increased 30 to 40 cents in the St. Louis and eastern Illinois markets, Ralph said.

The increase also applies to Cairo.

Ralph said if the price is increased her it will be passed on to retailers.

This probably will result in an increase of five cents per bottle, and 10 cents per six pack to the consumer, he said.

Mrs. Farrell Wasson, bookkeeper and wife of the manager of Locke Distributing Co., commented today that no word of price change has been received.

The distributor's cost was lower in the St. Louis market than here, and the price rise may not be reflected here, she said.

"But we can't say for sure yet if the increase will or will not hit here," she said.

Other wholesale beer distributors here, Puckett Distributing Co. and Bess Distributing Co. also said that they had heard nothing definite about a price increase.

Appoint Groups To Explore Housing

Five committees were appointed to explore avenues of improving substandard housing in Sikeston at a 9 a.m. meeting today at the Mid-Towner Restaurant.

The meeting was called at the urging of Mayor Kendall Sikes and the Rev. Joseph H. Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist church. About 10 church representatives and interested laymen attended.

Another meeting of the appointed committeemen was set for 5 p.m. Tuesday at the city administration building. A name for the group will be chosen at the next meeting and a by-laws committee is expected to be formed.

The organization is growing from a concerted effort to do something to improve poor housing, by the church leaders in Sikeston at a meeting July 19 at the Holiday Inn.

Loose definition of the goals and means of obtaining them were outlined at the previous meeting. The goals and means of obtaining them are expected to be more clearly defined in the next meeting, Sikes said.

Msgr. Walter J. McGrane was appointed chairman and the Rev. Mr. Wagner was appointed vice chairman of the organization today.

A steering committee for the group will consist of the Rev. Mr. Wagner, Mr. McGrane and the chairmen and vice chairmen of the five committees.

Appointed to committees today were:

Community Betterment Committee, Dr. Robert Lively, chairman, Louis Wiggins, vice chairman, Howard Grant, Shad Old, the Rev. J.W. Gwinn.

Loan Committee, Lee Shell, chairman, the Rev. Robert Jones, vice chairman, Jack Hogan, Pat Lea and Richard James.

Real Estate Committee, Arthur Ziegenhorn, chairman, Donald Fulton, vice chairman, Ross Murray, the Rev. James Hackney, and Charles Mitchell.

Rodeo Musician To Appear Here

George Runquist, renowned rodeo music man, will appear at the 15th annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo on Aug. 10-13.

Runquist has performed at all major rodeos throughout the country. He is famous for the song he donated to the rodeo cowboys, called "The Rodeo Cowboy."

He also will supply the sound for the rodeo.

New Quake Hits Ankara

ANKARA (AP)— Another violent earthquake struck Turkey Wednesday night in an area where 23,000 persons were killed in 1939 in one of history's most disastrous quakes. The government radio said that up to early afternoon today the known death toll had reached 86, with many villages unheard from.

The quake occurred in eastern Turkey, south of the city of Erzincan, Erzincan was the site of the disastrous quake of Dec. 27, 1939.

The quake Wednesday night was Turkey's second such disaster in six days. On Saturday in western Turkey nearly 100 persons were killed at Adapazari.

The Pulumur region was reported hardest hit by the latest quake, with only 7 out of the 70 villages able to communicate with the provincial authorities.

Authorities feared the death toll would go higher since most of the villages are built of mud.

The seismological observatory at Kandili said the quake was recorded at 8:50 p.m., an hour and a half after Pope Paul VI left western Turkey to return to Italy. The center of the quake was some 500 miles northeast of Izmir and Ephesus, which the Pope visited Wednesday.

Viet Shells Kill Eleven Americans

SAIGON (AP) — Communist gunners unleashed a heavy rocket and mortar attack on an American infantry camp and adjoining airfield north of Saigon today, killing 11 U.S. soldiers and wounding 43.

At the same time two nearby South Vietnamese installations came under similar attack. South Vietnamese headquarters did not announce military casualties but said three civilians were killed and 13 wounded in one of the barrages.

Ground action continued light, as it has been for almost a month, and the scarcity of major action was reflected by a slight decline in the weekly casualty figures. The U.S. Command said 164 Americans were killed last week and 1,442 wounded, compared with 175 killed and 1,443 wounded the week before. South Vietnamese losses were put at 183 dead and 523 wounded compared to 202 killed and 543 wounded the previous week, while 1,702 Communists were reported killed, a drop from 1,995 a week earlier.

On the political front, the South Vietnamese government announced it has asked the United Nations to send observers for the presidential and senatorial elections Sept. 3 to "testify to our determination to hold free and honest elections."

The Communist mortar and rocket assault hit the headquarters of the 1st Infantry Division's 1st Brigade at the airfield at Phuoc Vin, 35 miles north of Saigon, about four hours before dawn.

U.S. Command said there was light damage to installations and equipment at the airfield — a relatively small field used by spotter planes, helicopters and troop transports.

The Red gunners used mostly light mortars but some of the rounds were from Russian-made 122mm rockets, one of the heaviest weapons in the Viet Cong arsenal.

The shells rained on the headquarters and the field for 25 minutes, sending sleeping GIs scurrying for sandbagged bunkers and reaction patrols fanning about the barbed-wire camp perimeters.

Flareships lit the area and American guns under radar control opened up on Communist firing positions. They were located later in the day by ground patrols, abandoned and battered by shellfire but with no Viet Cong bodies left behind.

Heavy thunderstorms over the Hanoi-Haiphong area limited air attacks on North Vietnam Wednesday to supply lines between the industrial area and the southern border.

Military headquarters reported that despite the heavy weather 135 missions — an average day — were flown against the North with extensive damage to trucks, railroad rolling stock, barges and supply sites.

U.S. B52 bombers, sweeping five miles up in the sky along the Laotian and Cambodian frontiers, poured tons of bombs on Communist camp and infiltration areas in two raids early today.

Medium-size bombs in saturation patterns blasted an enemy camp area in the central highlands near Pleiku and another jungle gathering point near the hard-hit A Shau valley farther north.

In Saigon, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced South Vietnam's armed forces would be increased by 65,000 men to a total of 700,000 and said the United States has agreed to equip them.

Ryan to Build School

MOREHOUSE - The Ryan Construction Company of Sikeston, low bidder, was awarded the contract for construction of the new elementary school building. Bids were opened last night.

Ryan's bid of $158,970 was the lowest of the five contractors submitting bids.

Other bidders were Jackson Excavating Company of Jackson, $161,996; Woods Lumber Company of Portageville, $167,445; Crites and Sailor Construction Company of Cape Girardeau, $171,732, and Huffman Brothers Lumber Company of Steele, $183,481.

The contract calls for completion of the building by July 1, 1968. Work is expected to begin within a week.

On April 4 patrons of the C-12 district approved a $190,000 bond issue for construction of the plant.

Long No Longer Has St. Joseph Paper's Support

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— The St. Joseph News-Press in an editorial today called for the defeat of Sen. Edward V. Long, D.Mo., for re-election next year. The News-Press and the Gazette have supported Long in the past.

The editorial, in part, said:

"Sen. Edward V. Long of Missouri has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election in 1968. He already has filed. He should be denied the nomination. And if by mischance he does get the nomination he should be defeated in the November general election.

"The News-Press and Gazette have supported Ed Long. We say, now without too much bragging, that we were perhaps the first newspapers to announce for Ed Long when he ran after being named by then Gov. James Blair to take the seat of deceased Sen. Thomas Hennings. He was elected in November 1960 for the 2-year unexpired term and then for a full 6-year term in 1962.

The editorial then pointed out that many weeks had gone by since Life magazine printed a story that Long had received $48,000 in monthly installments from Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer, attorney for James Hoffa, Teamsters union leader, now in prison.

"Time after time Senator Long has been asked, and given chances without number, to explain these money transfers which he calls referrals. He has refused. He has tried, not too successfully, to insinuate that Internal Revenue Service is after him for his campaign against wire tapping. Hogwash!

The editorial also said: "Without knowing who will be his next opponent in the primary next August we are against Ed Long."

If you're looking for a gasoline tax bargain on an auto trip, try Texas - where much of the gasoline comes from.

The immediacy of the supply may have nothing to do with it, but Texas does have one of the nation's lowest state gas taxes - 5 cents on the gallon. The same rate prevails in Kansas, Missouri, and most of Hawaii.

The tax-conscious driver might well steer clear of the state of Washington, which recently raised its motor fuel tax to 9 cents - the highest in the nation. The federal 4-cent gas excise ups the total Washington tax to 13 cents on every gallon - over one-third of the average U.S. gas price, 33 cents.

In addition there are local gasoline taxes, but only 254 towns and cities charge them. Of these, 237 are located in Alabama, where federal, state and local authorities share revenues of 14 cents on every gallon.

State gasoline taxes originated in 1919 when Oregon initiated a good-old-days charge of one cent a gallon. Recognizing a money-raiser when they saw it, other states soon slapped their own taxes on motor fuel; within 10 years, all 48 states then in the union had gas taxes.

In 1965, 14 states cleared over $100 million each in motor fuel taxes, according to the Federal Bureau of Public Roads. Drivers in California, who used almost 7 billion gallons of gas that year, poured almost $600 million into the state's coffers - the highest amount in the country.

Every hour, over $900,000 in motor fuel taxes is collected by state and federal authorities, says the American Petroleum Institute.

The federal government, seeking to overcome the Great Depression, first levied a tax on gasoline in 1932. Ironically, this "temporary emergency measure" is now 35 years old and brings in about $3 billion annually.

Federal gasoline taxes have produced revenues of nearly $33 billion since their inception.

The first state fuel tax was channeled into road construction- "to help the early motorists get out of the mud" as Ed Mulligan of the American Petroleum Institute puts it. Highway construction and maintenace is still the aim of most state and federal gasoline levies.

Rising gas taxes trace to the mushrooming American road system. During the 15-year period beginning in 1950, expenditures on highway rose 262 per cent - increasing ten times as fast as the population, which registered a 26 per cent increase.

Motor fuel revenues are the principal source of funds for the Interstate Highway System, a group of federally backed, limited-access interstate highways scheduled for 1973 completion. Federal gas taxes pay 3/4 to 4/5 of Washington's 90 per cent share in that program and also help foot another federal-state project, development of primary and secondary roads. But while federal gas revenues are used exclusively for highway repair and construction, motor fuel taxes, in a limited number of states, finance anything from school to welfare agencies. Although state taxes were initially directed at highway costs, the financial dilemma of the 1930's forced some states to divert gas funds for purposes of little concern to the motorist.

Funds are still being funneled away to non-highway projects - to the tune of $655 million a year, according to the Petroleum Institute.

For example, New Jersey charged neither an income nor a sales tax for many years; it relied on gas and registration taxes to cover many general expenditures.

Local allocation of funds from gas taxes - usually a 1 to 3 cent charge per gallon - is even more random than state practice.

Only 26 of the 237 tax-levying towns in Alabama use fuel money exclusively for roads. In most of the areas, gas dollars pay for any municipal cost - bonds, schools and the fire department. In Mississippi says The Petroleum Institute, three counties "levy for the levee" - using motor fuel funds to shore up the river wall.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

AFTER 30 YEARS - RELIEF A FAILURE?

For those who can remember, it was in the depression of the 1930s that the government launched a "temporary" relief program to help people until they could get back to work.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a message to Congress, declared: "The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief. . .Continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration, fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, subtle destroyer of the human spirit."

Today, more than 30 years later - despite a huge Social Security program, boom times and widespread labor shortages - relief is flourishing as never before.

Furthermore, U.S. News & World Report points out that welfare "clients" are making protest marches to demand higher monthly allowances. The number of people on relief has passed 8.25 million.

That is 1 million more people than were on relief in the depression year of 1936. It is almost as many people as live in the entire State of Michigan; around twice as many as live in such states as Louisiana, Wisconsin or Virginia.

Also, U.S. News & World Report states that "antipoverty" projects enroll 1.1 million persons, and 1.1 million draw unemployment pay.

Taxpayers support relief "clients" with nearly 7 billion dollars a year in Federal, State and local funds. Much of the money goes to pay an expanding and increasingly militant relief bureaucracy. The relief empire continues to grow. In the past 10 years, despite record prosperity, people on relief have increased by 50 per cent and costs have risen twice as fast, by 119 per cent.

To many members of Congress and some officials of State and local governments, according to USN&WR, it seems obvious that relief is a giant failure.

Instead of temporary aid, relief has become a permanent way of life for millions. Second and third generations of families now live on relief. Children of relief families get married, then apply to the welfare office for aid as a new family unit. There are known situations that parallel this right here in Atchison.

Special aid for children is only one of the ways the original relief concept has been expanded until it how stretches from the cradle to grave. Here is what has happened:

Among the 8,250,000 persons in America receiving some form of public aid in February, 1967, latest month for which figures were available, 7,558,000 were under these four federal-aid programs - dependent children, 4,817,000; disabled persons, 592,000; needy blind, 83,300; needy aged, 2,066,000.

"What it amounts to," said a congressional critic, "is that the 75 million working people of America are supporting their own families as well as those of 9 or 10 million other Americans who either can't work or don't want to work."

Although numerous solutions are offered when taxpayers get their dander up, the real crux of the welfare situation gets down to one simple denominator - relief versus paycheck.

Congressional sources claim it is impossible for relief families with large broods of children to collect up to $6,000 or $7,000 a year in welfare. As one man said: "The mother gets an increase in her welfare check every time she has another child." So why should someone on relief take a job that will earn them less.

Further inequities are shown in this comparison: "A man and wife can work all their lives, paying the maximum in payroll withholding taxes into the Social Security Trust Fund, and upon retirement at age 65 collect $3,311 a year in Social Security benefits. If the man was the sole wage earner, the combined benefit for man and wife is $2,447 a year.

"A relief couple in New York, with six children - unemployed and contributing nothing to the productivity of the nation - can collect $4,-713 a year in tax-free welfare benefits. If their rent is more than $91.50 a month, the welfare subsidy could go over $5,000 a year - double the retired couple's Social Security pension."

What bothers us is that we find numerous employers who say they cannot get men and women for the jobs that are available - and the biggest demand is for people in clerical and sales work, service trades, semiskilled and unskilled labor. Admittedly, the pay isn't the highest in some categories but there should be incentives for people to break away from the relief pattern, acquire work habits, and learn to become self-sufficient.

Within the welfare world, however, USN&WR reports pressure is building in the opposite direction. The National Welfare Rights Movement - an organization of welfare "clients" with headquarters in Washington - is demanding minimum relief payments of at least $3,150 a year per family, nationwide.

One thing for sure, the American taxpayers need to realize that relief is mostly a failure and force Congress to make the changes necessary to induce people on relief to seek some work or lose their welfare check. And, frankly, the welfare program stinks with politics even on the local level. - Atchison, Kansas Globe.

ACCIDENTS CAN BE PREVENTED

A decent harvest was anything but certain for the old time farmer. He was at the mercy of not only the weather but also pests, disease and soil erosion. Though he did his best, he could only wait and hope.

Times have changed. The modern American farmer employs good management, horsepower, fertilizer, chemicals, "can do" crop and livestock varieties, efficient drainage and irrigation systems. Little is left to chance or luck.

When it comes to safety, however, many farmers are still back in the dark ages. They trust to luck and don't plan ahead to prevent accidents. Each year, as a consequence, 8,000 farm people die, an additional 750,000 are injured and more than $2 billion is lost.

Farm accidents can be prevented - by farmers themselves. The same concepts you use to assure a successful harvest will work in accident prevention: Good planning, good practices and leaving as little as possible to luck.

PREDICTABLE LONG VOTE

The junior U.S. Senator from Missouri, Edward V. Long, had once again demonstrated where his interests are by voting against the public interest on the railroad back-to-work bill. Sen. Long voted four-square against the public by casting his ballot against the measure that would restore railroad service, thus ending the danger of crippling the national economy.

To his credit, Missouri' senior U.S. Senator, Stuart Symington, voted for the bill, as did the bootheel's U.S. Representative, Paul C. Jones.

After Sen. Long cast his vote this week against the public interest, Missourians have continued cause to question just which group the legislator-lawyer-cattleman from Bowling Green is really interested in representing.

Although it is unfair to second-guess his vote, at least some Missourians who have been shocked and displeased at recent disclosures on Sen. Long's activities could have safely predicted how he would vote on the railroad bill this week. - Daily Dunklin Democrat

EVER STAND AT ONE SIDE and watch a group of boys going away for induction or even a physical examination leading up to active military service? Maybe one of those boys was your son, your boy friend, or even your husband. We've done it many a time, beginning back in 1942 when we sent our sons away, and during the years of the war when we were on the draft board. It's not a happy moment for anyone, although there is a definite feeling of great pride that goes along with that deep depression. Monday afternoon we watched a group leave and when they were where they could not see, we saw tears that are shed every time a similar group goes away. We can go back almost fifty years when we boarded a train at Paris and all of our family, together with our girl friend, were at the depot to see us off. The only tears we saw were shed by our grandfather, a Civil War veteran. After we were out of sight, however, our mother and girl friend shed their tears just like the modern mothers and girl friends do. We have no doubt some of the men do, too, but they make strong efforts to keep anyone from seeing them. - Edgar Blanton in the Shelbina Democrat

Can you imagine a person discovering that the vehicle he recently purchased is stolen and must be immediately returned to its rightful owner? Well, this dilemma has fallen on a great number of people and a good deal of money has been lost as a result.

There are, however, certain things that you can do to protect yourself against purchasing a stolen vehicle. The Missouri State Highway Patrol suggests the following: 1. Buy your vehicle from a reputable dealer or person. 2. Make sure there is a title issued for the vehicle you intend to purchase. Ask to see it. 3. Check to see if the title or assignment is in the name of the person or dealer who is offering the vehicle for sale. 4. Verify the serial numbers on the vehicle to be purchased with the serial numbers shown on the certificate of ownership.

It will pay you both in time and dollars to follow these suggestions on the Highway Patrol. At the same time you will be playing an invaluable role in combating auto theft by making it more difficult for the thieves to dispose of their stolen loot.

HOW ABOUT --"TOMORROW"?

And this "tomorrow" doesn't mean the day-after-today, but rather the far-off tomorrow -- those yet dim days when man will casually pop off to the moon or other far-flung planets. According to one men's wear authority, "There will be no more climate. The whole cvilized world will be temperature controlled. Therefore, cold weather clothes will disappear. The air will be dirt-filtered. And you will walk through an electronic room which will draw away the few remaining lint flecks which adhere to you. Paper money and coins will disappear and a worldwide credit number will be assigned to you, and attached or tattooed on you in some way. Pockets will disappear, as will handkerchiefs -- for the common cold will by then be cured."

COUP IN GREECE: HISTORIC LESSON

The military take - over in Greece is a sobering reminder of a reality we tend to ignore in the heat of any East-West confrontation.

This is that the defeat of communism by arms in the field does not insure that an era of tranquility and progress will automatically descend upon the winner. The economic, political, and social problems that beset a nation, though they may be exploited by the Communists, exist independantly of that exploitation.

Greece was the scene of the first American challenge to the satellie-absorbing expansionism of the Soviet Union after World War II. Out of Greece's long travail against Communist guerrillas was born the Truman Doctrine and Marshall Plan and North Atlantic alliance. The successful outcome of the decision to aid Greece has inspired and guided U.S. foreign policy ever since.

Now, more than 20 years and $1.8 billion in military aid and $1.7 billion in economic aid later, the Greek army in a swift coup has instituted a dictatorship, arrested 5,000 potential opponents and banned the leading leftist party--all with the highest patriotic motives and in the belief that only such drastic steps would prevent the country from falling into the hands of the extreme left, if not of communism itself.

In Greece, an all-too-familiar story is being enacted. It is new proof that the struggle to arrive at a middle ground between a dictatorship of the left and one of the right can be as difficult and far longer lasting than a contest against armed aggression or subversion. Setback in that struggle can nullify everything gained by victory in a test of arms.

In Vietnam, we have not yet arrived at the second stage; the end to the first is nowhere in sight. East hopes that a military victory, or at least a cessation of hostilities, will thenceforth make South Vietnam safe for democracy have to be re-evaluated in the light of what has taken place in Greece, the ancient birthplace of democracy.

This is not cause for despair, however. South Korea, to name but one nation, shows that both wars -- the war of men's bodies and the other for their minds-- can be won.

Korea had its political troubles following the end of the war there. But it has now held its second free election since the upheaval which saw the ouster of Syngman Rhee. The country is soaring economically.

We often hear the complaint that we settled for less than "victory" in the shooting war in Korea. Yet the other war, the most important war of all, appears well on the way to success.

Unfortunately, just the opposite is the present situation in Greece. As for Vietnam, it will be a long time before we can even begin to talk about "victory" in either war.

Independent retailers who have sought space in shopping center complexes only to learn that their financial standing was not sufficient to meet the lease requirements should contact their nearest branch office of the Small Business Administration, the legislative staff of the National Federation of Independent Business advises.

Under a recent ruling by the SBA, a plan has been set up whereby certain qualified retailers can obtain SBA guarantees which would permit them to take advantage of locating in centers where adequate parking is provided plus other advantages.

Under the regulations, the SBA will under certain conditions guarantee such leases generally for not less than five years nor more than 20. The business must put in escrow with the agency a sum equal to one-fourth of a year's minimum rental. A service charge of not more than 2-1/2 per cent of the minimum yearly rent will also be required.

The SBA will either participate in guaranteeing such leases with surety companies, or will assume the entire guarantee.

Unavailability of space in shopping centers for smaller firms due to the insistence of developers and their financial backers that leases only be given to large corporate assets has been a constant source of continued complaints received by the Federation.

STRETCHING ITS AUTHORITY

The U.S. Supreme Court is in recess now until fall, a fact which must cause many thoughtful Americans to breathe a sigh of relief. But the relief is premature. There is no evidence to indicate that when the Court resumes work there will be any chance in its policy of basing important decisions on vague implications read into the Federal Constitution by a majority of the Justices of the Court.

The list of such decisions by the Warren Court is long and disheartening. The Court, often by five-to-four decisions, has stretched its authority beyond what any objective observer would consider the breaking point.

Specifically, the Warren Court has denied to Congress powers long believed to be possessed by that body. It has reached out to rewrite statues in the way some Justices thought Congress should have written them in the first place. It has upset provisions of state constitutions approved by the voters of the states. It has based decisions upon sociological works instead of the law.

Our Constitution provides that this basic document can be amended only by the states. It provides also that all powers not specifically delegated to the Federal Government nor specifically prohibited to the states shall be "reserved to the states, or to the people."

The Supreme Court in the last dozen years has gone far toward drastically modifying this provision -- Article X -- of the Constitution. It seems set on destroying the provision. The Tenth Amendment can be saved only by action of Congress spurred on by the people. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Every society has its rituals, and in the modern business office no ritual is more sacred than the staff conference.

Theoretically, a conference is held to solve problems or to consider new proposals to advance the firm. In fact, the conference at best is a way to pass the time between the morning coffee break and lunch; at its worst it serves as a torture session which enables the boss to torment his executives.

All conferences start in dramatic hopefulness. On the huge table before each seat is a shiny new memo pad and half a dozen freshly sharpened pencils.

The executives enter and greet each other as warily as professional boxers going into the ring. Who knows which will be carried hors de combat before the meeting is over?

If you have ever attended one of these office brain-drain sessions, you will find the following characters familiar:

The Eager Beaver— Inexperienced in office-jungle wiles, the junior executives leaps at the invitation of the boss to advance some new suggestions. He has half a dozen ready. But as he floats them up like toy balloons, the older executives sadistically shoot them down as if they were wielding elephant guns. In 15 minutes the junior executive ages 15 years.

The Treasurer — No matter what is suggested, he objects, "That'll cost too much." If he had his way, they'd throw out typewriters and go back to goose-quill pens because goose-quill pens are less expensive.

The doodler— He appears to be busy scribbling down notes on what the other executives say. What he is actually doing, however, is drawing pictures of glamorous girls— and adding long beards to their faces.

The Fugitive— By prearranged plan, he has his secretary enter and announce, "Detroit's on the phone, sir. It sounds important." He makes his escape and doesn't return until he is sure the conference is about ready to break up.

The Neanderthal Man— The senior vice president has been with the organization since the days when businessmen wore tall beaver hats. To each proposed change he has the same rebuttal? "We tried that in 1908, and it didn't work. We tried it also in 1917 and 1929 and 1935 and 1953, and it didn't work. So why try it again now?"

The Cheerleader— Never having had an idea of his own, he tries to lighten the mood by telling a few jokes all have heard before. The other executives have a feeling that before long this guy's white brick ranch house in the suburbs will have a "for sale" sign on it.

Mr. Big Himself— After a dreary hour of fruitless hemming, hawing and buck passing, the boss says, "Well, it doesn't look like we're getting very far today. Same place, same time tomorrow. Maybe by then one of you zipperheads will be able to come up with something more constructive than excuses."

That's the only sure thing about office staff conferences: As in drinking, one just leads to another. They're habit forming.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- What the United States needs today is a giant Marshall Plan to rebuild the ghettos of our big cities and rehabilitate their people.

We spent several billion rebuilding the ruined cities of Europe after World War II and putting both our allies and our enemies back on their feet. It was a good investment. We still spend about three billion a year to battle Communism around the world.

Meanwhile, we have Negro insurrection in our major cities with effects worse than Communism, all because we refuse to remedy the basic causes -- poverty, slum housing, overcrowded schools, inadequate teachers, alcoholism, and crime. These are conditions which the Communist countries that we oppose abroad have remedied but which get progressively worse in America.

The chances of getting a Marshall Plan for America through Congress, however, are almost nil -- for two reasons:

1-The violence of the American Negro which has turned public sentiment against him. He is his own worst enemy. The more he wreaks vengeance on the white man, the more the white man, who is in a majority, turns against him.

2- The make-up of Congress which is elected by white, rural America, with the small towns holding control of the key committee chairmanships. Men like Rep. William Colmer of Mississippi, who heads the rules committee and can control which legislation reaches the House for a vote, is not going to help push a Marshall Plan for America. As a result of riots, more and more northern Congressmen are now living up with the south.

SLAPPING DOWN THE CITIES

Both points are illustrated by what happened in Congress last week. While Negro violence spread from Newark, to Plainfield, to Detroit, the House of Representatives laughed down a relatively small appropriation of $20,000,000 to fight slum rats, and earlier cut the model cities program in half while killing rent subsidies altogether.

In contrast, it voted $750,000 last week to study a canal between Pittsburgh and Lake Erie which almost no one except Rep. Mike Kirwan, D-Ohio, wants; earlier voted $10,000,000 to build a fancy fish aquarium for the District of Columbia which few people wanted; has voted many millions over the years to clean water hyacinths out of southern waterways because they clog the propellers of pleasure boats; allocated $20,000,000 to switch a food and drug laboratory from Beltsville, Md., to Madison, Wis., and earlier voted money for a cottonweed control station in the Mississippi district of Rep. Jamie Whitten and a peanut laboratory in Sen. Dick Russell's state of Georgia because these two powerful rural solons held up the farm bill appropriation until they got what they wanted.

Last week, in further contrast, the House voted an anti-riot bill which many Congressmen consider unconstitutional and which will do nothing to stop the basic cause of the race riots.

In view of the above, there is little chance of a Marshall Plan for America to bring better housing, new schools, better teachers and job training to the big cities. And probably there will be no chance as long as Negro demands are made at the point of the brick, the sniper's bullet, and the Molotov cocktail.

However, what the white rural Congress must realize is that people who have nothing to lose aren't scared of anything. So they'll continue fighting and rioting and brick-throwing until they've got something to lose.

AMBITION AND DIGNITY

Vice President Humphrey, who is LBJ's trouble-shooter on race relations, has been reminding Negro leaders that the Irish, the Jews, the Italians, and quite recently the Cubans migrated to this country and pulled themselves up to being leaders of the community without government grants; therefore, Negroes should do the same.

But history shows that when the Irish first invaded America there were race riots in New York and Philadelphia which made the Newark and Detroit riots look like Sunday school picnics. There were also serious Negro riots. Against 26 killed in Newark in 1967, there were 1,200 people killed in New York in 1862, because Negroes were blamed for the Civil War Draft Act.

History also shows that during 350 years of American slavery the Negro was kept in a state of bartered serfdom in which he lost the human qualities so necessary to taking an important place in modern society. He lost ambition and he lost dignity.

No human being could cherish ambition when he could look forward to nothing more than future years of slavery. And few men could keep their dignity when subject to the absolute order of other men who own them.

The Irish, the Italians, the other immigrants to this country threw off their smackles of serfdom several centuries before they came to this country. Pride and ambition drove them and their sons forward to becoming mayors of American cities, judges, Congressmen and presidents of the United States.

They had a long head start over the Negro. This is what some of our rural congressmen need to realize when they laughingly veto money to eradicate rats, or kill rent subsidies or ridicule the anti-poverty program, or hamstring the model cities project. These are just drops in the bucket toward a Marshall Plan for America so badly needed to remedy our most dangerous and depressing domestic problem.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

PETE (GO-TO-HELL) WEBER BACK AGAIN

Heavy Indictments of Congressional Kingmaker Sweats Some Solons on The Hill.

Washington, D.C.; - It's going to be a long, hot summer for some of the solons even in the cool air of The Hill - because of a heat wave the Justice Dept. has just unleashed in Newark, N.J. Some of the Congressmen from that State have been playing with a firebrand, otherwise known as Peter Weber, ex-pug, gay yachtsman, professional labor leader, promoter of camouflaging charities, Congressional kingmaker and, of course, the Local 825 Operating Engineers President and Business Manager who once told President Johnson's economic advisers to go to hell.

Just a few weeks ago, Peter Weber, always ready to throw money and manpower, trucks and caravans, loudspeakers and printed literature into campaigns of friendly Congressmen, stood with another labor leader, also under investigation, and chuckled at the futility and impotence of the government.

Now the "Federals" have hit Weber with a multi-count set of indictments for violating the Hobbs anti-terror, anti-extortion act and the Taft -Hartley Law.

Shaggy, 225-pound Weber is one of the most powerful figures in the Labor-managment arena of the $90-billion national heavy construction industry - and one of the most feared.

Grand Jury indictments charge him with threatening to provoke labor trouble, financial and economic disaster and other assorted pressure on major construction firms involved in building a petroleum products pipeline from Texas and Oklahoma to northern New Jersey. At the northern end, Weber hit a 90-mile strip. For the moment the details are not important except that they affected a $776,387 contract and allegedly considerable extortion rolling into many thousands. Also conspiracy with other co-defendants.

What is vital is that this man, friend and intimate companion of an aging mobster and extortionist, Joe Fay (imprisoned for extorting $238,000 from contractors) could remain in power for so long.

Vital is the fact that he could defy not only the White House in loud and brutal language but also his own International president Hunter Wharton - who supposedly outranks him. Wharton, an ice cream-eating, educated, 66-year-old "new breed" labor chief, comes from Carnegie Institute of Technology and last September was awarded an honorary law degree by Fordham University.

What is critical is that Weber could be sought out by Congressmen wanting support. Not too long ago he was part of a group which was set to run a banquet in honor of a U.S. Senator at which Gov. Romney was scheduled to speak. Weber and his colleagues vetoed Romney because they didn't like his politics. The dinner was postponed for reasons unrelated to the Romney incident.

What is strange is that this notorious man should not have been probed by his own movement. It was 15 months ago that this column - April 4, 1966 - reported a massive investigation of the pipeline construction. Many insiders knew that teams of FBI men, IRS accountants, Bureau of Labor-Management (Landrum - Griffin) compliance officers and lawyers of the Justice Dept. criminal division were ranging the land from Texas and Oklahoma to New Jersey investigating Weber. For over a year this column has been warning of the breaking scandal. Yet Weber ran high, took high office and a very handsome salary and expense account.

The new grand jury action is not the first. He is yet to be tried on a 1962 charge of violating the Taft-Hartley law for allegedly receiving payments from an employer with whom he negotiated for his men.

He had shares in two companies. Theoretically, therefore, he sat on both sides of the bargaining table. The charges then also included allegations that he had received almost $15,000 in profits, credit cards, services and five handsome automobiles.

Weber has had his local divided into an upper and lower class proletariat - A, B, etc. So are other Operating Engineers units. The men in the lower depths can vote but can't run for office.

Thus, the insiders say Weber and officials such as he elsewhere in the nation perpetuate themselves in office. There do not seem to be any standards to measure this Mr. Big. He is of the new and privileged class.

If the charges of the Newark Grand Jury are correct - and they are not lightly made for they are the result of a probe begun in January 1965 - the cost of Weber to the public is high, indeed.

The transmission of fuel is involved. In other areas public construction is involved. Federal men say that there have been times when one word from Weber tied up hundreds of millions of dollars of such construction.

Well, we'll soon see if the 225-pound Weber is bigger than the law and whether national lawmakers still believe he's a man for all political seasons.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

AFTER 30 YEARS - RELIEF A FAILURE?

For those who can remember, it was in the depression of the 1930s that the government launched a "temporary" relief program to help people until they could get back to work.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a message to Congress, declared: "The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief. . .Continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration, fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, subtle destroyer of the human spirit."

Today, more than 30 years later - despite a huge Social Security program, boom times and widespread labor shortages - relief is flourishing as never before.

Furthermore, U.S. News & World Report points out that welfare "clients" are making protest marches to demand higher monthly allowances. The number of people on relief has passed 8.25 million.

That is 1 million more people than were on relief in the depression year of 1936. It is almost as many people as live in the entire State of Michigan; around twice as many as live in such states as Louisiana, Wisconsin or Virginia.

Also, U.S. News & World Report states that "antipoverty" projects enroll 1.1 million persons, and 1.1 million draw unemployment pay.

Taxpayers support relief "clients" with nearly 7 billion dollars a year in Federal, State and local funds. Much of the money goes to pay an expanding and increasingly militant relief bureaucracy. The relief empire continues to grow. In the past 10 years, despite record prosperity, people on relief have increased by 50 per cent and costs have risen twice as fast. by 119 per cent.

To many members of Congress and some officials of State and local governments, according to USN&WR, it seems obvious that relief is a giant failure.

Instead of temporary aid, relief has become a permanent way of life for millions. Second and third generations of families now live on relief. Children of relief families get married, then apply to the welfare office for aid as a new family unit. There are known situations that parallel this right here in Atchison.

Special aid for children is only one of the ways the original relief concept has been expanded until it how stretches from the cradle to grave. Here is what has happened:

Among the 8,259,000 persons in America receiving some form of public aid in February, 1967, latest month for which figures were available, 7,558,000 were under these four federal-aid programs - dependent children, 4,817,000; disabled persons, 592,000; needy blind, 83,300; needy aged, 2,066,000.

"What it amounts to," said a congressional critic, "is that the 75 million working people of America are supporting their own families as well as those of 9 or 10 million other Americans who either can't work or don't want to work."

Although numerous solutions are offered when taxpayers get their dander up, the real crux of the welfare situation gets down to one simple denominator - relief versus paycheck.

Congressional sources claim it is impossible for relief families with large broods of children to collect up to $6,000 or $7,000 a year in welfare. As one man said: "The mother gets an increase in her welfare check every time she has another child." So why should someone on relief take a job that will earn them less.

Further inequities are shown in this comparison: "A man and wife can work all their lives, paying the maximum in payroll withholding taxes into the Social Security Trust Fund, and upon retirement at age 65 collect $3,311 a year in Social Security benefits. If the man was the sole wage earner, the combined benefit for man and wife is $2,447 a year.

"A relief couple in New York, with six children - unemployed and contributing nothing to the productivity of the nation - can collect $4,713 a year in tax-free welfare benefits. If their rent is more than $91.50 a month, the welfare subsidy could go over $5,000 a year - double the retired couple's Social Security pension."

What bothers us is that we find numerous employers who say they cannot get men and women for the jobs that are available - and the biggest demand is for people in clerical and sales work, service trades, semiskilled and unskilled labor. Admittedly, the pay isn't the highest in some categories but there should be incentives for people to break away from the relief pattern, acquire work habits, and learn to become self-sufficient.

Within the welfare world, however, USN&WR reports pressure is building in the opposite direction. The National Welfare Rights Movement - an organization of welfare "clients" with headquarters in Washington - is demanding minimum relief payments of at least $3,150 a year per family, nationwide.

One thing for sure, the American taxpayers need to realize that relief is mostly a failure and force Congress to make the changes necessary to induce people on relief to seek some work or lose their welfare check. And, frankly, the welfare program stinks with politics even on the local level. - Atchison, Kansas Globe.

ACCIDENTS CAN BE PREVENTED

A decent harvest was anything but certain for the old time farmer. He was at the mercy of not only the weather but also pests, disease and soil erosion. Though he did his best, he could only wait and hope.

Times have changed. The modern American farmer employs good management, horsepower, fertilizer, chemicals, "can do" crop and livestock varieties, efficient drainage and irrigation systems. Little is left to chance or luck.

When it comes to safety, however, many farmers are still back in the dark ages. They trust to luck and don't plan ahead to prevent accidents. Each year, as a consequence, 8,000 farm people die, an additional 750,000 are injured and more than $2 billion is lost.

Farm accidents can be prevented - by farmers themselves. The same concepts you use to assure a successful harvest will work in accident prevention: Good planning, good practices and leaving as little as possible to luck.

PREDICTABLE LONG VOTE

The junior U.S. Senator from Missouri, Edward V. Long, had once again demonstrated where his interests are by voting against the public interest on the railroad back-to-work bill. Sen. Long voted four-square against the public by casting his ballot against the measure that would restore railroad service, thus ending the danger of crippling the national economy.

To his credit, Missouri' senior U.S. Senator, Stuart Symington, voted for the bill, as did the bootheel's U.S. Representative, Paul C. Jones.

After Sen. Long cast his vote this week against the public interest, Missourians have continued cause to question just which group the legislator-lawyer-cattleman from Bowling Green is really interested in representing.

Although it is unfair to second-guess his vote, at least some Missourians who have been shocked and displeased at recent disclosures on Sen. Long's activities could have safely predicted how he would vote on the railroad bill this week. - Daily Dunklin Democrat

EVER STAND AT ONE SIDE and watch a group of boys going away for induction or even a physical examination leading up to active military service? Maybe one of those boys was your son, your boy friend, or even your husband. We've done it many a time, beginning back in 1942 when we sent our sons away, and during the years of the war when we were on the draft board. It's not a happy moment for anyone, although there is a definite feeling of great pride that goes along with that deep depression. Monday afternoon we watched a group leave and when they were where they could not see, we saw tears that are shed every time a similar group goes away. We can go back almost fifty years when we boarded a train at Paris and all of our family, together with our girl friend, were at the depot to see us off. The only tears we saw were shed by our grandfather, a Civil War veteran. After we were out of sight, however, our mother and girl friend shed their tears just like the modern mothers and girl friends do. We have no doubt some of the men do, too, but they make strong efforts to keep anyone from seeing them. - Edgar Blanton in the Shelbina Democrat

NEW YORK (AP) — Every society has its rituals, and in the modern business office no ritual is more sacred than the staff conference.

Theoretically, a conference is held to solve problems or to consider new proposals to advance the firm. In fact, the conference at best is a way to pass the time between the morning coffee break and lunch; at its worst it serves as a torture session which enables the boss to torment his executives.

All conferences start in dramatic hopefulness. On the huge table before each seat is a shiny new memo pad and half a dozen freshly sharpened pencils.

The executives enter and greet each other as warily as professional boxers going into the ring. Who knows which will be carried hors de combat before the meeting is over?

If you have ever attended one of these office brain-drain sessions, you will find the following characters familiar:

The Eager Beaver— Inexperienced in office-jungle wiles, the junior executives leaps at the invitation of the boss to advance some new suggestions. He has half a dozen ready. But as he floats them up like toy balloons, the older executives sadistically shoot them down as if they were wielding elephant guns. In 15 minutes the junior executive ages 15 years.

The Treasurer — No matter what is suggested, he objects, "That'll cost too much." If he had his way, they'd throw out typewriters and go back to goose-quill pens because goose-quill pens are less expensive.

The doodler— He appears to be busy scribbling down notes on what the other executives say. What he is actually doing, however, is drawing pictures of glamorous girls— and adding long beards to their faces.

The Fugitive— By prearranged plan, he has his secretary enter and announce, "Detroit's on the phone, sir. It sounds important." He makes his escape and doesn't return until he is sure the conference is about ready to break up.

The Neanderthal Man— The senior vice president has been with the organization since the days when businessmen wore tall beaver hats. To each proposed change he has the same rebuttal? "We tried that in 1908, and it didn't work. We tried it also in 1917 and 1929 and 1935 and 1953, and it didn't work. So why try it again now?"

The Cheerleader— Never having had an idea of his own, he tries to lighten the mood by telling a few jokes all have heard before. The other executives have a feeling that before long this guy's white brick ranch house in the suburbs will have a "for sale" sign on it.

Mr. Big Himself— After a dreary hour of fruitless hemming, hawing and buck passing, the boss says, "Well, it doesn't look like we're getting very far today. Same place, same time tomorrow. Maybe by then one of you zipperheads will be able to come up with something more constructive than excuses."

That's the only sure thing about office staff conferences: As in drinking, one just leads to another. They're habit forming.

Can you imagine a person discovering that the vehicle he recently purchased is stolen and must be immediately returned to its rightful owner? Well, this dilemma has fallen on a great number of people and a good deal of money has been lost as a result.

There are, however, certain things that you can do to protect yourself against purchasing a stolen vehicle. The Missouri State Highway Patrol suggests the following: 1. Buy your vehicle from a reputable dealer or person. 2. Make sure there is a title issued for the vehicle you intend to purchase. Ask to see it. 3. Check to see if the title or assignment is in the name of the person or dealer who is offering the vehicle for sale. 4. Verify the serial numbers on the vehicle to be purchased with the serial numbers shown on the certificate of ownership.

It will pay you both in time and dollars to follow these suggestions of the Highway Patrol. At the same time you will be playing an invaluable role in combating auto theft by making it more difficult for the thieves to dispose of their stolen loot.

HOW ABOUT --"TOMORROW"?

And this "tomorrow" doesn't mean the day-after-today, but rather the far-off tomorrow -- those yet dim days when man will casually pop off to the moon or other far-flung planets. According to one men's wear authority, "There will be no more climate. The whole cvilized world will be temperature controlled. Therefore, cold weather clothes will disappear. The air will be dirt-filtered. And you will walk through an electronic room which will draw away the few remaining lint flecks which adhere to you. Paper money and coins will disappear and a worldwide credit number will be assigned to you, and attached or tattooed on you in some way. Pockets will disappear, as will handkerchiefs -- for the common cold will by then be cured."

COUP IN GREECE:
HISTORIC LESSON

The military take - over in Greece is a sobering reminder of a reality we tend to ignore in the heat of any East-West confrontation.

This is that the defeat of communism by arms in the field does not insure that an era of tranquility and progress will automatically descend upon the winner. The economic, political, and social problems that beset a nation, though they may be exploited by the Communists, exist independantly of that exploitation.

Greece was the scene of the first American challenge to the satellie-absorbing expansionism of the Soviet Union after World War II. Out of Greece's long travail against Communist guerrillas was born the Truman Doctrine and Marshall Plan and North Atlantic alliance. The successful outcome of the decision to aid Greece has inspired and guided U.S. foreign policy ever since.

Now, more than 20 years and $1.8 billion in military aid and $1.7 billion in economic aid later, the Greek army in a swift coup has instituted a dictatorship, arrested 5,000 potential opponents and banned the leading leftist party--all with the highest patriotic motives and in the belief that only such drastic steps would prevent the country from falling into the hands of the extreme left, if not of communism itself.

In Greece, an all-too-familiar story is being enacted. It is new proof that the struggle to arrive at a middle ground between a dictatorship of the left and one of the right can be as difficult and far longer lasting than a contest against armed aggression or subversion. Setback in that struggle can nullify everything gained by victory in a test of arms.

In Vietnam, we have not yet arrived at the second stage; the end to the first is nowhere in sight. East hopes that a military victory, or at least a cessation of hostilities, will thenceforth make South Vietnam safe for democracy have to be re-evaluated in the light of what has taken place in Greece, the ancient birthplace of democracy.

This is not cause for despair, however. South Korea, to name but one nation, shows that both wars -- the war of men's bodies and the other for their minds-- can be won.

Korea had its political troubles following the end of the war there. But it has now held its second free election since the upheaval which saw the ouster of Syngman Rhee. The country is soaring economically.

We often hear the complaint that we settled for less than "victory" in the shooting war in Korea. Yet the other war, the most important war of all, appears well on the way to success.

Unfortunately, just the opposite is the present situation in Greece. As for Vietnam, it will be a long time before we can even begin to talk about "victory" in either war.

Independent retailers who have sought space in shopping center complexes only to learn that their financial standing was not sufficient to meet the lease requirements should contact their nearest branch office of the Small Business Administration, the legislative staff of the National Federation of Independent Business advises.

Under a recent ruling by the SBA, a plan has been set up whereby certain qualified retailers can obtain SBA guarantees which would permit them to take advantage of locating in centers where adequate parking is provided plus other advantages.

Under the regulations, the SBA will under certain conditions guarantee such leases generally for not less than five years nor more than 20. The business must put in escrow with the agency a sum equal to one-fourth of a year's minimum rental. A service charge of not more than 2-1/2 per cent of the minimum yearly rent will also be required.

The SBA will either participate in guaranteeing such leases with surety companies, or will assume the entire guarantee.

Unavailability of space in shopping centers for smaller firms due to the insistence of developers and their financial backers that leases only be given to large corporate assets has been a constant source of continued complaints received by the Federation.

H. L. Hunt Says

STRETCHING ITS AUTHORITY

The U.S. Supreme Court is in recess now until fall, a fact which must cause many thoughtful Americans to breathe a sigh of relief. But the relief is premature. There is no evidence to indicate that when the Court resumes work there will be any chance in its policy of basing important decisions on vague implications read into the Federal Constitution by a majority of the Justices of the Court.

The list of such decisions by the Warren Court is long and disheartening. The Court, often by five-to-four decisions, has stretched its authority beyond what any objective observer would consider the breaking point.

Specifically, the Warren Court has denied to Congress powers long believed to be possessed by that body. It has reached out to rewrite statues in the way some Justices thought Congress should have written them in the first place. It has upset provisions of state constitutions approved by the voters of the states. It has based decisions upon sociological works instead of the law.

Our Constitution provides that this basic document can be amended only by the states. It provides also that all powers not specifically delegated to the Federal Government nor specifically prohibited to the states shall be "reserved to the states, or to the people."

The Supreme Court in the last dozen years has gone far toward drastically modifying this provision -- Article X -- of the Constitution. It seems set on destroying the provision. The Tenth Amendment can be saved only by action of Congress spurred on by the people. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- What the United States needs today is a giant Marshall Plan to rebuild the ghettos of our big cities and rehabilitate their people.

We spent several billion rebuilding the ruined cities of Europe after World War II and putting both our allies and our enemies back on their feet. It was a good investment. We still spend about three billion a year to battle Communism around the world.

Meanwhile, we have Negro insurrection in our major cities with effects worse than Communism, all because we refuse to remedy the basic causes -- poverty, slum housing, overcrowded schools, inadequate teachers, alcoholism, and crime. These are conditions which the Communist countries that we oppose abroad have remedied but which get progressively worse in America.

The chances of getting a Marshall Plan for America through Congress, however, are almost nil -- for two reasons:

1-The violence of the American Negro which has turned public sentiment against him. He is his own worst enemy. The more he wreaks vengeance on the white man, the more the white man, who is in a majority, turns against him.

2- The make-up of Congress which is elected by white, rural America, with the small towns holding control of the key committee chairmanships. Men like Rep. William Colmer of Mississippi, who heads the rules committee and can control which legislation reaches the House for a vote, is not going to help push a Marshall Plan for America. As a result of riots, more and more northern Congressmen are now living up with the south.

SLAPPING DOWN THE CITIES

Both points are illustrated by what happened in Congress last week. While Negro violence spread from Newark, to Plainfield, to Detroit, the House of Representatives laughed down a relatively small appropriation of $20,000,000 to fight slum rats, and earlier cut the model cities program in half while killing rent subsidies altogether.

In contrast, it voted $750,000 last week to study a canal between Pittsburgh and Lake Erie which almost no one except Rep. Mike Kirwan, D-Ohio, wants; earlier voted $10,000,000 to build a fancy fish aquarium for the District of Columbia which few people wanted; has voted many millions over the years to clean water hyacinths out of southern waterways because they clog the propellers of pleasure boats; allocated $20,000,000 to switch a food and drug laboratory from Beltsville, Md., to Madison, Wis., and earlier voted money for a cottonweed control station in the Mississippi district of Rep. Jamie Whitten and a peanut laboratory in Sen. Dick Russell's state of Georgia because these two powerful rural solons held up the farm bill appropriation until they got what they wanted.

Last week, in further contrast, the House voted an anti-riot bill which many Congressmen consider unconstitutional and which will do nothing to stop the basic cause of the race riots.

In view of the above, there is little chance of a Marshall Plan for America to bring better housing, new schools, better teachers and job training to the big cities. And probably there will be no chance as long as Negro demands are made at the point of the brick, the sniper's bullet, and the Molotov cocktail.

However, what the white rural Congress must realize is that people who have nothing to lose aren't scared of anything. So they'll continue fighting and rioting and brick-throwing until they've got something to lose.

AMBITION AND DIGNITY

Vice President Humphrey, who is LBJ's trouble-shooter on race relations, has been reminding Negro leaders that the Irish, the Jews, the Italians, and quite recently the Cubans migrated to this country and pulled themselves up to being leaders of the community without government grants; therefore, Negroes should do the same.

But history shows that when the Irish first invaded America there were race riots in New York and Philadelphia which made the Newark and Detroit riots look like Sunday school picnics. There were also serious Negro riots. Against 26 killed in Newark in 1967, there were 1,200 people killed in New York in 1862, because Negroes were blamed for the Civil War Draft Act.

History also shows that during 350 years of American slavery the Negro was kept in a state of bartered serfdom in which he lost the human qualities so necessary to taking an important place in modern society. He lost ambition and he lost dignity.

No human being could cherish ambition when he could look forward to nothing more than future years of slavery. And few men could keep their dignity when subject to the absolute order of other men who own them.

The Irish, the Italians, the other immigrants to this country threw off their smackles of serfdom several centuries before they came to this country. Pride and ambition drove them and their sons forward to becoming mayors of American cities, judges, Congressmen and presidents of the United States.

They had a long head start over the Negro. This is what some of our rural congressmen need to realize when they laughingly veto money to eradicate rats, or kill rent subsidies or ridicule the anti-poverty program, or hamstring the model cities project. These are just drops in the bucket toward a Marshall Plan for America so badly needed to remedy our most dangerous and depressing domestic problem.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

PETE (GO-TO-HELL) WEBER BACK AGAIN

Heavy Indictments of Congressional Kingmaker Sweats Some Solons on The Hill.

Washington, D.C.; - It's going to be a long, hot summer for some of the solons even in the cool air of The Hill - because of a heat wave the Justice Dept. has just unleashed in Newark, N.J. Some of the Congressmen from that State have been playing with a firebrand, otherwise known as Peter Weber, ex-pug, gay yachtsman, professional labor leader, promoter of camouflaging charities, Congressional kingmaker and, of course, the Local 825 Operating Engineers President and Business Manager who once told President Johnson's economic advisers to go to hell.

Just a few weeks ago, Peter Weber, always ready to throw money and manpower, trucks and caravans, loudspeakers and printed literature into campaigns of friendly Congressmen, stood with another labor leader, also under investigation, and chuckled at the futility and impotence of the government.

Now the "Federals" have hit Weber with a multi-count set of indictments for violating the Hobbs anti-terror, anti-extortion act and the Taft -Hartley Law.

Shaggy, 225-pound Weber is one of the most powerful figures in the Labor-managment arena of the $90-billion national heavy construction industry - and one of the most feared.

Grand Jury indictments charge him with threatening to provoke labor trouble, financial and economic disaster and other assorted pressure on major construction firms involved in building a petroleum products pipeline from Texas and Oklahoma to northern New Jersey. At the northern end, Weber hit a 90-mile strip. For the moment the details are not important except that they affected a $776,387 contract and allegedly considerable extortion rolling into many thousands. Also conspiracy with other co-defendants.

What is vital is that this man, friend and intimate companion of an aging mobster and extortionist, Joe Fay (imprisoned for extorting $238,000 from contractors) could remain in power for so long.

Vital is the fact that he could defy not only the White House in loud and brutal language but also his own International president Hunter Wharton - who supposedly outranks him. Wharton, an ice cream-eating, educated, 66-year-old "new breed" labor chief, comes from Carnegie Institute of Technology and last September was awarded an honorary law degree by Fordham University.

What is critical is that Weber could be sought out by Congressmen wanting support. Not too long ago he was part of a group which was set to run a banquet in honor of a U.S. Senator at which Gov. Romney was scheduled to speak. Weber and his colleagues vetoed Romney because they didn't like his politics. The dinner was postponed for reasons unrelated to the Romney incident.

What is strange is that this notorious man should not have been probed by his own movement. It was 15 months ago that this column - April 4, 1966 - reported a massive investigation of the pipeline construction. Many insiders knew that teams of FBI men, IRS accountants, Bureau of Labor-Management (Landrum - Griffin) compliance officers and lawyers of the Justice Dept. criminal division were ranging the land from Texas and Oklahoma to New Jersey investigating Weber. For over a year this column has been warning of the breaking scandal. Yet Weber ran high, took high office and a very handsome salary and expense account.

The new grand jury action is not the first. He is yet to be tried on a 1962 charge of violating the Taft-Hartley law for allegedly receiving payments from an employer with whom he negotiated for his men.

He had shares in two companies. Theoretically, therefore, he sat on both sides of the bargaining table. The charges then also included allegations that he had received almost $15,000 in profits, credit cards, services and five handsome automobiles.

Weber has had his local divided into an upper and lower class proletariat - A, B, etc. So are other Operating Engineers units. The men in the lower depths can vote but can't run for office.

Thus, the insiders say Weber and officials such as he elsewhere in the nation perpetuate themselves in office. There do not seem to be any standards to measure this Mr. Big. He is of the new and privileged class.

If the charges of the Newark Grand Jury are correct - and they are not lightly made for they are the result of a probe begun in January 1965 - the cost of Weber to the public is high, indeed.

The transmission of fuel is involved. In other areas public construction is involved. Federal men say that there have been times when one word from Weber tied up hundreds of millions of dollars of such construction.

Well, we'll soon see if the 225-pound Weber is bigger than the law and whether national lawmakers still believe he's a man for all political seasons.

Mrs. Michael Glenn Lee

Martin-Lee Vows Exchanged July 9 in Webster Groves

WEBSTER GROVES -- Candlelight illumined the setting July 9 in the First Methodist church when Miss Hallie Janice Martin became the bride of Michael Glenn Lee of Sikeston.

Miss Martin is the daughter of Mrs. George A. Martin and the late Mr. Martin. Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Lee, Sikeston.

The Rev. John W. Ward, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony. The couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with antique silver candelabra holding white cathedral tapers and two large baskets of white gladioli and mums.

Pre-nuptial music was provided by Mrs. J. Lawrence Jones, organist. She also accompanied Richard Mallette who sang "I Love Thee" and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee." As the couple knelt at the prieu dieu for the benediction, he also sang the "Lord's Prayer" by Malott.

To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," the bride approached the altar down the white carpeted aisle. She wore a floor - length gown of pure white crepe. The empress bodice featured a scalloped neckline and was lavishly trimmed with French re- embroidered Alencon lace. The long lace sleeves came to lily points over the hands and were closed with many self - covered buttons. A queen's wetteau train of Alecon lace, bordered by white crepe, floated from the shoulders into a full chapel train.

White sweetheart roses held her elbow - length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses. White peau de soie slippers and articles in keeping with the traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue completed the bridal attire.

Miss Marilyn Leuders served her friend as maid of honor. Miss Taffy Terwester and Miss Sandra Whitelock were bridesmaids. They wore floor - length gowns of maize silk organza over peau de soie. Featuring modified empire waistlines outlined with bands of embroidered roses and floor - length organza trains that fell gracefully from their shoulders.

They wore matching headpieces of stand - up tulle fastened to bandeaus of miniature pink roses. Each carried a cascade bouquet of roses matching those on their headpieces and completed their attire with matching shoes and lace gloves, a gift from the bride.

Attending Lee as best man was Michael Parker of Dexter. Groomsmen were Roger Rideout, Poplar Bluff, and Larry Smith of St. Louis, fraternity brothers of the groom.

Ushers were Glenn Alsup, Sikeston, cousin of the groom; Albert Baker, Cape Girardeau, brother - in - law of the groom and James Walling, St. Louis, fraternity brother.

Men of the wedding party wore white formal tuxedoes and white carnation boutonnieres except the groom who wore a white butterfly rose.

Danny Martin, nephew of the bride, served as candlelighter and Miss Kelly Martin, niece, passed the rice bags.

Mrs. Martin wore for her daughter's wedding a frock of rose - beige lace with a pink hat and accessories to match. Her corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Lee, mother of the groom, wore a two piece frock of mint green dacron crepe. A matching hat and bone accessories completed her ensemble. She wore a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship room where the bridal couple received their guests.

The bride's table held an all white five column wedding cake. The serving table was covered with a white damask cloth caught at intervals with small wedding bells. A crystal punch bowl graced one end of the table while the other held the silver coffee service. An arrangement of white Marguerite daisies centered the table. Serving were Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. Larry Martin, sisters-in-law of the bride. Serving at the guest register was Mrs. Albert Baker, sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee left following the reception for a honeymoon in Biloxi, Miss., and New Orleans. For traveling the new Mrs. Lee wore a white linen frock trimmed with re - embroidered roses, white accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live in Sikeston where the groom is on the staff of a radio station.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee were hosts at a rehearsal dinner Saturday evening at Perkins' Restaurant in Clayton, honoring their son and his fiancee, Miss Hallie Martin. Members of the wedding party were guests and were presented gifts from the bridal couple.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Among the out - of - town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Castor Alsup, Glenn Alsup, Miss Rosemary Alsup, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Carl Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chapman, all from Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baker, Cape Girardeau and Mr. and mrs. Clifton Jones, Greenville, Ill.

JUDY COTHERN will be presentation queen for class three, pony class for children, sponsored by Fabick Bros. Equipment Company, in the society horse show at 8 p.m. Saturday at the rodeo grounds. The show is sponsored by the Semo Mounted Patrol.

Animal Traps

There are three general types of animal traps. The enclosing trap catches the animal without hurting it; the arresting trap grips the animal and holds it, but does not kill it; and the killing trap is made to grip the animal, then kill it with a blow from an extra lever.

Mary McCoy To Marry Gordon McEntire

Miss Mary Inez McCoy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melton McCoy, route one, will marry Gordon Lee McEntire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McEntire, Fresno, Calif., at 6 p.m. tonight at the First United Pentecostal church.

The Rev. Billie Butler will officiate.

Miss McCoy is employed at the Cream Castle.

McEntire is a graduate of Caruthers Union high school, Caruthers, Calif., and is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., for army basic training.

The couple will make their home in Fresno.

Trinity WMU Studies Communism

Mrs. Milem Limbaugh presided and minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Each chairman gave a progress report. Committee reports on the new church building were given.

Events for the coming months are: Workers for camp will be needed Aug. 18. Woman's Missionary Society leadership course will be held at the First Baptist church Aug. 31. Season of Prayer for state missions will be observed Sept. 13-15 at the home of Mrs. Truman Bennett. The mission study book, "The Holy Spirit in Missions" by J. B. Lawrence will be given by Mrs. Jo Ann Lively. Six Baptist churches, Temple, Murray Lane, Miner, Fellowship, Morehouse and Trinity, will be represented in this mission study. The meeting was adjourned for the July WMS study.

Mrs. Sherman Grant, program chairman, introduced the study, "Facing the Communist Challenge in Cuba, Panama, and Indonesia." A world map, flash card, the Bible, and a flip chart were used by the following members. Mrs. Glen Peel, Mrs. A. M. Jackson, Mrs. R. H. Mackley, Mrs. A. J. Heuiser, Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Marshall McGill. The group learned through the study that Communism seeks world domination, vows to eliminate religion, speaks untruthfully, breeds on hate, suspiciin, and chaos.

The study was dismissed by the reading of the prayer calendar.

Mrs. Michael Glenn Lee

Martin-Lee Vows Exchanged July 9 in Webster Groves

WEBSTER GROVES -- Candlelight illumined the setting July 9 in the First Methodist church when Miss Hallie Janice Martin became the bride of Michael Glenn Lee of Sikeston.

Miss Martin is the daughter of Mrs. George A. Martin and the late Mr. Martin. Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Lee, Sikeston.

The Rev. John W. Ward, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony. The couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with antique silver candelabra holding white cathedral tapers and two large baskets of white gladioli and mums.

Pre-nuptial music was provided by Mrs. J. Lawrence Jones, organist. She also accompanied Richard Mallette who sang "I Love Thee" and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee." As the couple knelt at the prieu dieu for the benediction, he also sang the "Lord's Prayer" by Malotte.

To the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," the bride approached the altar down the white carpeted aisle. She wore a floor-length gown of pure white crepe. The empress neckline and was lavishly trimmed with French re-embroidered Alencon lace. The long lace sleeves came to lily points over the hands and were closed with many self-covered buttons. A queen's wetteau train of Alecon lace, bordered by white crepe, floated from the shoulders into a full chapel train.

White sweetheart roses held her elbow-length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses. White peau de soie slippers and articles in keeping with the traditional something old, new, borrowed and blue completed the bridal attire.

Miss Marilyn Leuders served her friend as maid of honor. Miss Taffy Terwester and Miss Whitelock were bridesmaids. They wore floor-length gowns of maize silk organza over peau de soie. Featuring modified empire waistlines outlined with bands of embroidered roses and floor-length organza trains that fell gracefully from their shoulders.

They wore matching headpieces of stand-up tulle fastened to bandeaus of miniature pink roses. Each carried a cascade bouquet of roses matching those on their headpieces and completed their attire with matching shoes and lace gloves, a gift from the bride.

Attending Lee as best man was Michael Parker of Dexter. Groomsmen were Roger Rideout, Poplar Bluff, and Larry Smith of St. Louis, fraternity brothers of the groom.

Ushers were Glenn Alsup, Sikeston, cousin of the groom; Albert Baker, Cape Girardeau, brother-in-law of the groom and James Walling, St. Louis, fraternity brother.

Men of the wedding party wore white formal tuxedoes and white carnation boutonnieres except butterfly rose.

Danny Martin, nephew of the bride, served as candlelighter and Miss Kelly Martin, niece, passed the rice bags.

Mrs. Martin wore for her daughter's wedding a frock of rose-beige lace with a pink hat and accessories to match. Her corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Lee, mother of the groom, wore a two piece frock of mint green dacron crepe. A matching hat and bone accessories completed her ensemble. She wore a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship room where the bridal couple received their guests.

The bride's table held an all white five column wedding cake. The serving table was covered with a white damask cloth caught at intervals with small wedding bells. A crystal punch bowl graced one end of the table while the other held the silver coffee service. An arrangement of white Marguerite daisies centered the table. Serving were Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. Larry Martin, sisters-in-law of the bride. Serving at the guest register was Mrs. Albert Baker, sister of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee left following the reception for a honeymoon in Biloxi, Miss., and New Orleans. For traveling the new Mrs. Lee wore a white linen frock trimmed with re-embroidered roses, white accessories and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will live in Sikeston where the groom is on the staff of a radio station.

REHEARSAL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lee were hosts at a rehearsal dinner Saturday evening at Perkins' Restaurant in Clayton, honoring their son and his fiancee, Miss Hallie Martin. Members of the wedding party were guests and were presented gifts from the bridal couple.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Castor Alsup, Glenn Alsup, Miss Rosemary Alsup, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Carl Marsh, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Chapman, all from Sikeston; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baker, Cape Girardeau and Mr. and mrs. Clifton Jones, Greenville, Ill.

JUDY COTHERN will be presentation queen for class three, pony class for children, sponsored by Fabick Bros. Equipment Company, in the society horse show at 8 p.m. Saturday at the rodeo grounds. The show is sponsored by the Semo Mounted Patrol.

ISC To Defend Tournament Title

12 Battle For Championship

Sikeston's 12th Annual Little League baseball tournament for nine and ten year olds opens Monday at Puckett field with Illmo-Scott City the defending champ.

Two Sikeston teams, the Musial League All-Stars and Aces along with 10 other area teams will battle for the title.

Games are slated for every night next week with the championship game set for 8:30 p.m. Saturday. First games each night begin at 7 p.m.

Trophies will be awarded for the first four place winners. Two outstanding player awards will be presented. Last Year's winners were Randy Leiner of Illmo-Scott City's All-Stars and Fred Copeland of New Madrid.

Illmo-Scott City captured the championship contest last year, downing New Madrid 7-0. Sikeston placed third with an 8-6 win over Oran.

Illmo-Scott City and New Madrid are in the same bracket this year. They will meet in the semi-final round of the tournament and have no chance of meeting in the finals. Sikeston's All-Stars and Oran meet in the opener on Tuesday night. One will be eliminated.

Bloomfield and the Sikeston Aces open the tournament Monday at 7 p.m., followed at 8:30 p.m. by the game between Chaffee and New Madrid.

HITTING - Joe Pepitone, Yankees, hit two home runs as New York won the opening game of a doubleheader from Minnesota 6-1.

PITCHING - Bill Monbouquette, Yankees, retired 21 batters in a row, pitching nine scoreless innings in New York's second game with the Twins, but Minnesota won 3-2 in 18 innings.

WINNIPEG, Canada AP - You might say wrestler Alejandro Zawadski of Argentina is a hard loser.

The Argentine lightweight was disqualified in Wednesday's Pan-American competition for biting the left index finger of his opponent, Ray Lougheed of Canada.

"He just about bit my finger off," said Lougheed, 34, a railway brakeman from Moose Jaw, Sask. Zawadski refused to leave the mat until he was dragged off by teammates.

Red Sox Hold Down Second

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Andrews had an idea and also a solution in case it didn't work. Happily it worked.

There were men on first and third with two out in the Boston sixth inning Wednesday night with Andrews at the plate. He bunted.

By the time surprised California third baseman Woody Held fielded the ball Andrews was on first and Reggie Smith was home with the third run of the inning to tie the game 4-4.

The Red Sox went on to score three more times in the inning for a 7-4 lead en route to a 9-6 victory.

"It was my own idea," Andrews said. "If I would have popped it up, I would have just kept running."

While Andrews was outsmarting the Angels, Washington was beating Kansas City 6-3 and New York split with Minnesota, winning the first game 6-1 and losing the nightcap 3-2 in 18 innings.

The Cleveland at Chicago game was rained out. Detroit and Baltimore were not scheduled.

Asked if he was thinking about bunting with Andrews up, Boston Manager Dick Williams replied:

"No. He caught me just like he caught Woody Held."

The Red Sox, who stayed ahead of the Angels in second place with the victory which snapped California's seven-game winning streak, got their first run in the seventh on Tony Conigliaro's double and George Scott's triple.

Marcelino Lopez then relieved George Brunet and was greeted by Rico Petrocelli's sacrifice fly. Smith singled and pinch hitter Norm Siebern got aboard on an error before pinck hitter Dalton Jones flied out, setting up Andrews' bunt.

Joe Foy followed the bunt with an infield hit, loading the bases, and Carl Yastrzemski doubled in three runs.

Boston, which scored one run in the fourth, added insurance tallies in the eighth on consecutive homers by Conigliaro and Scott.

Jose Cardenal and Woody Held each drove in two runs for California-Cardenal with a homer and single and Held with a homer.

Joe Pepitone drove in three runs with two homers and Steve Whitaker two with a homer and single in New York's first game victory. Minnesota got its run on Bob Allison's leadoff homer in the first inning.

The nightcap threatened to go forever until Rod Carew walked in the 18th inning, stole second, went to third on Yankee catcher Jake Gibbs' bad throw and scored on Rich Rollins' infield hit.

Bill Monbouquette pitched nine innings in relief for the Yanks, retiring the first 21 batters he faced before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the 16th. Jim Merritt went the first 14 innings for the Twins.

Home runs by Frank Howard and Ken McMullen helped Joe Coleman, 8-6, with his fourth straight game for Washington. Howard's homer was his 26th

71st Frontier Days At Cheyenne, Wyo.

DENVER -- More than 400 of the nation's top rodeo cowboys were on hand Tuesday for opening go-rounds of the 71st annual Frontier Days at Cheyenne, Wyo., where some $70,000 in prize money awaits winners this year. The rodeo runs through Sunday afternoon, July 30.

Many contestants pulled into Cheyenne from four other major rodeos over the weekend, where a total $105,038 was up for grabs. Running almost concurrently, contests in Nampa, Ida., Salinas, Calif., and Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, ended from 24 to 48 hours before the start of competition in Frontier Park.

The professional Rodeo Cowboys Association here said big money winners at the quartet of rodeos were Clyde Vamvoras, 25, Burkburnett, Tex., Junior Garrison, 29, Marlow, Okla., Richard Walker, 23, Tilden, Tex., and Olin Young, 30, Peralta, N.M.

Vamvoras, already leading for 1967's bareback bronc riding title, won $2,282 in his event at Salinas and Ogden, shoving his bid for the championship to $15,889.

Garrison, defending national calf roping champion, snared $2,329 during Ogden and Salt Lake City. he's running fourth for this year's roping crown, with a current $12,460.

Walker, national high school calf roping champ in 1961, won $2,636 competing at Salinas, Ogden and Salt Lake City. His new money moved him up into fifth place in the event's 1967 pro title picture.

Young, running third for the year's calf roping crown, earned $1,990 for second place finishes at Ogden and Salt Lake. He was the steer roping winner at Frontier Days last year.

In brief review of other rodeo title races prior to competition at Cheyenne, Larry Mahan, 23, Brooks, Ore., the 1966 all-around champion cowboy, came off the injured list to win $1,026 in bareback bronc riding at Salinas and Ogden.

Nursing a broken instep since July 1 when a bull stepped on him during a rodeo at St. Paul, Ore., Mahan competed with his foot in a cast and bounced his 1967 winnings to $30,427. The R.C.A. said it was an all-time money record for this time of year.

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) - Two regulars on the U.S. baseball team in the Japan-American Games here played in the College World Series last month. They are second baseman Mike Lisetski of Rider college and first baseman Mark Marquess of Stanford.

Cubs Fall 4-2

Cards Increase Lead; Javier Gets 3 RBI's

ST. LOUIS (AP) - "I was feeling lousy before the game," Julian Javier said after he hit a two-run homer and a double for three runs in the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night. The Cards now have a two-game lead over the Cubs at the top of the National League standings.

"I was feeling so bad Orlando Cepeda gave me one of those inhalers with ammonia or whatever it is to wake me up," the second baseman went on. "It just shows you, when you feel good you have a lousy day and when you feel lousy you have a good day."

Good day indeed. In the first inning Lou Brock singled off loser Rich Nye, then stole second. Javier doubled him home.

Brock again singled to lead off the fifth and stole his 35th base. Javier followed with a two-run blast to left center.

"When Brock is running," Javier said, "you have a better chance to hit because he opens up the infield."

Brock did some more running in the seventh when he opened up with a triple and scored on an infield out.

Nelson Briles chalked up his fifth victory as he kept the Cubs under control through the first five innings before they scored off him.

It was only his second start of the season but the righthander figures he's really been a starter all year long.

"The only difference between staring and relieving really is that when you relieve you have to get the first man you face out," Briles said. "But after that you're actually the starter because you start the next innings after that."

Bob Veale, weary from having struggled through a complete game just five days ago, discovered Wednesday night that he just couldn't turn the trick twice in succession.

With Juan Pizarro waiting in the wings, it couldn't have mattered less.

Veale, still relishing his first complete game in 16 starts on July 21, held Los Angeles at bay for 7 1-3 innings in the Pirates' 4-2 victory Wednesday. But then the familiar signs of non-completion set in and in came Pizarro to protect the big lefthander's 12th victory against fou defeats.

Pizarro should go into the protection business. He came in with one man on and two balls on Ron Fairly. After completing the walk, he got down to business. Al Ferrara and Jim Lefebvre went down swinging, ending that particular threat, mild as it was.

And in the ninth? First there was Bob Bailey. He took a third strike. Then there was Wes Parker. He swung at a third one. And last there was Jeff Torborg a swinger, but not a hitter.

In other National League action, Cincinnati bounced Atlanta 7-1 and rain washed out the second game of a scheduled doubleheader, Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2 and New York bombarded San Francisco 11-5.

Willie Stargell homered for the Pirates in the fourth inning, but the Dodgers came back to tie the score 2-2. Manny Mota singled in the run that broke the tie in the sixth and Maury Wills walked, stole second, went to third on an error and scored on a forceout for the final run.

Deron Johnson cracked a two-run homer, sparking the Reds' victory after Phil Niekro had held Cincinnati to one bunt single through the first six innings. Mel Queen, 10-5, was the winner.

Joe Morgan's single drove in the second run in a ninth inning rally that sent the Astros past the Phils. Jackie Brandt's single earlier had tied the game after singles by Dave Adlesh and Bob Aspromonte.

Cleon Jones, who has been having a terrible time hitting the ball all year, broke loose for a homer and five runs batted in against the Giants and Bud Harrelson had four hits and two RBIs for the Mets.

Case Of The Five Holdouts

By the Associated Press

The case of the five holdouts of the Cleveland Browns, which has stirred the interest of most everyone in pro football, may switch from an all-for-one and one-for-all to a one-for-me situation Friday.

The case pits Art Modell, owner of the Browns, against John Wooten, a guard from Colorado, Leroy Kelly, a running back from Mortan State, John Brown, a tackle from Syracuse, Mike Howell, a defensive back from Grambling and Sid Williams, a linebacker from Southern University.

Their attorney is scheduled to meet Friday with counsel for Modell in a second attempt to reach a settlement. The five were scheduled to report to training camp last Saturday, but didn't show. They face $100-a-day fines until they report.

The key issue appears to be the demand of the five that all of them must be traded if one is. Modell has said he would not agree to such a stipulation of vital concern to every front office.

In the meantime, halfback Donny Anderson, a bonus baby from Texas Tech, worked out with the champion Green Bay Packers for the first time since being released from Army reserve training. He is expected to challenge Elijah Pitts for the half-back post vacated by the departure of Paul Hornung.

ISC To Defend Tournament Title

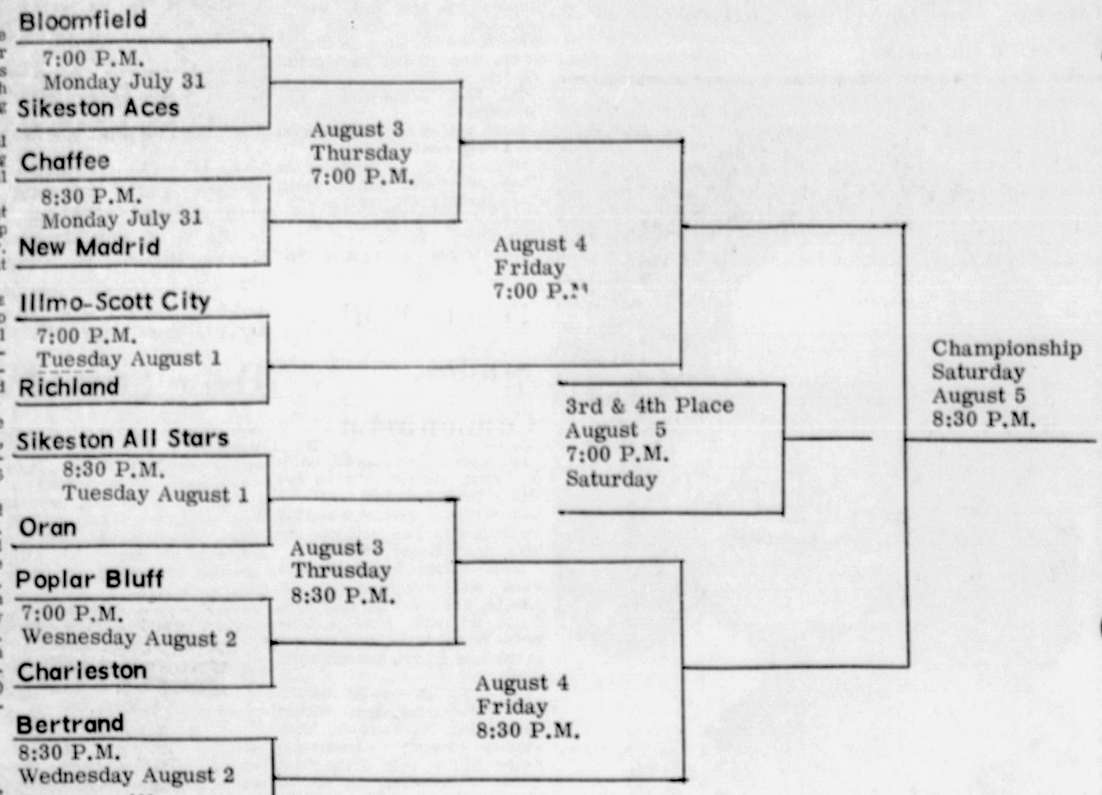
12th ANNUAL SIKESTON LITTLE LEAGUE TOURNAMENT
PUCKETT FIELD--PINE STREET-- 9&10 YR. OLDS



Sikeston's 12th Annual Little League baseball tournament for nine and ten year olds opens Monday at Puckett field with Illmo-Scott City the defending champ.

Two Sikeston teams, the Musial League All-Stars and Aces along with 10 other area teams will battle for the title.

Games are slated for every night next week with the championship game set for 8:30 p.m. Saturday. First games each night begin at 7 p.m.

Trophies will be awarded for the first four place winners. Two outstanding player awards will be presented. Last Year's winners were Randy Leiner of Illmo-Scott City's All-Stars and Fred Copeland of New Madrid.

Illmo-Scott City captured the championship contest last year, downing New Madrid 7-0. Sikeston placed third with an 8-6 win over Oran.

Illmo-Scott City and New Madrid are in the same bracket this year. They will meet in the semi-final round of the tournament and have no chance of meeting in the finals. Sikeston's All-Stars and Oran meet in the opener on Tuesday night. One will be eliminated.

Bloomfield and the Sikeston Aces open the tournament Monday at 7 p.m., followed at 8:30 p.m. by the game between Chaffee and New Madrid.

HITTING - Joe Pepitone, Yankees, hit two home runs as New York won the opening game of a doubleheader from Minnesota 6-1.

PITCHING - Bill Monbouquette, Yankees, retired 21 batters in a row, pitching nine scoreless innings in New York's second game with the Twins, but Minnesota won 3-2 in 18 innings.

Cubs Fall 4-2
Cards Increase Lead; Javier Gets 3 RBI's

ST. LOUIS (AP) - "I was feeling lousy before the game," Julian Javier said after he hit a two-run homer and a double for three runs in the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday night. The Cards now have a two - game lead over the Cubs at the top of the National League standings.

"I was feeling so bad Orlando Cepeda gave me one of those inhalers with ammonia or whatever it is to wake me up," the second baseman went on. "It just shows you, when you feel good you have a lousy day and when you feel lousy you have a good day."

Good day indeed. In the first inning Lou Brock singled off loser Rich Nye, then stole second. Javier doubled him home. Brock again singled to lead off the fifth and stole his 35th base. Javier followed with a two-run blast to left center.

"When Brock is running," Javier said. "you have a better chance to hit because he opens up the infield."

Brock did some more running in the seventh when he opened up with a triple and scored on an infield out.

Nelson Briles chalked up his fifth victory as he kept the Cubs under control through the first five innings before thev scored off him.

It was only his second start of the season but the righthander figures he's really been a starter all year long.

"The only difference between staring and relieving really is that when you relieve you have to get the first man you face out," Briles said. "But after that you're actually the starter because you start the next innings after that."

Bob Veale, weary from having struggled through a complete game just five days ago, discovered Wednesday night that he just couldn't turn the trick twice in succession.

71st Frontier Days At Cheyenne, Wyo.

DENVER -- More than 400 of the nation's top rodeo cowboys were on hand Tuesday for opening go-rounds of the 71st annual Frontier Days at Cheyenne, Wyo., where some $70,000 in prize money awaits winners this year. The rodeo runs through Sunday afternoon, July 30.

Many contestants pulled into Cheyenne from four other major rodeos over the weekend, where a total $105,038 was up for grabs. Running almost concurrently, contests in Nampa, Ida., Salinas, Calif., and Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, ended from 24 to 48 hours before the start of competition in Frontier Park.

The professional Rodeo Cowboys Association here said big money winners at the quartet of rodeos were Clyde Vamvoras, 25, Burkburnett, Tex., Junior Garrison, 29, Marlow, Okla., Richard Walker, 23, Tilden, Tex., and Olin Young, 30, Peralta, N.M.

Vamvoras, already leading for 1967's bareback bronc riding title, won $2,282 in his event at Salinas and Ogden, shoving his bid for the championship to $15,889.

Garrison, defending national calf roping champion, snared $2,329 during Ogden and Salt Lake City. he's running fourth for this year's roping crown, with a current $12,460.

Walker, national high school calf roping champ in 1961, won $2,636 competing at Salinas, Ogden and Salt Lake City. His new money moved him up into fifth place in the event's 1967 pro title picture.

Young, running third for the year's calf roping crown, earned $1,990 for second place finishes at Ogden and Salt Lake. He was the steer roping winner at Frontier Days last year.

In brief review of other rodeo title races prior to competition at Cheyenne, Larry Mahan, 23, Brooks, Ore., the 1966 all-around champion cowboy, came off the injured list to win $1,026 in bareback bronc riding at Salinas and Ogden.

Nursing a broken instep since July 1 when a bull stepped on him during a rodeo at St. Paul, Ore., Mahan competed with his foot in a cast and bounced his 1967 winnings to $30,427. The R.C.A. said it was an all-time money record for this time of year.

WINNIPEG, Canada (AP) - Two regulars on the U.S. baseball team in the Japan-American Games here played in the College World Series last month. They are second baseman Mike Lisetski of Rider college and first baseman Mark Marquess of Stanford.

Red Sox Hold Down Second

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Andrews had an idea and also a solution in case it didn't work. Happily it worked.

There were men on first and third with two out in the Boston sixth inning Wednesday night with Andrews at the plate. He bunted.

By the time surprised California third baseman Woody Held fielded the ball Andrews was on first and Reggie Smith was home with the third run of the inning to tie the game 4-4.

The Red Sox went on to score three more times in the inning for a 7-4 lead en route to a 9-6 victory.

"It was my own idea," Andrews said. "If I would have popped it up, I would have just kept running."

While Andrews was outsmarting the Angels, Washington was beating Kansas City 6-3 and New York split with Minnesota, winning the first game 6-1 and losing the nightcap 3-2 in 18 innings.

The Cleveland at Chicago game was rained out. Detroit and Baltimore were not scheduled.

Asked if he was thinking about bunting with Andrews up, Boston Manager Dick Williams replied:

"No. He caught me just like he caught Woody Held."

The Red Sox, who stayed ahead of the Angels in second place with the victory which snapped California's seven-game winning streak, got their first run in the seventh on Tony Conigliaro's double and George Scott's triple.

Marcelino Lopez then relieved George Brunet and was greeted by Rico Petrocelli's sacrifice fly. Smith singled and pinch hitter Norm Siebern got aboard on an error before pinck hitter Dalton Jones flied out, setting up Andrews' bunt.

Joe Foy followed the bunt with an infield hit, loading the bases, and Carl Yastrzemski doubled in three runs.

Boston, which scored one run in the fourth, added insurance tallies in the eighth on consecutive homers by Conigliaro and Scott.

Jose Cardenal and Woody Held each drove in two runs for California-Cardenal with a homer and single and Held with a homer.

Joe Pepitone drove in three runs with two homers and Steve Whitaker two with a homer and single in New York's first game victory. Minnesota got its run on Bob Allison's leadoff homer in the first inning.

The nightcap threatened to go forever until Rod Carew walked in the 18th inning, stole second, went to third on Yankee catcher Jake Gibbs' bad throw and scored on Rich Rollins' infield hit.

Bill Monbouquette pitched nine innings in relief for the Yanks, retiring the first 21 batters he faced before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the 16th.

Jim Merritt went the first 14 innings for the Twins.

RELOCATION NOTICE

Residents of Sikeston and Salcedo Area affected by the construction of Route Y, Scott County are eligible for relocation advisory assistance according to the Missouri State Highway Commission.

Purpose of this relocation assistance program, the Commission said, is to provide advisory help in relocating people who must move because of acquisition or clearance of rights - of - way for Federal-Aide Highways. The assistance does not include financial aid.

The assistance is available to eligible individuals, families (including tenants), business concerns (including operation of a farm), and nonprofit organizations.

To administer the program the Highway Commission has established a relocation advisory assistance staff in the Highway Department's state headquarters in Jefferson City and in each of the Department's ten district offices.

Department personnel in these offices maintain lists of properties for sale or rent. These lists are compiled from newspapers, real estate brokers, and other sources. Any follow-up is handled through the person who lists the property so the Highway Department does not infringe on real estate transactions.

Persons who are eligible for the assistance are offered the aid by the time the negotiations start on acquiring their property for the highway.

Area residents desiring further information may contact W. D. Carney, the Highway Department's District Engineer at Sikeston, or V. Allan Hubbard, right - of - way agent in charge of the district's relocation advisory assistance.

the restaurant menus.

Many of these delicacies cannot be recaptured in the Midwest for obvious reasons, but a featured dessert in the Florida Keys can be concocted to bring not only a delicious dessert from a city of charm but a spark of that charm into homes of the Midwest.

From a Key West restaurant comes this recipe for Key lime pie:

KEY LIME PIE

Make the pie shell with graham crackers.

1-1/2 cups of graham crackers
Dash of cinnamon
Level tablespoon of sugar
Pinch of salt
1/4 to 1/2 cup of butter

Use enough butter to moisten and shape the pie shell from this.

6 eggs
1 can sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup lime juice

Beat the yolk of six eggs and the white of one until thick. Add the condensed milk and beat again. Add the lime juice and beat until thick. Beat the five remaining egg whites until dry and fold in the mixture. Pour into a pie shell. Separate two eggs, beat the whites with two tablespoons of sugar until stiff and forms peaks, then spread on the top of the pie and brown in the oven at 350 degrees F. Makes two nine-inch pies.

Letters to the Editor

Sikeston Publishing Company, Inc.

Sikeston, Missouri

Gentlemen:

Are you willing to stand by and watch your right to manage your business being taken away from you? What are you doing to help correct the abuses of an NLRB which is regularly favoring unions and taking away more and more management prerogatives? Or to call a halt to ever - increasing government regulations and restrictions on your business?

What can you do about it?

The Southern States Industrial Council has a positive program to stop this erosion of your management rights, and revitalize the free enterprise system. The Council is waging an aggressive educational campaign for responsible government and sound economy.

It is increasingly hard to find an organization that is able and willing to disagree with the Federal colossus and press for free enterprise solutions to social and economic problems. The Council has proven it is effective, has won respect for its work in the Congress. However, if the trend to usurp your right to manage your business is to be stopped, the Council must have your support, and that of every businessman who believes in private enterprise and responsible government. Individually we cannot do much, but by united action we can accomplish what is needed.

I would like to urge you to financially support the Southern States Industrial Council and its program for responsible government and a healthy economy.

Please send your check today. It will be acknowledged as membership dues and is tax deductible as a business expense.

Sincerely yours,
William Lowndes
President
Southern States Industrial Council
Nashville, Tennessee 37201

WALTER RAYBURN, a member of Sikeston Order of Eastern Star, chapter 137, was honored at a meeting of the Elda chapter of OES of Illmo. He was presented a certificate of honorary membership by the worthy matron, Mrs. Rodney Waddle. This award was in appreciation of his services to the chapter.

Too Good to Be True

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - John Monroe Osborn says he was very puzzled when authorities at the state prison in Jefferson City released him.

He didn't ask questions and returned to his parents home in Springfield.

His attorney, Charles A. Moon, said the 21-year-old Osborn was told Tuesday that his two three-year sentences on burglary and stealing charges had been commuted by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

An investigation later revealed a snafu in the records at the penitentiary. Osborn should not have been released.

When he found out, Osborn decided to return voluntarily.

Key West World Apart of U.S.

By Carol Miller

"It's rich in old-world charm, steeped in the lore of island people, and endowed with an exciting history of rum runners, pirate ships and Cival War intrigue." That is the way a travel pamphlet describes Key West, Fla. . .to others it is simply fun, fabulous and fascinating.

Only 90 miles from Havana, Cuba, Key West is reached from Miami by 159 miles of the Overseas Highway, a section of U.S. and one of the longest over-water roads in the world, through marshalands, islands and water. Forty-two bridges, one over seven miles long and another 75 feet above the Atlantic Ocean, connect Key West with the mainland.

The second oldest city in Florida (St. Augustine is older), Key West was Florida's largest city when Miami was an Indian village. In 1822 Commodore David Porter established a naval station there as a base against pirate operations. With the defeat of the pirates the keys were free to be settled.

Nineteen twelve brought the establishment of Henry Flagler's sea-going railroad which opened the keys to development and recreational uses. Hurricane damage in 1935 closed the railroad and then the right-of-way and bridges were taken over by the federal government. The road opened in 1938 at a cost of $5 million.

Once one of the poorest cities per capita in the United States (1933) and once the richest city per capita (1840's), Key West is the southermost city in the continental United States which affords it a semi-tropical climate. It has never had a frost - record temperatures registered 89 degrees (1956) and 41 degrees (1886).

The finest fishing, especially big-game fishing, in the country is to be found in the Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic waters off the shores of Key West and the other Florida keys. The waters yield tarpoon, barracuda, amberjack, dolphin, sailfish and others and the only living coral reef in North American waters is five miles off shore of the island that measures 1-1/4 miles wide by 4-1/2 miles long and houses 40,000 people.

Key West is the only southern city that has always flown the Union flag. It was a military and naval station during the Mexican War and has been a naval base in every succeeding war.

Sporting a rocky coastline and weathered homes, Key West resembles a New England town with Bahamian architecture. Ship carpenters, using wooden pegs instead of nails built many of the older homes of cedar, cypress and mahogany. Key West contrasts strongly with the steel and glass cities of the mainland.

The best way to see the sights of the city and capture its charm is to ride the conch train which covers 14 miles of old and new Key West including the Little White House, shrimp fleet, naval station, U.S. submarine beds, turtle kraals, gold coast, Audubon house, and the southernmost point in the continental United States.

One of the prize attractions of the tour is the Spanish-colonial mansion of Nobel Prize winner Ernest Hemingway. He purchased the house in 1931 and maintained it until his death in Ketchum, Idaho, July 2, 1961.

The house was built in 1851 and contains furniture, rugs and mementos collected from around the world, especially Spain, by the author.

In Key West Hemingway wrote For Whom the Bells Tolls, The Green Hills of Africa, and A Farewell to Arms.

Exotic, tropical trees and flowers, year-round water sports, excellent tourist facilities, and an extensive commercial fishing industry has made Key West the vacation land for kings and presidents and tourists and the inspiration for creative men like Hemingway.

One of the outstanding attractions is the unusual foods which, like the town, have a fresh, exciting charm. Turtle steaks, conch chowder, hot bollos and Key lime pie grace

He received specialized instruction in small unit tactics and in firing such weapons as the M-14 rifle, the M-60 machine gun and the 3.5 - inch rocket launcher.

First Paper Money

The U.S. government issued its first paper money in 1861. The notes, called "demand notes," were payable on demand at certain government agencies, but the money was not made legal tender until 1862.

Water Desalting Plant Dedicated

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A water desalting plant that will take city drinking water from the sea has been officially dedicated by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey but it still is not in full operation.

Preparations are under way for the 30-day test during which the plant will be required to operate at full capacity — 2.6 million gallons a day — for a month before it is accepted by the Florida Keys Aqueduct Commission.

"This plant demonstrates we are putting science and technology to work for man's living rather than for man's dying," Humphrey said Thursday before pushing a button that sent desalted water in a display 75 feet into the air over the Atlantic surf.

Humphrey said that by 1980 nuclear-powered plants capable of pumping a billion gallons of fresh water daily at 10 cents a thousand gallons will be operating.

RELOCATION NOTICE

Residents of Sikeston and Salcedo Area affected by the construction of Route Y, Scott County are eligible for relocation advisory assistance according to the Missouri State Highway Commission.

Purpose of this relocation assistance program, the Commission said, is to provide advisory help in relocating people who must move because of acquisition or clearance of rights - of - way for Federal-Aide Highways. The assistance does not include financial aid.

The assistance is available to eligible individuals, families (including tenants), business concerns (including operation of a farm), and nonprofit organizations.

To administer the program the Highway Commission has established a relocation advisory assistance staff in the Highway Department's state headquarters in Jefferson City and in each of the Department's ten district offices.

Department personnel in these offices maintain lists of properties for sale or rent. These lists are compiled from newspapers, real estate brokers, and other sources. Any follow-up is handled through the person who lists the property so the Highway Department does not infringe on real estate transactions.

Persons who are eligible for the assistance are offered the aid by the time the negotiations start on acquiring their property for the highway.

Area residents desiring further information may contact W. D. Carney, the Highway Department's District Engineer at Sikeston, or V. Allan Hubbard, right - of - way agent in charge of the district's relocation advisory assistance.

the restaurant menus.

Many of these delicacies cannot be recaptured in the Midwest for obvious reasons, but a featured dessert in the Florida Keys can be concocted to bring not only a delicious dessert from a city of charm but a spark of that charm into homes of the Midwest.

From a Key West restaurant comes this recipe for Key lime pie:

KEY LIME PIE

Make the pie shell with graham crackers.

1-1/2 cups of graham crackers
Dash of cinnamon
Level tablespoon of sugar
Pinch of salt
1/4 to 1/2 cup of butter

Use enough butter to moisten and shape the pie shell from this.

6 eggs
1 can sweetened condensed milk
1/3 cup lime juice

Beat the yolk of six eggs and the white of one until thick. Add the condensed milk and beat again. Add the lime juice and beat until thick. Beat the five remaining egg whites until dry and fold in the mixture. Pour into a pie shell. Separate two eggs, beat the whites with two tablespoons of sugar until stiff and forms peaks, then spread on the top of the pie and brown in the oven at 350 degrees F. Makes two nine-inch pies.

Gentlemen:

Are you willing to stand by and watch your right to manage your business being taken away from you? What are you doing to help correct the abuses of an NLRB which is regularly favoring unions and taking away more and more management prerogatives? Or to call a halt to ever - increasing government regulations and restrictions on your business?

What can you do about it?

The Southern States Industrial Council has a positive program to stop this erosion of your management rights, and revitalize the free enterprise system. The Council is waging an aggressive educational campaign for responsible government and sound economy.

It is increasingly hard to find an organization that is able and willing to disagree with the Federal colossus and press for free enterprise solutions to social and economic problems. The Council has proven it is effective, has won respect for its work in the Congress. However, if the trend to usurp your right to manage your business is to be stopped, the Council must have your support, and that of every businessman who believes in private enterprise and responsible government. Individually we cannot do much, but by united action we can accomplish what is needed.

I would like to urge you to financially support the Southern States Industrial Council and its program for responsible government and a healthy economy.

Please send your check today. It will be acknowledged as membership dues and is tax deductible as a business expense.

Sincerely yours,
William Lowndes
President

Southern States Industrial Council
Nashville, Tennessee 37201

WALTER RAYBURN, a member of Sikeston Order of Eastern Star, chapter 137, was honored at a meeting of the Elda chapter of OES of Illmo. He was presented a certificate of honorary membership by the worthy matron, Mrs. Rodney Waddle. This award was in appreciation of his services to the chapter.

Too Good to Be True

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - John Monroe Osborn says he was very puzzled when authorities at the state prison in Jefferson City released him.

He didn't ask questions and returned to his parents home in Springfield.

His attorney, Charles A. Moon, said the 21-year-old Osborn was told Tuesday that his two three-year sentences on burglary and stealing charges had been commuted by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

An investigation later revealed a snafu in the records at the penitentiary. Osborn should not have been released.

When he found out, Osborn decided to return voluntarily.

Facial Pits Identify Poisonous Vipers

COLUMBIA -- Outdoor activities may bring pleasure to many, but to almost 7,000 Americans a year they bring extreme pain and in instances death!

In an article titled "Pitfalls in Treating Pit Vipers," in the August issue of Medical Times Magazine, Dr. Henry M. Parrish, of the school of medicine, University of Missouri, sounds a clarion call to physicians with limited experience in treating poisonous snake bites.

Pit vipers inflicted almost 98 per cent of the poisonous bites suffered last year, with coral snakes and captive foreign venomous snakes accounting for the remaining 2 per cent.

With the exception of Alaska, Hawaii, and Maine, one or more pit vipers is found in every state in the Union. Native pit vipers include large rattlesnakes, copperheads, cottonmouths, pigmy rattlesnakes, and massasaugas.

The ability to distinguish a poisonous snake from a harmless one is most important.

To identify a pit viper, Dr. Parrish advises to look for "a pit located between the eye and nostril on each side of the head. Pit vipers also have ollipitical pupils and two well - developed fangs which protrude from their maxillac when their mouths are opened. Moreover, a pit viper has a single row of subcaudal plates just below the anal plate on the underside of its belly.

"By way of contrast, harmless snakes do not have facial pits; they have round rather than ellipitcal pupils; they have small teeth but not fangs; and they have a double row of subcaudal plates."

Jet Streams Credited for Cool Summer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been a comparatively cool and wet summer over much of the nation thus far, all because of those fickle jet streams, the weather experts say.

Despite some occasional hot and steamy days, more wet and relatively cool weather is anticipated at least through mid-August.

Why the jet streams act as they do is almost as much of a mystery to the Weather Bureau as it is to the man in the street buttoning up his raincoat against a late afternoon thundershower.

"They're never normal," one official says in describing them as a major study area. "We don't know the full answers."

The experts now are working on the theory the jet streams—the upper air wind patterns above 10,000 feet— are affected in some way by ocean water temperatures as well as ground temperatures. In turn, it is believed, they have some effect on surface temperatures.

Weather researchers believe feedback is involved and note that if the jet streams make it rain, it is likely to keep raining.

The Northeast drought is now a classic example. That lasted for five years but the Weather Bureau now is cautiously predicting an ample supply of water from Virginia to New England this year.

Basically, the country's weather now is affected by two jet streams.

One flows from Alaska and northwest Canada over the Great Lakes region and then toward the Northeast. Its lower limit is generally near the Chicago-northern Indiana area, more southerly than normal.

In the South another jet stream dances in from the Gulf of Mexico, and turns in through the Southwest and Texas before heading east from about Kansas.

In between, there is what the experts call a conference where storms are generated over a wide area.

THESE CHILDREN HAVE EVERYTHING

The King had been gone for many long months traveling in the farest reaches of his kingdom. Now he was coming home, home to the little prince, his only and dearly loved son, who had been left in the care of doctors, nurses and tutors. Every provision had been made for his comfort, happiness and well-being, and the king could hardly wait to see his dearly loved child.

A cloud of dust formed on the horizon. "He comes to meet me!" thought the king, but when the panting horses drew up, it was only one of the tutors.

"Sire, I bring you wonderful news of the prince's progress. See! Here are his copybooks - such a fair, round hand! Here are his essays - such comprehension, such a grasp of life at such an early age!"

"Yes, yes," said the king testily, "this is splendid. You have done well. But it is my son I wait to see, not his copybooks."

On they went until another cloud of dust resolved into his doctors. "How he has grown," they said, "what stature and nobility of bearing."

"Yes, yes, yes," said the king, "but where is my son?"

The last to arrive was the old nurse. "He was such a good boy, sire," she said. "So obediet, so loving, so . . ."

"Was? . . ." cried the king. "He was? Where is my son?"

"Alas, He is dead, sire."

This is not just a fairy tale. Its counterpart is found in thousands of American homes this Mother's Day.

The other day a mother sat in court where her 17-year-old son was being arraigned on charges of drug pushing and possession.

In utter bewilderment she said, "I canot understand it. We gave that boy everything."

And it was quite true, and is true for thousands of teen-agers. Parents strain their resources to provide education, dental care, medical care, money, a car, resort vacations, clothes, hi-fis, tape recorders, separate telephones, color TV and what they will, yet never in the history of this country have there been such shocking statistics to do with juvenile delinquency and youthful crime, including armed robbery, rape and murder - and this at all levels of society.

"We gave him everything," yet somewhere along the way, the child was lost, irretrievably. Could it be that we are giving them everything except what they really want and need?

Mental hospitals and psychiatric wards are full of desperately sick children. Doctors, clergymen, Salvation Army officers, teachers and social workers know of the deeply disturbed children, near to complete withdrawal or collapse through the flagrant acts of cruelty and hatred perpetrated in the home by parents toward each other or toward the children.

These pershaps are extreme cases. But the damage is no less when it is the result of giving the child everything except the stability of a warm loving family life and the security of a realistic and living faith in God, whatever one's faith or creed.

Could it be that the rebellion of youth is the expression of their resentment of the fact that they have been deprived of basic guidance for living, of example and precept in the home and a love greater than that which can only give toys as one generation's legacy to another? There is more to parenthood than that. There must be more for the sake of the children of tomorrow.

100 TO 1 -- THEY'RE IN THE BAG

The good old days when homemakers bought beans in 100-pound bags are long gone. Bags of beans are farc more likely to be of 1, 2 or 4-pound size today.

Even so, there are hundreds of pounds of dry beans to be found in food stores nowadays. Red kidney beans, Navy (pea) beans and pinto beans are quite abundant this summer, according to the Consumer and Marketing Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture -- and are expected to be wearing their usually low price tags.

One reason homemakers used to buy such large bagsful of beans was that they kept so well. They still do, of course. As long as dried beans are kept in air-tight and moisture-proof containers (film bags, glass jars, etc.) they will keep for months. Such containers are good protection from insects or other contamination, too.

These unbulky, lightweight modern film bags full of dry beans make an excellent staple item for campers and other vacationers. People on the move might find the time required to restore moisture a bit inconvenient. But beans have always been a favorite of folks who enjoy the great outdoors, so this can't really be a problem.

Economy is another strong point in dry beans' favor. A pound of these nutritious nuggets will make 6 to 8 servings -- quite a budget-stretcher, especially at the attractive prices expected this summer.

Birthdays Celebrated

BELL CITY -- The birthdays of Louis Wood, Bell City; Charles Van Dyke, Poplar Bluff; Joe Smith, Benton, and Miss Annette Wood, Wichita, Kan., were celebrated with a family reunion at Dexter park Sunday. A covered dish luncheon was served.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stephens and family and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Meyers, all of Bell City; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wood and children, Bloomfield; Mrs. Sue Pace, Augusta, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wood and children, Wichita, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Van Dyke, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Dyke and Nola Knuckles, all of Poplar Bluff; the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Norris, Trooper and Mrs. Gaylon Collier and son, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Taylor and W. F. Kirby, all of Dexter, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walton and son, Chaffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gardner visited his father, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gardner of Murray, Ky., Sunday. They were met by their son and daughter - in - law, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Gardner of White Cliff, Tenn., who picked up their son Steven. Steven had spent a week visiting his grandparents.

Police Assist In Break-in

WICHITA (AP)— Police were summoned to a Wichita hospital Monday night to participate in a break-in.

Officers said a patholigist was unable to locate the keys to medical instrument cases. He called police and asked them to break the glass out of the front of one of the cases.

The doctor then reached inside, selected a medical hammer, and methodically smashed the glass front of all of the other cases in the room.

"A fine thing," police quoted the doctor as saying: "I pay $800,000 in salaries around here and can't even find the keys to the place."

Many Waterways

Canada's 3,845,744 square miles contain a major portion of the world's fresh water, according to recent research. No other country has so many inland waterways.

Car Topics For Lady Pedal Pushers

PRE-VACATION CAR CHECK

One of the classic cases of car trouble is the story of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's limousine en caravan on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. The First Lady's car stopped, and so, therefore, did the entire entourage. According to reports, it was all due to a dirty gasoline filter. Shame on someone! Fortunately, our First Lady was not, by the slightest stretch of the imagination, stranded. But others of us will be less fortunate this summer. Hauling trailers, boats and kids, we'll find ourselves stuck in the middle of Lincoln Tunnel, half way up a mountain and in the depths of the Everglades - all because somebody forgot to have something or other checked before we left home.

Fortunately, this is becoming less of a blight on happy vacations as our cars get better, our mechanics better trained and equipped, and we drivers become more conscious of preventive rather than corrective service on our cars.

Other than running out of gas, for which there has not yet been a plausible explanation, most vacation car troubles can be prevented with five basic ahead-of-time services.

1) Cooling system. . .have the radiator flushed and refilled with new coolant if you have not done so within the past 12 months.

2) Engine. . .have it tuned if this has not been done within the past 12 months. Or have it checked if it has passed the six month mark.

3) Brakes. . . have them adjusted if necessary, and if there is any doubt about the condition of the lining, have that checked too, and replaced if necessary.

4) Steering . . . be sure there is no excessive play in the linkage. It is a good idea to have wheel alignment and balance checked, too.

5) Chassis lube. . .this encompasses a lot more than the old fashioned "grease job". It gives your service man a chance to look at the battery, lights, wipers, tires, shock absorbers, belts, exhaust system and the general overall condition of the car. Also, this is the right time to change the oil and filter. Sound like a big job? Not so, because many of these are routine checks which should be done periodically anyway. And if you find you are about to need a new tire, windshield wiper or radiator hose, where better to have the work done than in your own home town?

Sew Leaves Together

Tailor ants make nests of leaves bound together. Worker ants draw the foliage together for sewing by lining the edge of one leaf and gripping an adjoining one with their manibles. Then other workers rush forward, each with an ant larva in its jaws and these grubs exude threads of sticky silk that bind the leaves together.

Now there is a vitamin B lipstick for girls with anemic boyfriends.

Facial Pits Identify Poisonous Vipers

COLUMBIA -- Outdoor activities may bring pleasure to many, but to almost 7,000 Americans a year they bring extreme pain and in instances death!

In an article titled "Pitfalls in Treating Pit Vipers," in the August issue of Medical Times Magazine, Dr. Henry M. Parrish, of the school of medicine, University of Missouri, sounds a clarion call to physicians with limited experience in treating poisonous snake bites.

Pit vipers inflicted almost 98 per cent of the poisonous bites suffered last year, with coral snakes and captive foreign venomous snakes accounting for the remaining 2 per cent.

With the exception of Alaska, Hawaii, and Maine, one or more pit vipers is found in every state in the Union. Native pit vipers include large rattlesnakes, copperheads, cottonmouths, pigmy rattlesnakes, and massasaugas.

The ability to distinguish a poisonous snake from a harmless one is most important.

To identify a pit viper, Dr. Parrish advises to look for "a pit located between the eye and nostril on each side of the head. Pit vipers also have ellipitical pupils and two well-developed fangs which protrude from their maxillae when their mouths are opened. Moreover, a pit viper has a single row of subcaudal plates just below the anal plate on the underside of its belly.

"By way of contrast, harmless snakes do not have facial pits; they have round rather than ellipitcal pupils; they have small teeth but not fangs; and they have a double row of subcaudal plates."

Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren were his niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Robertson, who were enroute to Georgia for a 90-day schooling in the navy. He will be stationed at Kansas City.

Mrs. Hassel Lemmons accompanied her son, A. Y. Lemmons, a minister of the Church of Christ, to Pocahontas, Ark., where he will conduct a series of services. She will visit her mother, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Allison.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kiehne, Mr. an Mrs. John Smith of Cape Girardeau and their daughter, Mrs. Paul Knupp and two daughters of Florissant, were Sunday dinner guests of their niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jim D. Jeffress.

Eighteen Boy Scouts of Troop 178 and their scoutmasters, Tyree Brown and Robert Scherer, returned home Saturday after a week at Camp Lewallen.

The Scouts attending camp were Robert Lee and Louis Rendleman, Ronnie Carroll, Brady Henson, Phil Stephens, David Kinder, Thomas Lemmons, David Swindell, Dennis and David Scherer, Max and Terry Eakin, Freddie Brown, Michael Johnson, Billy Knoderer, Steve Tropf, Steven Richmond and Rocky Jeffress.

Police Assist In Break-in

WICHITA (AP)-- Police were summoned to a Wichita hospital Monday night to participate in a break-in.

Officers said a patholigist was unable to locate the keys to medical instrument cases. He called police and asked them to break the glass out of the front of one of the cases.

The doctor then reached inside, selected a medical hammer, and methodically smashed the glass front of all of the other cases in the room.

"A fine thing," police quoted the doctor as saying: "I pay $800,000 in salaries around here and can't even find the keys to the place."

Many Waterways

Canada's 3,845,744 square miles contain a major portion of the world's fresh water, according to recent research. No other country has so many inland waterways.

Car Topics For Lady Pedal Pushers

PRE-VACATION CAR CHECK One of the classic cases of car trouble is the story of Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's limousine en caravan on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. The First Lady's car stopped, and so, therefore, did the entire entourage. According to reports, it was all due to a dirty gasoline filter. Shame on someone! Fortunately, our First Lady was not, by the slightest stretch of the imagination, stranded. But others of us will be less fortunate this summer. Hauling trailers, boats and kids, we'll find ourselves stuck in the middle of Lincoln Tunnel, half way up a mountain and in the depths of the Everglades - all because somebody forgot to have something or other checked before we left home.

Fortunately, this is becoming less of a blight on happy vacations as our cars get better, our mechanics better trained and equipped, and we drivers become more conscious of preventive rather than corrective service on our cars.

Other than running out of gas, for which there has not yet been a plausible explanation, most vacation car troubles can be prevented with five basic ahead-of-time services.

1) Cooling system. . .have the radiator flushed and refilled with new coolant if you have not done so within the past 12 months.

2) Engine. . .have it tuned if this has not been done within the past 12 months. Or have it checked if it has passed the six month mark.

3) Brakes. . . have them adjusted if necessary, and if there is any doubt about the condition of the lining, have that checked too, and replaced if necessary.

4) Steering . . . be sure there is no excessive play in the linkage. It is a good idea to have wheel alignment and balance checked, too.

5) Chassis lube. . .this encompasses a lot more than the old fashioned "grease job". It gives your service man a chance to look at the battery, lights, wipers, tires, shock absorbers, belts, exhaust system and the general overall condition of the car. Also, this is the right time to change the oil and filter. Sound like a big job? Not so, because many of these are routine checks which should be done periodically anyway. And if you find you are about to need a new tire, windshield wiper or radiator hose, where better to have the work done than in your own home town?

Sew Leaves Together

Tailor ants make nests of leaves bound together. Worker ants draw the foliage together for sewing by lining the edge of one leaf and gripping an adjoining one with their manibles. Then other workers rush forward, each with an ant larva in its jaws and these grubs exude threads of sticky silk that bind the leaves together.

Now there is a vitamin B lipstick for girls with anemic boyfriends.

The Warren Report

No Evidence That Lonely Oswald Had Any Help

Lee Harvey Oswald: The lone, withdrawn child . . .The lone reader of Marxist thunder in hushed libraries . . .The lone rejecter of his homeland . . The lone prodigal returned to friendless frustration . . .But, hunched in the depository window, still alone?

The Warren Commission never said: Lee Harvey Oswald, alone, murdered John F. Kennedy, period.

It actually said: "The commission has found no evidence that Oswald was involved with any person or group in a conspiracy . . If there is any such evidence, it has been beyond the reach of all the investigative agencies and resources of the United States and has not come to the attention of the commission."

There the matter has not rested.

In New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison has claimed to have found what the commission did not: conspiracy. On the bookshelves of the nation are volumes that claim the same: that Oswald is innocent, that he was a fall guy, that he was involved with Jack Ruby or Bernard Weissman or the FBI or Communists or Texas oil interests or racists.

A court of law will decide in New Orleans. But the other versions of conspiracy are not and quite possibly never will be before a judge and jury. But they are before the jury of public opinion. They will be for some time.

The Warren Commission, unfortunately, did not answer all the questions. Some, however, are probably unanswerable. But some are not questions at all. They are innuendoes - false scents that confuse the hunt for truth.

What other construction can put, for instance, on Mark Lane's innuendo that there might have been a connection between Ruby and the right wing of Dallas?

The commission made an hour-by-hour probe of Ruby's actions from Nov. 21 to Nov. 24, 1963 to determine if he was involved in a plot.

"The commission found that Ruby's activities and associations were innocent," Lane writes in "Rush to Judgment".

"An objective analysis of the record might yield a somewhat different evaluation of Ruby's conduct."

Lane mentions an instance on Nov. 21 when the commission had said Ruby "visited with a young lady who was job hunting in Dallas."

"Contrary to the commission's unassuming summation," says Lane, "Ruby did not merely visit with a young lady who was job hunting. Commission Exhitit 2270, an FBI report of an interview with Connie Trammel, the young lady in question, divulges the fact that Ruby drove with her to the office of Lamar Hunt, the son of H. L. Hunt."

Lane drops the matter at that point. Ruby is left at the office of Lamar Hunt, whose Texas-rich father is a strong supporter of ultraright causes. The reader of "Rush to Judgement" is left to make what he may of this suggested link between Ruby and the Dallas right wing. For clarification, however, he might turn to a commission exhibit. Not 2270. Try 2291.

It also is a statement by Miss Trammel, now Mrs. Penny, to the FBI. In it she says she once had a long talk with Ruby when she and some classmates from the University of Texas visited his Dallas strip club. Ruby asked if she wanted to work for him. She didn't. But Ruby kept asking. The last time was Nov. 21, 1963.

During the phone conversation, Miss Trammel mentioned she was seeking a public relations job at a bowling alley she had read Lamar Hunt owned.

She had an appointment to see him that very day. She said she didn't have a car. Ruby offered to drive her to the bank building where Hunt had his office, since he had business to transact at the bank.

"During the trip . . .to the bank, Ruby seemed impressed with the amount of money that Lamar Hunt had made," Miss Trammel told the FBI, " and had mentioned that he knew most of the prominent people in Dallas . . .but did not know Lamar Hunt."

Ruby left her at the ground floor elevator. He never did get to go up and meet Hunt. Miss Trammel didn't get the job. But the reader might get a clearer picture of the Ruby-Hunt "association" from Commission Exhibit 2291 than from "Rush to Judgement."

Such handling of commission evidence by the critics happens too often to be mere oversight.

Consider the alleged meeting in Ruby's Carousel Club Nov. 14, 1963 between Ruby, J.D. Tippitt, the officer the commission said was shot by Oswald, and Bernard Weissman. Weissman was the young Easterner who had helped place an ad critical of Kennedy in the Dallas Morning News the day of the assassination.

Weissman had arrived in Dallas Nov. 4 to try and set up a new conservative party by infiltrating right-wing groups - one of which he said never accomplished more than "running around burning baskets from Yugoslavia."

Lane, himself, had told the commission about the meeting. He declined to reveal his source for the story because the source had not given him permission to do so.

"But," he wrote in his book, "if the commission had wanted his name, it need only have asked one of its witnesses, Thayer Waldo, a reputable journalist. Counsel, however, did not ask Waldo about the meeting."

Not in so many words. For how was counsel to know what Thayer Waldo knew since Lane had refused to tell the commission, much less counsel, about Waldo or any other source?

But at the end of Waldo's interrogation, which covered other matters, counsel did ask if he could add any information about anything else. Waldo said no, he couldn't.

If not with Waldo, the commission did inquire into the Carousel meeting with other witnesses. One was Larry Crafard, a carnival worker hired by Ruby to do odd jobs around the club. The commission volumes have a statement by Crafard in which he told the FBI he recognized a picture of Weissman as a man he had seen at the club "on a number of occasions."

Lane has this quote. He does not mention that Crafard also told the FBI he had a "very vague recollection" of having heard Ruby mention the name Weissman, that he believed Weissman was a Dallas detective whose first name may have been Johnny and that he "could have my recollection of a Mr. Weissman mixed up with some one else."

Lane does not mention that Crafard thought Weissman was a "white male American" 38 to 43 years of age. Bernard Weissman was a white, male American who was 26 in 1963 and who, if he had been at the Carousel "a number of occasions", had nonetheless been in Dallas only 10 days.

Lane reports that several witnesses said Ruby knew Tippitt. One that he cites was Dallas police Lt. George C. Arnett. What Arnett actually told the FBI was that he did not recall to what extent Ruby MAY have known police officer J.D. Tippitt but added that "he does not believe he was more friendly with Tippitt than the average officer."

Arnett, in other words, did not say positively whether Ruby did or did not know Tippitt.

Lane says Crafard and Andrew Armstrong, Ruby's bartender and handyman, both heard Ruby say he knew Tippitt when he learned the officer had been shot. Lane does not say that Armstrong also told the FBI: "From what I gather later on, Mrs. Grant (Ruby's sister) told me it was a different Tippitt that he knew. In other words, there were two officers that had the name of Tippitt.

Actually, there were three. And Ruby did know one of them. He said he knew a detective Gayle Tippitt who worked in special services. Lane's book has this. It mentions that Gayle Tippitt said his "contacts in recent years with Ruby have been infrequent."

That is taken from Committee Exhibit 1620 in which Gayle Tippitt also said that in the 1950s he "became very well acquainted with Jack Ruby." Lane does not quote that part of Exhibit 1620.

Lane writes that the commission might also have interrogated Harold Richard Williams. Williams told Lane he had seen Ruby and an officer he identified as J.D. Tippitt in a patrol car when he was arrested in November 1963. Lane warns his readers that Williams' testimony "should be assessed with a degree of caution" since he was not a witness and under oath. He might also have notified his readers, but didn't, that Tippitt was stationed in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas all the way across town from where Williams said he was arrested.

Two witnesses said that on Nov. 14, the night of the meeting, Weissman was in their home trying to sell them carpeting until 9:30 or 10 p.m. Mrs. Tipitt said her husband was a homebody devoted to his family. Lane, nonetheless, says the commission should have asked her what Tippitt was doing the night of Nov. 14 and asked Weissman what he did after 10 p.m. that same evening.

Lane says the question to Weissman was "never even posed." It may not have been posed to his liking, but Weissman was asked by commission counsel: "Did you at any time while you were in Dallas ever have a meeting with or sit in the Carousel Club with officer Tippitt?"

"No," he answered. He said he had never been in Ruby's club and didn't know him.

Mrs. Tippitt was less exact. She said she had never heard her husband mention being in Ruby's club.

The point is not so much whether such a meeting could or could not have taken place. The point here is that Lane, who presented the rumor to the commission, did not present all the evidence to his readers. For instance, neighter Mrs. Tippitt's nor Weissman's denial and-or lack of knowledge of the meeting is presented in his book.

But what if, evidence to the contrary, such a meeting did take place? What was its purpose? Lane doesn't suggest one. Neither does any evidence in the Warren volumes.

Nor is there evidence in the volumes to indicates a conspiracy in New Orleans. The commission and the FBI investigated several of the people that have figures in Garrison's case. They found no conspiracy.

This is not to deny the possibility of one. It should be mentioned, however, that the indictment against Clay Shaw, a New Orleans businessman, says he conspired with Oswald to assassinate Kennedy. But it does NOT say the assassination was the one that took place Nov. 22, 1963 in Dallas. Nor doe it say it wasn't. Garrison has said he doesn't want to get involved in "semantics" over wording.

It should be mentioned that the chief witness against Shaw so far is a man who first contacted Garrison two days AFTER the district attorney said the case was solved. The witness testified after being given "truth serum" and undergoing hypnosis.

It should be mentioned another witness reportedly said he was offered a bribe by the district attorney's office to give favorable testimony. The witness' lawyer said a lie detector test verified the bribe attempt.

Garrison has said he has evidence that Oswald was working for the Central Intelligece Agency. Others have said Oswald was working for the FBI after his return from the Soviet Union for a fee of $200 a month.

That rumor apparently came from a Houston reporter, Alonzo Hudkins. Hudkins has since told Charles Roberts of Newsweek that he believes J. Edgar Hoover's denials that Oswald was an FBI informant. But Epstein takes the commission to task for relying solely on the word of an agency investigating itself.

Why, he asks in "inquest", didn't the commission on its own interrogate Hudkins and his reported source for the story, Dallas Deputy Sheriff Allan Sweatt? It is a legitimate question.

But it is also legitimate to ask how Epstein can state "no efforts were made by the commission or its staff to investigate the rumor itself." That simply isn't true.

The commission, itself, DID investigate in some detail reports of money orders Oswald reportedly had received while in Dallas. (It turned out to be baseless). The commission, itself, DID inquire why FBI agent James Hosty's name was in Oswald's address book. Oswald told his wife to take it down after Hosty had visited her at Ruth Paine's where she was living. The commission DID investigate through the Internal Revenue Service Oswald's finances after his return from the Soviet Union. (His known and assumed outgo remarkably approximated his income down to the cash balance he had when arrested).

The commission did NOT take at face value the denials of the FBI. And Epstein did NOT mention the foregoing in claiming the commission "relied entirely on the FBI to disprove the rumor" of Oswald's FBI connection.

Another conspiracy rumor: Ruby entered the Dallas police headquarters to shoot Oswald not by accident but by design. In accord with some superplot, the assassin had to be assassinated. One incontestable fact of time, however, must be considered.

The exact time of Oswald's transfer depended on when police were done questioning him. At the time that was decided, Ruby was driving downtown to send a money order to one of his strippers. The time he handed the money order across the Western Union counter was punched by a time clock: 11:17 a.m. Oswald was shot at 11:21 a.m. It takes several minutes to walk from Western Union to the police basement where Oswald was slain.

A commuter catching a train would scarcely cut his corners so finely. Would a man engaged in a superplot do so? Particularly if he knew in some unexplained way his only chance would come at 11:21?

The superplot elsewhere was running a very tight schedule. When Oswald dashed in and out of his rooming house a half-hour after the assassination, Lane says a "rather mysterious" incident occurred. A Dallas police car stopped and honked twice and drove off, said Earlene Roberts, the housekeeper.

Dallas police said there was no patrol car in the vicinity at the time. Lane says the "investigation" consisted of nothing more than the statements of police regarding car and officer assignments. (One might ask who would know better than police the whereabouts of a police car).

Lane notes commission evidence that a patrolman had driven Car 207 to the depository rooming house several miles "just after 12:45 p.m.", gave the keys to a sergeant and remained in the building several hours.

A log of the travels of Car 207 should, however, have this information which the report provides— and Lane does not.

1— Police Car 170, driven by acquaintances of hers, often honked outside the house, Mrs. Roberts said. When she saw the car was 207, she told the FBI she went back to looking at television.

2— Patrolman Jimmy Valentine had Car 207 that afternoon. He had been at headquarters when he heard of the assassination at about 12:45 p.m. He drove to the depository al! the way across town through heavy traffic. This would put him at the building close to the moments Oswald dashed into the rooming house and, Valentine turned the keys over to a sergeant.

This does not mean, Lane argues, that the car itself couldn't have been driven by some other officers. (Mrs. Roberts saw two in the car). But the men would have had to get the keys from the sergeant (who said he didn't release them until 3:30 p.m.), drive through heavy traffic around the depository to the rooming house in suburban Oak Cliff, honk twice and drive away again.

And for what purpose? Lane doesn't suggest one.

Lane also notes testimony of Deputy Sheriff Roger D. Craig. He said that 15 minutes after the assassination he saw a young man he later identified as Oswald run from near the depo-

After the President was shot, however, he was taken to Parkland Hospital where he died. Enlarged map in inset shows exact area where the President was felled. Proceeding west along Main Street, the presidential cavalcade turned right onto Houston Street in order to enter one-way westbound traffic on Elm Street leading to triple underpass and Stemmons Freeway. Sniper in Texas School Book Depository at corner of Elm and Houston shot the President and Texas Gov. John Connally after their car turned left onto Elm. Not in so many words. For how was counsel to know what Thayer Waldo knew since Lane had refused to tell the commission, much less counsel, about Waldo or any other source?

But at the end of Waldo's interrogation, which covered other matters, counsel did ask if he could add any information about anything else. Waldo said no, he couldn't.

If not with Waldo, the commission did inquire into the Carousel meeting with other witnesses. One was Larry Crafard, a carnival worker hired by Ruby to do odd jobs around the club. The commission volumes have a statement by Crafard in which he told the FBI he recognized a picture of Weissman as a man he had seen at the club "on a number of occasions."

That is taken from Committee Exhibit 1620 in which Gayle Tippitt also said that in the 1950s he "became very well acquainted with Jack Ruby." Lane does not quote that part of Exhibit 1620.

Lane writes that the commission might also have interrogated Harold Richard Williams. Williams told Lane he had seen Ruby and an officer he identified as J.D. Tippitt in a patrol car when he was arrested in November 1963. Lane warns his readers that Williams' testimony "should be assessed with a degree of caution" since he was not a witness and under oath. He might also have notified his readers, but didn't, that Tippitt was stationed in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas all the way across town from where Williams said he was arrested.

Two witnesses said that on Nov. 14, the night of the meeting, Weissman was in their home trying to sell them carpeting until 9:30 or 10 p.m. Mrs. Tipitt said her husband was a homebody devoted to his family. Lane, nonetheless, says the commission should have asked her what Tippitt was doing the night of Nov. 14 and asked Weissman what he did after 10 p.m. that same evening.

Lane says the question to Weissman was "never even posed." It may not have been posed to his liking, but Weissman was asked by commission counsel: "Did you at any time while you were in Dallas ever have a meeting with or sit in the Carousel Club with officer Tippitt?"

"No," he answered. He said he had never been in Ruby's club and didn't know him.

Mrs. Tippitt was less exact. She said she had never heard her husband mention being in Ruby's club.

The point is not so much whether such a meeting could or could not have taken place. The point here is that Lane, who presented the rumor to the commission, did not present all the evidence to his readers. For instance, neighter Mrs. Tippitt's nor Weissman's denial and-or lack of knowledge of the meeting is presented in his book.

But what if, evidence to the contrary, such a meeting did take place? What was its purpose? Lane doesn't suggest one. Neither does any evidence in the Warren volumes.

Nor is there evidence in the volumes to indicates a conspiracy in New Orleans. The commission and the FBI investigated several of the people that have figures in Garrison's case. They found no conspiracy.

This is not to deny the possibility of one. It should be mentioned, however, that the indictment against Clay Shaw, a New Orleans businessman, says he conspired with Oswald to assassinate Kennedy. But it does NOT say the assassination was the one that took place Nov. 22, 1963 in Dallas. Nor doe it say it wasn't. Garrison has said he doesn't want to get involved in "semantics" over wording.

It should be mentioned that the chief witness against Shaw so far is a man who first contacted Garrison two days AFTER the district attorney said the case was solved. The witness testified after being given "truth serum" and undergoing hypnosis.

It should be mentioned another witness reportedly said he was offered a bribe by the district attorney's office to give favorable testimony. The witness' lawyer said a lie detector test verified the bribe attempt.

Garrison has said he has evidence that Oswald was working for the Central Intelligece Agency. Others have said Oswald was working for the FBI after his return from the Soviet Union for a fee of $200 a month.

That rumor apparently came from a Houston reporter, Alonzo Hudkins. Hudkins has since told Charles Roberts of Newsweek that he believes J. Edgar Hoover's denials that Oswald was an FBI informant. But Epstein takes the commission to task for relying solely on the word of an agency investigating itself.

Why, he asks in "inquest", didn't the commission on its own interrogate Hudkins and his reported source for the story, Dallas Deputy Sheriff Allan Sweatt? It is a legitimate question.

But it is also legitimate to ask how Epstein can state "no efforts were made by the commission or its staff to investigate the rumor itself." That simply isn't true.

The commission, itself, DID investigate in some detail reports of money orders Oswald reportedly had received while in Dallas. (It turned out to be baseless). The commission, itself, DID inquire why FBI agent James Hosty's name was in Oswald's address book. Oswald told his wife to take it down after Hosty had visited her at Ruth Paine's where she was living. The commission DID investigate through the Internal Revenue Service Oswald's finances after his return from the Soviet Union. (His known and assumed outgo remarkably approximated his income down to the cash balance he had when arrested).

The commission did NOT take at face value the denials of the FBI. And Epstein did NOT mention the foregoing in claiming the commission "relied entirely on the FBI to disprove the rumor" of Oswald's FBI connection.

Another conspiracy rumor: Ruby entered the Dallas police headquarters to shoot Oswald not by accident but by design. In accord with some superplot, the assassin had to be assassinated. One incontestable fact of time, however, must be considered.

The exact time of Oswald's transfer depended on when police were done questioning him. At the time that was decided, Ruby was driving downtown to send a money order to one of his strippers. The time he handed the money order across the Western Union counter was punched by a time clock: 11:17 a.m. Oswald was shot at 11:21 a.m. It takes several minutes to walk from Western Union to the police basement where Oswald was slain.

A commuter catching a train would scarcely cut his corners so finely. Would a man engaged in a superplot do so? Particularly if he knew in some unexplained way his only chance would come at 11:21?

The superplot elsewhere was running a very tight schedule. When Oswald dashed in and out of his rooming house a half-hour after the assassination, Lane says a "rather mysterious" incident occurred. A Dallas police car stopped and honked twice and drove off, said Earlene Roberts, the housekeeper.

Dallas police said there was no patrol car in the vicinity at the time. Lane says the "investigation" consisted of nothing more than the statements of police regarding car and officer assignments. (One might ask who would know better than police the whereabouts of a police car).

Lane notes commission evidence that a patrolman had driven Car 207 to the depository rooming house several miles away. Valentine turned the keys over to a sergeant and remained in the building several hours.

A log of the travels of Car 207 should, however, have this information which the report provides—and Lane does not.

1—Police Car 170, driven by acquaintances of hers, often honked outside the house, Mrs. Roberts said. When she saw the car was 207, she told the FBI she went back to looking at television.

2—Patrolman Jimmy Valentine had Car 207 that afternoon. He had been at headquarters when he heard of the assassination at about 12:45 p.m. He drove to the depository all the way across town through heavy traffic. This would put him at the building close to the moments Oswald dashed into the "just after 12:45 p.m.", gave the keys keys to a sergeant and remained

This does not mean, Lane argues, that the car itself couldn't have been driven by some other officers. (Mrs. Roberts saw two in the car). But the men would have had to get the keys from the sergeant (who said he didn't release them until 3:30 p.m.), drive through heavy traffic around the depository to the rooming house in suburban Oak Cliff, honk twice and drive away again.

And for what purpose? Lane doesn't suggest one.

Lane also notes testimony of Deputy Sheriff Roger D. Craig. He said that 15 minutes after the assassination he saw a young man he later identified as Oswald run from near the depo-

PRESIDENT KENNEDY'S route from Love Field to downtown Dallas is indicated by heavy line. Dashed line shows intended route to Trade Mart, where he was to speak. After the President was shot, however, he was taken to Parkland Hospital where he died. Enlarged map in inset shows exact area where the President was felled. Proceeding west along Main Street, the presidential cavalcade turned right onto Houston Street in order to enter one-way westbound traffic on Elm Street leading to triple underpass and Stemmons Freeway. Sniper in Texas School Book Depository at corner of Elm and Houston shot the President and Texas Gov. John Connally after their car turned left onto Elm. In lower lefthand corner of newsmap are spotted: Rented room where Lee Harvey Oswald went to change his clothes, where patrolman J.D. Tippitt was slain and the Texas Theater where Oswald was captured.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT of the Warren commission and books written by critics of the report. Several have been best sellers.

sitory and get into a light colored Rambler station wagon driven by a Negro. Later that afternoon Craig said he recognized Oswald in the office of homicide Capt. Will Fritz.

Craig said Oswald stood up and said: "That station wagon belongs to Mrs. Paine, don't try to tie her into this. . .Everybody will know who I am now."

The commission, as Lane notes, decided it "could not accept important elements of Craig's testimony." Lane does not note the reasons why.

One is an affidavit from Fritz. He recalled a man telling a story similar to Craig's. This, however, occurred in his outer office. Oswald was in his inner office.

"Had I brought this man into my inner office I feel sure I would have remembered it," Fritz said. He didn't remember Oswald jumping up and saying what Craig said he said. Neither did any one else there.

Furthermore, Mrs. Paine owned a two-tone Chevrolet station wagon, not a light colored Rambler.

Another conspiracy: Ruby was somehow involved in Castroite activity. At length Lane quotes the testimony of Nancy Perrin Rich. She said in 1962 she and her late husband had met several times in Dallas with others including an Army colonel whose name she did not recall and some one named Dave C.—"I think it was Cole, but I couldn't be sure."

Mrs. Rich's husband had asked $25,000 to shuttle a boat carrying guns into Cuba and refugees out. Negotiations stalled.

"A knock comes on the door and who walks in but my little friend, Jack Ruby," said Mrs. Rich who had been a bartender at the Carousel Club. "Ruby had a bulge in his pocket. He went into another room and returned minus the bulge," Mrs. Rich said. She assumed the bulge was payoff money, although she never saw nor heard that money had changed hands.

Negotiations improved. But Mrs. Rich finally "grabbed my old man and cleared out" when she later thought she recognized a new participant as Vito Genovese's son. She based this on his resemblance to a photograph she had seen of the Mafia chieftan.

Commission counsel Leon Hubert then asked Mrs. Rich if Dave C., who she said had been a bartender at the Dallas University Club, could be one Dave Cherry. "That's it," she replied.

Lane wonders why this potentially corroborating witness was not called to testify. "The FBI's summary of an interview with Cherry was in the commission's possession, but Cherry was not called as a witness."

Indeed, he was not. But the FBI "summary," which Lane does not quote, might explain why. In it Cherry denies knowing any colonel "who was supposed to have been running guns into Cuba." He did know Nancy Perrin Rich whom he said had been barred from the club and who he though was "mentally deranged".

Also in the commission record is a statement by Dallas detective Paul Rayburn who knew Mrs. Rich and though her "a psychopathic liar who got great delight out of telling wild tales."

And there is a report of an interview with attorney Cy Victorson who represented Mrs. Rich on a vagrancy charge. He said she told stories "so ridiculous that no one could possibly believe them."

Lane does not ask why Paul Rayburn or Cy Victorson were not called by the commission. He did not use their statements, either. After all, they did not discuss Ruby or gun-running. They only mentioned the one witness who said she saw it all happen.

Says Lane: "About so clandestine an operation as smuggling weapons to Cuba and evacuating exiles, however, one would expect to find corroboration only with the greatest difficulty, if at all." He indicates he found it in Robert McKeown. McKeown had been arrested in 1958 for conspiracy to smuggle guns to Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

McKeown told the FBI that in 1959 a man who identified himself as Rubenstein (Ruby's original name) had phoned him offering $15,000 to get Castro to release three of his prisoners. Three weeks later McKeown said a man asked him to write a letter of introduction to Castro because he had some Jeeps to sell Cuba. The deals never came to pass.

McKeown told the FBI he "feels strongly that this individual was in fact Jack Ruby. . ." Lane quotes this. He does not quote another part of the statement in which McKeown "remarked he is not certain that the above-described telephone caller from Dallas or the man who personally appeared. . .was identical with the Jack Ruby who killed Lee Harvey Oswald."

Lane takes a partial quote to show strong identification of Ruby by McKeown rather than a whole one which shows something less. He need not have. Ruby said he once was interested in a Jeep deal. He thought, though, the intermediary's name was Davis. His sister, Eva Grant, told the FBI she believed her brother had an option on eight war surplus Jeeps some time around 1960.

This could be corroboration of McKeown. But is it of Nancy Rich? And if one interprets it as such, where does it all tie Ruby into an assassination superplot? Do surplus Jeeps in 1959, an unverified meeting in 1962 add up to assassination in 1963?

Lane doesn't answer the question. He merely asks it.

Another conspiracy: Oswald, the admitted Marxist who wanted fair play for Cuba, was actually in the anti-Castro underground.

The source of this was Sylvia Odio, an anti-Castro Cuban. On Sept. 26 or 27, 1963 two Cubans or Mexicans called at her apartment in Dallas with a third person introduced as Leon Oswald, she said. The men told her they had recently come from New Orleans and were friends of her father, a prisoner of Castro.

The next day one of the men, who said his name was Leopoldo, phoned Mrs. Odio and said he wanted to introduce Oswald into the Cuban underground. Leopoldo said Oswald had been in the Marines, was an excellent shot and felt "the Cubans didn't have any guts. . .because President Kennedy should have been assassinated after the Bay of Pigs and some Cubans should have done that. . . ."

After the assassination a stunned Mrs. Odio recognized pictures of Lee Harvey Oswald as the man who came to her home. So did her sister.

The commission maintained that Oswald could not have been in Dallas Sept. 26 or 27. He was in Mexico.

". . .The issue was never resolved," wrote Epstein. That is debatable.

Records show that Oswald crossed into Nuevo Laredo, Mexico between 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sept. 26. Two passengers on a Houston-Laredo bus said they saw Oswald on board shortly after they awoke at 6 a.m., Sept. 26.

The commission said there was strong evidence that Oswald had left Houston on a bus for Laredo at 2:35 a.m. that morning. It noted a bus had left New Orleans, where Oswald had been living, at 12:30 p.m. Sept. 25 arriving at Houston at 10:50 p.m. that evening. Oswald made a phone call to a woman in Houston that same evening. It can't be determined whether the call was local or not.

Epstein says the visit to Mrs. Odio occurred "the day before he (Oswald) left on his trip to Mexico." This disregards Mrs. Odio's testimony. She said the visit occurred Sept. 26—when Oswald had already crossed the border—or the 27th—when he had reached Mexico City and registered at a hotel. Were some one's dates wrong? Epstein doesn't even mention there is a conflict between him and the testimony.

He does not mention a commission statement from E. P. Hammett, a Houston bus ticket agent. Hammett told the FBI that in late September a man "strongly resembling" a photograph of Oswald asked him about bus travel to Laredo and Mexico City. Epstein does NOT mention the man eventually bought a ticket to Laredo. Epstein does NOT mention that it was the only such ticket sold that night to Laredo or that it was the only one of its kind sold from Sept. 24 through Sept. 26.

If Oswald had been in Dallas on the 25th, he could have caught a bus from there to Alice, Tex., in time to be on the Houston-Laredo bus on which he was seen. But no tickets were sold by the bus line connecting Dallas and Alice for Laredo between Sept. 23 and 26.

He could, the commission concedes, possibly have driven New Orleans-Dallas-Alice route although the Warren report says it "would have been difficult." Tight scheduling again for the superplot.

Ultimately, the FBI located a Californian, Loran Eugene Hall, who said he had called on Mrs. Odio in Dallas in September with two other men. The two denied it. Hall later altered his story.

In its report, the commission stated that the FBI had not completed its investigation of Hall at the time the report went to press. Yet it concluded in the report that Oswald had not been at Mrs. Odio's that September.

"Is it too fastidious to insist that conclusions logically follow, not precede, an analysis of all evidence?" Lane asks. The point is well taken.

Despite the vast scope of the Warren investigation, the Odio matter has given the critics ammunition to charge the commission with haste, with lack of thoroughness.

Haste? Quite possibly, although the commission denies it. But thoroughness? Who was thorough in detailing the Odio investigation? The commission? Or Epstein?

The Hall evidence neither proves nor disproves the commission conclusion about Mrs. Odio. Epstein says the matter was never resolved. But, in effect, it was. As much as it ever can be. The commission was faced with a choice: the testimony of Mrs. Odio and her sister against the evidence they were mistaken. It chose the evidence.

Yet, it was the commission that presented all the evidence pro and con about Mrs. Odio. The critics did not. It was the commission that presented all the evidence about Lamar Hunt and Ruby, about Nancy Perrin Rich, about Jeeps, about McKeown, about Oswald's finances. The critics did not.

One may interpret what the commission found, and the critics have, abundantly. But while, as of this date, there may be doubters, books and speculation, the critics have yet to produce that one essential of proof—evidence.

While working on our church lawn party, I noticed that one of the items for sale was a net cocktail apron with a sequined cocktail glass apliqued on the pocket. I asked one of my coworkers, an elderly woman, which of our many aprons she liked best. "Oh," she replied, "I like the one with the chalice."

The commission maintained that Oswald could not have been in Dallas Sept. 26 or 27. He was in Mexico.

". . .The issue was never resolved," wrote Epstein. That is debatable.

Records show that Oswald crossed into Nuevo Laredo, Mexico between 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sept. 26. Two passengers on a Houston-Laredo bus said they saw Oswald on board shortly after they awoke at 6 a.m., Sept. 26.

The commission said there was strong evidence that Oswald had left Houston on a bus for Laredo at 2:35 a.m. that morning. It noted a bus had left New Orleans, where Oswald had been living, at 12:30 p.m. Sept. 25 arriving at Houston at 10:50 p.m. that evening. Oswald made a phone call to a woman in Houston that same evening. It can't be determined whether the call was local or not.

Epstein says the visit to Mrs. Odio occurred "the day before he (Oswald) left on his trip to Mexico." This disregards Mrs. Odio's testimony. She said the visit occurred Sept. 26—when Oswald had already crossed the border—or the 27th—when he had reached Mexico City and registered at a hotel. Were some one's dates wrong? Epstein doesn't even mention there is a conflict between him and the testimony.

He does not mention a commission statement from E. P. Hammett, a Houston bus ticket agent. Hammett told the FBI that in late September a man "strongly resembling" a photograph of Oswald asked him about bus travel to Laredo and Mexico City. Epstein does NOT mention the man eventually bought a ticket to Laredo. Epstein does NOT mention that it was the only such ticket sold that night to Laredo or that it was the only one of its kind sold from Sept. 24 through Sept. 26.

If Oswald had been in Dallas on the 25th, he could have caught a bus from there to Alice, Tex., in time to be on the Houston-Laredo bus on which he was seen. But no tickets were sold by the bus line connecting Dallas and Alice for Laredo between Sept. 23 and 26.

He could, the commission concedes, possibly have driven New Orleans-Dallas-Alice route although the Warren report says it "would have been difficult." Tight scheduling again for the superplot.

Ultimately, the FBI located a Californian, Loran Eugene Hall, who said he had called on Mrs. Odio in Dallas in September with two other men. The two denied it. Hall later altered his story.

In its report, the commission stated that the FBI had not completed its investigation of Hall at the time the report went to press. Yet it concluded in the report that Oswald had not been at Mrs. Odio's that September.

"Is it too fastidious to insist that conclusions logically follow, not precede, an analysis of all evidence?" Lane asks. The point is well taken.

Despite the vast scope of the Warren investigation, the Odio matter has given the critics ammunition to charge the commission with haste, with lack of thoroughness.

Haste? Quite possibly, although the commission denies it. But thoroughness? Who was thorough in detailing the Odio investigation? The commission? Or Epstein?

The Hall evidence neither proves nor disproves the commission conclusion about Mrs. Odio. Epstein says the matter was never resolved. But, in effect, it was. As much as it ever can be. The commission was faced with a choice: the testimony of Mrs. Odio and her sister against the evidence they were mistaken. It chose the evidence.

Yet, it was the commission that presented all the evidence pro and con about Mrs. Odio. The critics did not. It was the commission that presented all the evidence about Lamar Hunt and Ruby, about Nancy Perrin Rich, about Jeeps, about McKeown, about Oswald's finances. The critics did not.

One may interpret what the commission found, and the critics have, abundantly. But while, as of this date, there may be doubters, books and speculation, the critics have yet to produce that one essential of proof—evidence.

While working on our church lawn party, I noticed that one of the items for sale was a net cocktail apron with a sequined cocktail glass apliqued on the pocket. I asked one of my coworkers, an elderly woman, which of our many aprons she liked best. "Oh," she replied, "I like the one with the chalice."

Delores Waldo.

SAINTHOOD in the Roman Catholic church is considered likely for Edith Stein sometime next year. Born to a middle-class Jewish family in Breslau, Germany in 1891, she later became a Catholic nun and worked under the name Sister Teresia Benedicta A Gruce. She was arrested by the Nazis during World War II and died in a gas chamber at Auschwitz.

GREECE'S KING Constantine vaulted into the news when an army coup in his country declared absolute power in his name, arresting his political enemies. First frowned upon by the rest of the world for setting up a dictatorship, Constantine was later reported to be opposing the military junta and making a "valiant stand" against them at the risk of losing his throne.

SAINTHOOD in the Roman Catholic church is considered likely for Edith Stein sometime next year. Born to a middle-class Jewish family in Breslau, Germany in 1891, she later became a Catholic nun and worked under the name Sister Teresia Benedicta A Gruce. She was arrested by the Nazis during World War II and died in a gas chamber at Auschwitz.

GREECE'S KING Constantine vaulted into the news when an army coup in his country declared absolute power in his name, arresting his political enemies. First frowned upon by the rest of the world for setting up a dictatorship, Constantine was later reported to be opposing the military junta and making a "valiant stand" against them at the risk of losing his throne.

Ann Landers

Post Office Employe's Bark Ruffles Patron

Dear Ann Landers: I am 30, have three children and am making plans to separate from my husband. He has agreed to pay support money but it will not be enough so I must find employment.

I have not worked for eight years and my shorthand and typing are somewhat rusty. I am also more than a little frightened. Yesterday I filled out a Civil Service form and noted that part of the form was missing. When I inquired as to where I could get the missing pages, I was told to telephone the Post Office Department.

The man with whom I spoke was so rude and impatient that I was in tears by the time he finished screaming at me. Perhaps he had problems greater than mine, but is that justification for taking it out on a person he is supposed to help, as part of his job? I felt like saying, "Thank you and God bless you, Sir, for the kindness in your voice."

Wouldn't this be a better world if everyone spoke to everyone else in the same tone of voice he would use if he were speaking to God? Myself included. --- HOUSTON READER

Dear Houston: Of course it would, but how many mortals behave in a civilized, completely balanced manner at all times? I am sorry you did not follow your inclination and thank the man for the "kindness in his voice." It would have made him realize his thoughtlessness in a way that a sharp retort never could.

Dear Ann Landers: I've had numerous operations and have had to take a lot of medication to relieve the pain. Light doses of medication are ineffective so I take twice as much as normally prescribed. I obtain the medicine through my doctor, of course.

The problem is that I am a poor sleeper and nothing knocks me out like whisky. So every once in a while I take several stiff drinks and go straight to bed. Notice I said "straight to bed" ----I don't go out and raise Cain, nor do I abuse anybody. I just get pleasantly plastered and go to sleep. Isn't it O.K. to use whisky as a sedative? Please say so, because it's the only sure way I know to get a full night's sleep. --- DUFF

Dear Duff: Cut out either the medication or the booze or you could put yourself to sleep permanently. People who combine the two take a big chance. Discuss this with your physician at once.

Dear Ann Lnaders: I am engaged to a wonderful girl. I have become very close to her family and I think the world of them. Her parents are divorced, and I seem to be the man of the house already.

The problem is an 11-year-old boy. This kid has a terrible chip on his shoulder. Hal sasses his mother and gets into fights with his teachers and neighbors. He has no friends. His father remarried and now has two sons by that marriage. This has hurt Hal a lot.

Last week I bought him some popcorn. He refused to share it with his sisters so I told him I wanted the popcorn back. He got mad and threw the popcorn in my face. I spanked him. He hasn't spoken to me since. Hal can be very nice, but it only lasts a few days and then he gets mean again. Please tell me how to get along with him. ---LOST

Dear Lost: Hal needs more help than you can give him. Please urge his mother to see that the lad gets counseling. His anti-social behavior is a symptom of a deeper problem.

If You Were the Judge

Nude Draped in Flag No State Law Violation

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Charley published a rather unusual magazine that sometimes contained rather unusual material. For example, in one edition, he published a picture of a beautiful nude model with more curves than a road map. What made the picture unusual was the model was draped in "Old Glory."

Considering the picture a flagrant abuse of the American flag, the authorities had Charley arrested for violating a state law that made it a crime to treat the flag of the United States with disrespect.

"When dealing with our flag," the prosecuting attorney argued, "The thigh's not the limit. Such pictures damage its prestige."

"Nonsense," was Charley's answer. "Being photographed with a good looking girl never hurt anybody's prestige, so it can't hurt the prestige of a flag. Besides, a state has no right to pass a law relating to the United States flag. That's the business of the federal state law?

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail Charley for violating the state law?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that while federal law governs the display of the U.S. flag, states may pass laws that are intended to keep peace and order.

Since a picture of a nude girl draped in "Old Glory" is not apt to disturb the peace and order, concluded the judge, Charley could not be deemed to have violated the state law. Based upon a 1958 Illinois Supreme Court Decision)

Missouri Poll

Too Little Money for Education

COLUMBIA, Mo. - In an earlier era, a handful of prestigious private universities along the Eastern seaboard were generally considered the most outstanding educational institutions in the United States. In the last half century, however, state universities in such states as Michigan, Wisconsin, and California, have earned academic ratings higher than most of the private universities.

It is generally conceded that to achieve such excellence in higher education, a sustained high level of financial and moral support on the part of a state's citizens is required.

In Missouri, the Commission on Higher Education, state university and college officials, and the governor all have called for sizable increases in financial support for higher education. While not responding in every detail, the 1967 Missouri legislature did appropriate considerably more funds for the university system than had previous sessions of the legislature. University officials were generally reported to be pleased.

But how popular is such an action with the citizens of Missouri? What portion of the state's dollars do they think the University should receive? For what purposes should the money be spent?

In an effort to answer these questions, the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the University of Missouri asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians about their attitudes toward higher education. The survey conducted in the summer of 1966, was designed by professors Rondal Downing and David Leege of the University. Several articles in the Missouri Poll series will be based on findings from the study.

Most Missourians, in the summer of 1966, appeared to favor maintaining the present level of increasing appropriations for higher education rather than decreasing them. POSU asked its sample the following questions: "As you know, the state universities depend to a large extent upon funds appropriated by the state legislature. Do you think the State of Missouri provides too little, too much, or about the right amount of money for its universities and colleges?" The results were as follows:

SUPPORT FOR HIGHER EDUCATION

State Provides:	Per Cent
Too little money	31
Right amount	33
Too much money	3
(No opinion)	(33)

If those with "no opinion" are excluded from the findings, 47 per cent said too little money is appropriated, 49 per cent said the present level is adequate, and only four per cent said too much money is provided for higher education in Missouri.

Political officials often times claim privately that they are less interested in the opinions of the general public than they are concerned with the viewpoints of politically-active segments of the public. Therefore, it is interesting to look at the political, social, and economic profiles of those with differing viewpoints on this issue.

The POSU findings indicate that those who complain that Missouri appropriates too little money for its universities and colleges are more likely to be urban or suburban residents, in the age groups from 21 through 50, have minor children at home, received a longer formal education, earn incomes close to the state average or above it, and hold professional, business or managerial, whitecollar, and to some extent, blue collar occupations. They are the most active political segments of the population, having mentioned several forms of participation including efforts to contact state and federal officials. Their other political viewpoints seem unrelated to the issue of support for higher education, since nearly equal numbers of liberals and conservatives, Democrats, Republicans, and Independents are included in this group.

Those who are satisfied with the present level of appropriations or feel that the university campuses receive too much money appear to be less potent politically. They have engaged in fewer political activities and have seldom made an effort to contact public officials, with the exception of some at the town and county level. They are less likely to vote in elections. Generally, they are people from rural areas, in the post-50 age group, receive less formal education, earn lower incomes, and are farmers, retired or unskilled workers.

Jesus said to them, "Why are you afraid? Have you no faith?" (Mark 4:40, RSV)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, forgive our small faith by which we reduce Thee to our size. Forbid that waves of difficult circumstances should blind us to Thy presence with us. When we have done what we can, grant us the wisdom to leave the outcome in Thy hands. Through Christ, our Lord and Master, we pray. Amen.

DID NYLON STOCKINGS COST LESS WHEN MOM WAS A GIRL
Any woman knows better. A generation ago Nylon hose hadn't been invented. You couldn't buy them at any price.
The same is ture of today's medicines. It isn't logical to say, "Prescirptions cost more than they used to." Most of today's drugs weren't available at any price 10 or 20 years ago. In fact, three quarters of the prescriptions written today, are for drugs that didn't exist ten years ago.
Today, Americans spend only one cent from every disposable dollar on drugs. This share is no more than we spent in 1939! Also, today's drugs work faster. They are more efficient. They do much to reduce your total cost of illness. That's why we say: "Today's prescription is the biggest bargain in history."

In an effort to answer these questions, the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the University of Missouri asked its statewide sample of nearly 1,000 adult Missourians about their attitudes toward higher education. The survey conducted in the summer of 1966, was designed by professors Rondal Downing and David Leege of the University. Several articles in the Missouri Poll series will be based on findings from the study.

Most Missourians, in the summer of 1966, appeared to favor maintaining the present level of increasing appropriations for higher education rather than decreasing them. POSU asked its sample the following questions: "As you know, the state universities depend to a large extent upon funds appropriated by the state legislature. Do you think the State of Missouri provides too little, too much, or about the right amount of money for its universities and colleges?" The results were as follows:

SUPPORT FOR HIGHER EDUCATION

State Provides:	Per Cent
Too little money	31
Right amount	33
Too much money	3
(No opinion)	(33)

If those with "no opinion" are excluded from the findings, 47 per cent said too little money is appropriated, 49 per cent said the present level is adequate, and only four per cent said that too much money is provided for higher education in Missouri.

Political officials often times claim privately that they are less interested in the opinions of the general public than they are concerned with the viewpoints of politically-active segments of the public. Therefore, it is interesting to look at the political, social, and economic profiles of those with differing viewpoints on this issue.

The POSU findings indicate that those who complain that Missouri appropriates too little money for its universities and colleges are more likely to be urban or suburban residents, in the age groups from 21 through 50, have minor children at home, received a longer formal education, earn incomes close to the state average or above it, and hold professional, business or managerial, whitecollar, and to some extent, blue collar occupations. They are the most active political segments of the population, having mentioned several forms of participation including efforts to contact state and federal officials. Their other political viewpoints seem unrelated to the issue of support for higher education, since nearly equal numbers of liberals and conservatives, Democrats, Republicans, and Independents are included in this group.

Those who are satisfied with the present level of appropriations or feel that the university campuses receive too much money appear to be less potent politically. They have engaged in fewer political activities and have seldom made an effort to contact public officials, with the exception of some at the town and county level. They are less likely to vote in elections. Generally, they are people from rural areas, in the post-50 age group, receive less formal education, earn lower incomes, and are farmers, retired or unskilled workers.

If You Were the Judge

Nude Draped in Flag No State Law Violation

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Charley published a rather unusual magazine that sometimes contained rather unusual material. For example, in one edition, he published a picture of a beautiful nude model with more curves than a road map. What made the picture unusual was the model was draped in "Old Glory."

Considering the picture a flagrant abuse of the American flag, the authorities had Charley arrested for violating a state law that made it a crime to treat the flag of the United States with disrespect.

"When dealing with our flag," the prosecuting attorney argued, "The thigh's not the limit. Such pictures damage its prestige."

"Nonsense," was Charley's answer. "Being photographed with a good looking girl never hurt anybody's prestige, so it can't hurt the prestige of a flag. Besides, a state has no right to pass a law relating to the United States flag. That's the business of the federal state law?

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you jail Charley for violating the state law?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that while federal law governs the display of the U.S. flag, states may pass laws that are intended to keep peace and order.

Since a picture of a nude girl draped in "Old Glory" is not apt to disturb the peace and order, concluded the judge, Charley could not be deemed to have violated the state law.

DID NYLON STOCKINGS COST LESS WHEN MOM WAS A GIRL
Any woman knows better. A generation ago Nylon hose hadn't been invented. You couldn't buy them at any price.
The same is ture of today's medicines. It isn't logical to say, "Prescirptions cost more than they used to." Most of today's drugs weren't available at any price 10 or 20 years ago. In fact, three quarters of the prescriptions written today, are for drugs that didn't exist ten years ago.
Today, Americans spend only one cent from every disposable dollar on drugs. This share is no more than we spent in 1939! Also, today's drugs work faster. They are more efficient. They do much to reduce your total cost of illness. That's why we say: "Today's prescription is the biggest bargain in history."

Today is Thursday, July 27, the 208th day of 1967. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1953, an armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending the Korean War after three years and 32 days of fighting.

On this date:

In 1789, the U.S. Congress established the Department of Foreign Affairs — the forerunner of the State Department.

In 1909, Orville Wright set a record by staying aloft in an airplane for more than one hour and 12 minutes, over Ft. Myer, Va.

In 1922, The United States recognized the governments of Albania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

In 1954, Britain and Egypt agreed on terms ending 72 years of British control of the Suez Canal.

In 1955, Austria regained sovereignty after 17 years of occupation by foreign troops.

Ten years ago — The Soviet Union agreed to discuss a U.S. proposal for an exchange of uncensored radio and television broadcasts.

Five years ago — The chance of civil war in newly independent Algeria eased with negotiations between the provisional government and a dissident faction.

One year ago — South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Cao Ky said patience to carry on a long war was the only alternative to invading North Vietnam.

RESOLUTION

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of blade mix asphaltic surfacing on the surface of Watson Street from Lillian Drive east to existing pavement, in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $0.50 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be incompliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 17th day of July, 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Mistrial Called At Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF - The trial of two men accused of a pistol point robbery, at the Northwold motel was pronounced a mistrial Wednesday in circuit court.

Jerold B. Hays and Charles L. Pittman appeared on a charge of stealing $229.53, from B. K. Ramsey, Jerome Bradley and Lawrence Vincent, by means of a dangerous and deadly weapon May 24.

Judge Rex A. Henson pronounced the trial a mistrial this morning after the defense objected to a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney William Batson Jr., during his opening statement.

Judge Henson stated that Batson made a prejudicial statement and the defense requested a mistrial.

The case was set for trial in October term of court.

The two men's bonds have been set at $10,000 each.

A third man, Billy Charles Nix, 34, Milstead, Ga., who was stopped in a car with Pittman and Hays, was shot and killed by State Trooper William B. Darnell of Sikeston after Nix drew a gun and fired at the officer.

Batson made reference to the Nix death which was judged prejudicial to the jury.

$218,872 for State Library

JEFFERSON CITY, -- The Missouri State Legislature has appropriated $218,872 for operation of the Missouri State Library for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1967.

This represents an increase of 15.4 per cent over fiscal year 1966 and 5.35 per cent over the fiscal year ended June 1967.

Federal funds will still be needed to supplement the state appropriation.

State aid allocated to public libraries amounted to $473,027. This represents an increase of 78 per cent since 1962 in state support of public libraries. The appropriation represents an increase of 27.69 per cent over fiscal 1966 and 5.92 per cent over fiscal 1967.

The state library said that on the basis of present information this fund will provide for establishment grants to Cole, Miller, Maries, Osage and Hickory counties, since these library districts have all joined regional libraries.

In addition, the funds will provide grants of approximately 12 cents per capita to all eligible library districts.

The general assembly also appropriated $55,675 to reimburse the Wolfner Branch of St. Louis public library, which provides service to the blind in Missouri.

Federal funds allocated to Missouri under the library services and construction act, totaling $805,469 for services and $625,016 for construction, will be financed, according to the U.S. Office of Education, under a containuing resolution of Congress until further notice. The funds are within President Johnson's recommendations and it is anticipated the final appropriations will be in these amounts.

$538,062 Grant to Aid Migrants

JEFFERSON CITY -- Michael D. Garrett, state director of the Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunity Services corporation reported today that word had been received from Washington, D.C., announcing a new grant of $538,062 to MAMOS for the continuation and expansion of the corporation's program through Sept. 30. 1968.

Official word came in a telegram from Theodore M. Berry community action program director for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The MAMOS corporation is a private, non - profit organization to provide a three - phase program of adult basic education, pre - employment training and social services to migrant and seasonal farm workers and their families within the state of Missouri.

Garrett indicated that the initial efforts of MAMOS have been concentrated in the Missouri "Bootheel" counties of Dunklin and Pemiscot. Here, with the assistance and cooperation of state and local agencies, three training centers have been established since March of 1967, and serve 200 trainees and their families. Mrs. Tom Prentice of Malden is the project director for the Bootheel program.

The new grant, Garrett stated, will enable MAMOS to continue and expand its present program in southeast Missouri, and will also make possible the extension of the MAMOS program to other areas within Missouri where concentrations of migrant and seasonal farm workers exist. It is projected that the new grant will enable MAMOS to provide its services to 345 trainees.

Jurors Have New Excuse From Duty

SEATTLE (AP) - An economy move on the part of county commissioners may have provided Seattleites with a reason for being excused from jury duty - claustrophobia.

The commissioners have approved a plan to brick up the windows in the courthouse to save $7,200 a year in maintenance costs.

Superior Court Judge Lloyd Shorett said Wednesday: "I certainly would feel that a juror's being subject to claustrophobia would be grounds for excusing him from service in a walled-up courtroom."

Adjutant Official To Change Jobs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Col. Walter C. Wilson of Jefferson City, state air defense officer in the office of the adjutant general, was appointed today to the Army National Guard Technician Advisory Committee in Washington.

The announcement of his appointment was made by Maj. Gen. L. B. Adams Jr., Missouri adjutant general.

The advisory committee studies problems of employment of 40,000 full time technicians working for the Army National Guard.

Search for Faulty TV Sets Proceeds

KANSAS CITY (AP) - The hunt for color television sets which could emit dangerous x-rays is all but over in Kansas, western Missouri and parts of Nebraska and Iowa.

A spokesman for the Kansas City division office of General Electric Co. said more than 98 percent of the sets can be traced. He said some still are in stock and the company has the names of the persons who purchased most of the others.

The harmful sets were made between September of 1966 and April 18, 1967. A division official said the fault is easily corrected by exchanging tubes.

More than 90 per cent of the sets in the Kansas City area have been corrected at no extra cost to the owners, the official said.

Official word came in a telegram from Theodore M. Berry community action program director for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The MAMOS corporation is a private, non - profit organization to provide a three - phase program of adult basic education, pre - employment training and social services to migrant and seasonal farm workers and their families within the state of Missouri.

Garrett indicated that the initial efforts of MAMOS have been concentrated in the Missouri "Bootheel" counties of Dunklin and Pemiscot. Here, with the assistance and cooperation of state and local agencies, three training centers have been established since March of 1967, and serve 200 trainees and their families. Mrs. Tom Prentice of Malden is the project director for the Bootheel program.

The new grant, Garrett stated, will enable MAMOS to continue and expand its present program in southeast Missouri, and will also make possible the extension of the MAMOS program to other areas within Missouri where concentrations of migrant and seasonal farm workers exist. It is projected that the new grant will enable MAMOS to provide its services to 345 trainees.

Turbulent Channel

Fog, gales and rough water are common in the English Channel. Whirlpools, cross currents and powerful tides are created in the shallow trough by the meeting of the Atlantic Ocean and North Sea.

Jurors Have New Excuse From Duty

SEATTLE (AP) - An economy move on the part of county commissioners may have provided Seattleites with a reason for being excused from jury duty - claustrophobia.

The commissioners have approved a plan to brick up the windows in the courthouse to save $7,200 a year in maintenance costs.

Superior Court Judge Lloyd Shorett said Wednesday: "Icertainly would feel that a juror's being subject to claustrophobia would be grounds for excusing him from service in a walled-up courtroom."

Adjutant Official To Change Jobs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Col. Walter C. Wilson of Jefferson City, state air defense officer in the office of the adjutant general, was appointed today to the Army National Guard Technician Advisory Committee in Washington.

The announcement of his appointment was made by Maj. Gen. L. B. Adams Jr., Missouri adjutant general.

The advisory committee studies problems of employment of 40,000 full time technicians working for the Army National Guard.

Search for Faulty TV Sets Proceeds

KANSAS CITY (AP) - The hunt for color television sets which could emit dangerous x-rays is all but over in Kansas, western Missouri and parts of Nebraska and Iowa.

A spokesman for the Kansas City division office of General Electric Co. said more than 98 percent of the sets can be traced. He said some still are in stock and the company has the names of the persons who purchased most of the others.

The harmful sets were made between September of 1966 and April 18, 1967. A division official said the fault is easily corrected by exchanging tubes.

More than 90 per cent of the sets in the Kansas City area have been corrected at no extra cost to the owners, the official said.
